- In Warsaw, developed nations agreed to support developing countries in dealing with the effects of climate change, including extreme weather events.

- The support would be in the form of educating countries in risk management, financial and technological support.