At COP28, for the first time ever, countries around the world are being asked to explain to everyone whether they are doing a good job regarding the agreements made in Paris.

This will be called a Global Stocktake.