Anna Freud

Activity: comic strip conflict

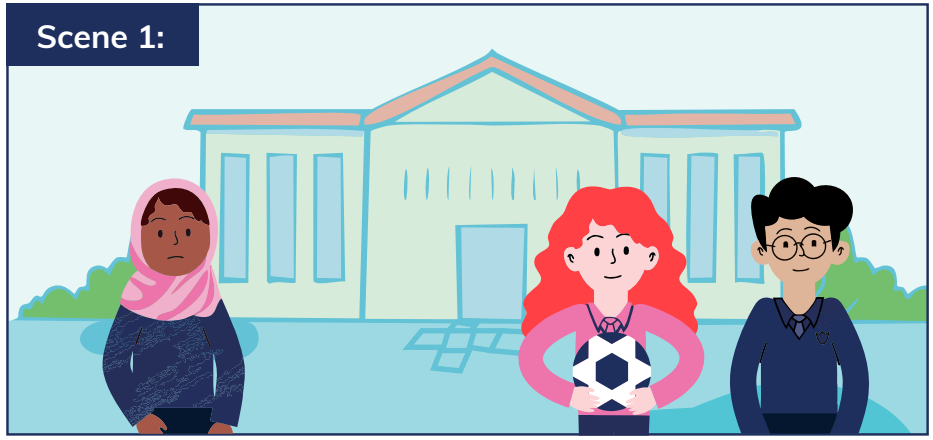
Using the comic strip below, invite pupils to answer the following comprehension-style questions about the conflict scenario:

- Explain what just happened in the scenario.
- Describe the main character.
- How does the character feel? How do you know?
- If you could ask the character a question what would you ask?
- What advice might you give character after this scenario?
- What are you still wondering about after looking at the comic strip?

Scenario 1: Sana

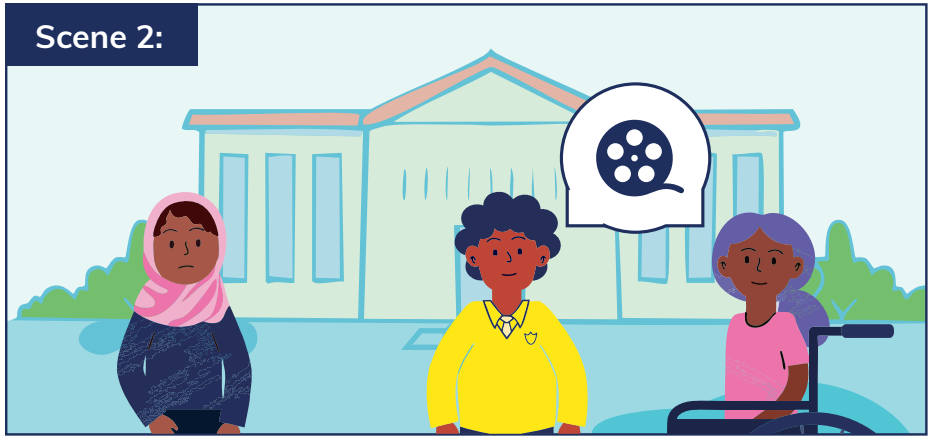
Anna Freud

Scene 1:



Sana goes over to her friends at lunchtime. She wants to join in their game, but they have already allocated places so she can't join in. She stands watching for a while and feels a little annoyed that no one has swapped to allow her a turn.

Scene 2:

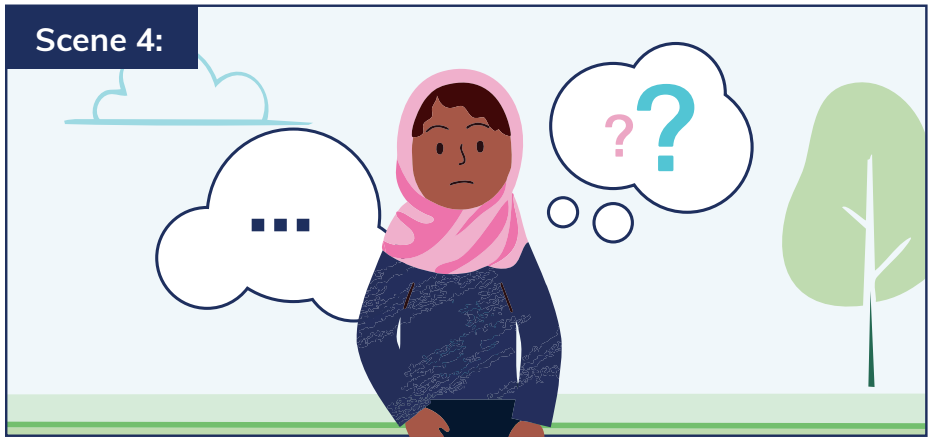


Sana walks away and decides to join some other classmates' group. They are talking about going to the cinema that evening. Sana isn't going to the cinema, so feels left out and walks away from that group too.

Scene 3:

Sana suddenly feels like she has no real friends at school. She starts to worry, but knows that she can't speak to her friends when they are in the middle of a game.

Scene 4:



She starts thinking of reasons why she might not be part of any friendship groups today (they don't like me, I'm not fun) but they don't make any sense.
