Japan's famous

Ikaho Onsen

- Refresh -

Scenic beauty of Ikaho has moved the hearts of many, even from the age of Manyo poems. This Ishidangai (stone steps), enveloped in hot spring steam, still retains the feel of good old days. Take a dip in an onsen, savour delectable flavors of the season, and explore notable spots and remains - Ikaho will surely become an unforgettable place.

Ikaho's Hot Springs

You can enjoy two types of hot springs at Ikaho Onsen. One is known as the "Kogane-no-yu", golden colored for its abundance in iron. The other is known as "Shirogane-no-yu", spring water glistening with transparency.

Kogane-no-yu

Spring type: Sulfate spring
Good for: Scars, peripheral circulatory failure, poor circulation, etc.

Shirogane-no-yu

Spring type: Acknowledged as an "onsen" as stipulated in the metasilicic acid clause of Article 2 of the Hot Spring Law
Good for: Recovery from illness / fatigue, health improvement

Ishidangai (stone steps)

Near 94-2 Ikaho, Ikaho-machi

"Ishidangai" was developed about 440 years ago based on Japan's first hot spring city plan. Enjoy the tranquil ambience of this city of stone steps.

Komaguchi

The onsen baths of each inn are drawn from tapping spouts connected to the hot spring source. You can see the spring being drawn at Komaguchi.
