CYCLISME

A YEAR OF CYCLING CAPTURED IN IMAGES

UNE ANNÉE DE CYCLISME EN IMAGES

DEAR FRIENDS,

The UCI Cycling World Championships that took place in Glasgow and across Scotland in the United Kingdom were undoubtedly the highlight of 2023. Bringing together different UCI World Championships over the same period - in August - and in the same region, they were a phenomenal success. All the disciplines represented benefited from even greater exposure than usual, with the lesser-known specialities gaining a particularly significant increase in visibility. It is only natural that the 2023 UCI Yearbook takes a major look back at this historic first edition, with its exceptional performances, moving victories and collective celebration.

As is the case every year now, 2023 has seen its share of innovations. If I had to mention just one, apart from the UCI Cycling World Championships, I would highlight the first edition of the UCI Mountain Bike World Cup organised in collaboration with Warner Bros. Discovery. The new format of the series, which incorporates all the major mountain bike formats, has ushered in a new era for the discipline at a time when cycling is thriving like never before, at all levels.

The development of women's cycling is one of the UCI's priorities, and each year brings new advances in this area. For 2023, I would like to mention the exceptional performance of Italy's Vittoria Bussi, who became the first woman to ride more than 50 kilometres in 60 minutes, setting a new UCI Hour Record timed by Tissot. Of course, technology has evolved, but the fact that a woman has surpassed a threshold that no man had managed before the 1980s is testament to the spectacular progress of women's cycling.

More popular and innovative every day, more than ever at the heart of contributions to a more sustainable future, our sport is unquestionably the sport of the 21st century!

David LAPPARTIENT

President of the Union Cycliste Internationale (UCI)
Member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC)

CHERS AMIS,

Les Championnats du Monde de Cyclisme UCI de Glasgow et de l'Écosse, au Royaume-Uni, ont sans aucun doute été le temps fort de l'année 2023. Réunissant sur la même période, au mois d'août, et dans la même région les différents Championnats du Monde UCI, ils ont rencontré un succès phénoménal, et toutes les disciplines représentées ont bénéficié d'une exposition encore plus importante que d'habitude, les spécialités les moins connues en profitant dans une mesure particulièrement significative. Le Yearbook UCI 2023 reflète évidemment largement cette première édition historique, entre performances d'exception, victoires émouvantes et liesse collective.

Comme chaque année maintenant, 2023 a connu son lot d'innovations. S'il fallait n'en citer qu'une, au-delà évidemment des Championnats du Monde de Cyclisme UCI, je retiendrais la première édition de la Coupe du Monde Mountain Bike UCI organisée en collaboration avec Warner Bros. Discovery. La nouvelle formule de la série, qui intègre tous les formats majeurs du mountain bike, a fait entrer la discipline dans une nouvelle ère, à une époque où le cyclisme a comme jamais le vent en poupe, y compris au niveau de sa pratique.

Le développement du cyclisme féminin est l'une des priorités de l'UCI, et chaque année est marquée par de nouvelles avancées en la matière. Pour 2023, je voudrais rappeler la performance exceptionnelle de l'Italienne Vittoria Bussi, devenue la première femme à couvrir plus de 50 kilomètres en 60 minutes en établissant un nouveau Record de l'Heure UCI chronométré par Tissot. Bien sûr la technologie a évolué, mais le fait qu'une femme dépasse un seuil qu'aucun homme n'était parvenu à franchir avant les années 80 témoigne de la spectaculaire progression du cyclisme féminin.

Plus populaire et innovant chaque jour, plus que jamais au cœur des contributions en faveur d'un futur plus durable, notre sport est incontestablement le sport du 21e siècle !

UCI CYCLING WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS: A REMARKABLE FIRST EDITION IN GLASGOW AND ACROSS SCOTLAND!

Held from 3 to 13 August, the 2023 UCI Cycling World Championships, which were held in Glasgow and across Scotland, in the United Kingdom, were the UCI World Championships of all superlatives. The brainchild of UCI President David Lappartient, this first edition, the biggest cycling event ever organised, brought together 13 separate UCI World Championships, 132 nations, 8,000 athletes (elite and amateur), one million spectators and 4,000 volunteers. During the 11 days of competition, no fewer than 220 UCI World Champion rainbow jerseys were awarded.

The event's success was also reflected in unprecedented TV and digital audiences: almost a hundred television channels broadcast the event in 130 countries, and the number of hours viewed and broadcast live jumped by almost 80% compared to previous years, when the various UCI World Championships were organised separately; and by the end of the event, the UCI's community of cycling fans on social media had grown to over 5.1 million followers.

On an institutional level, the event, which will be held every four years, in the pre-Olympic years, saw the largest gathering of UCI members in history, with representatives from 151 of the 203 National Federations affiliated to the institution attending the UCI Congress.

The sporting events, held at nine magnificent venues throughout Scotland, produced some superb champions, such as Mathieu Van der Poel (NED) and Lotte Kopecky (BEL) in the Men Elite and Women Elite road races, to name but a few.

Such success augurs well for the second edition of the UCI Cycling World Championships, which will be held in Haute-Savoie, France, in 2027, with an even more comprehensive programme.

Disputés du 3 au 13 août, les Championnats du Monde de Cyclisme UCI 2023, qui vivaient à Glasgow et à travers l'Écosse, au Royaume-Uni, leur première édition, furent les Mondiaux UCI de tous les superlatifs. Nés de la vision du Président de l'UCI David Lappartient, le plus grand événement cycliste jamais organisé a réuni 13 Championnats du Monde UCI distincts, 132 nations, 8'000 athlètes (d'élite et amateurs), un million de spectateurs et 4'000 bénévoles. Durant les 11 jours de compétition, pas moins de 220 maillots arc-en-ciel de Champion du Monde UCI ont été attribués.

La réussite de l'événement s'est également traduite par des audiences TV et digitales sans précédent : près d'une centaine de chaînes de télévision l'ont diffusé dans 130 pays, et les heures vues et de diffusion en direct ont bondi de presque 80 % par rapport aux années précédentes, lorsque les différents Mondiaux UCI ont été organisés séparément ; et à l'issue de l'événement, la communauté des fans de cyclisme sur les médias sociaux de l'UCI comptait plus de 5,1 millions d'abonnés.

Sur le plan institutionnel, la manifestation, qui sera organisée tous les quatre ans, les années préolympiques, a donné lieu au plus grand rassemblement de membres de l'UCI de l'histoire, les représentants de 151 des 203 Fédérations Nationales affiliées à l'institution ayant participé au Congrès de l'UCI.

Les épreuves sportives, réparties sur neuf sites magnifiques dans toute l'Écosse, ont consacré de superbes champions, à l'image de Mathieu Van der Poel (NED) et Lotte Kopecky (BEL) dans la course en ligne sur route des Hommes et des Femmes Élite, pour ne citer qu'eux.

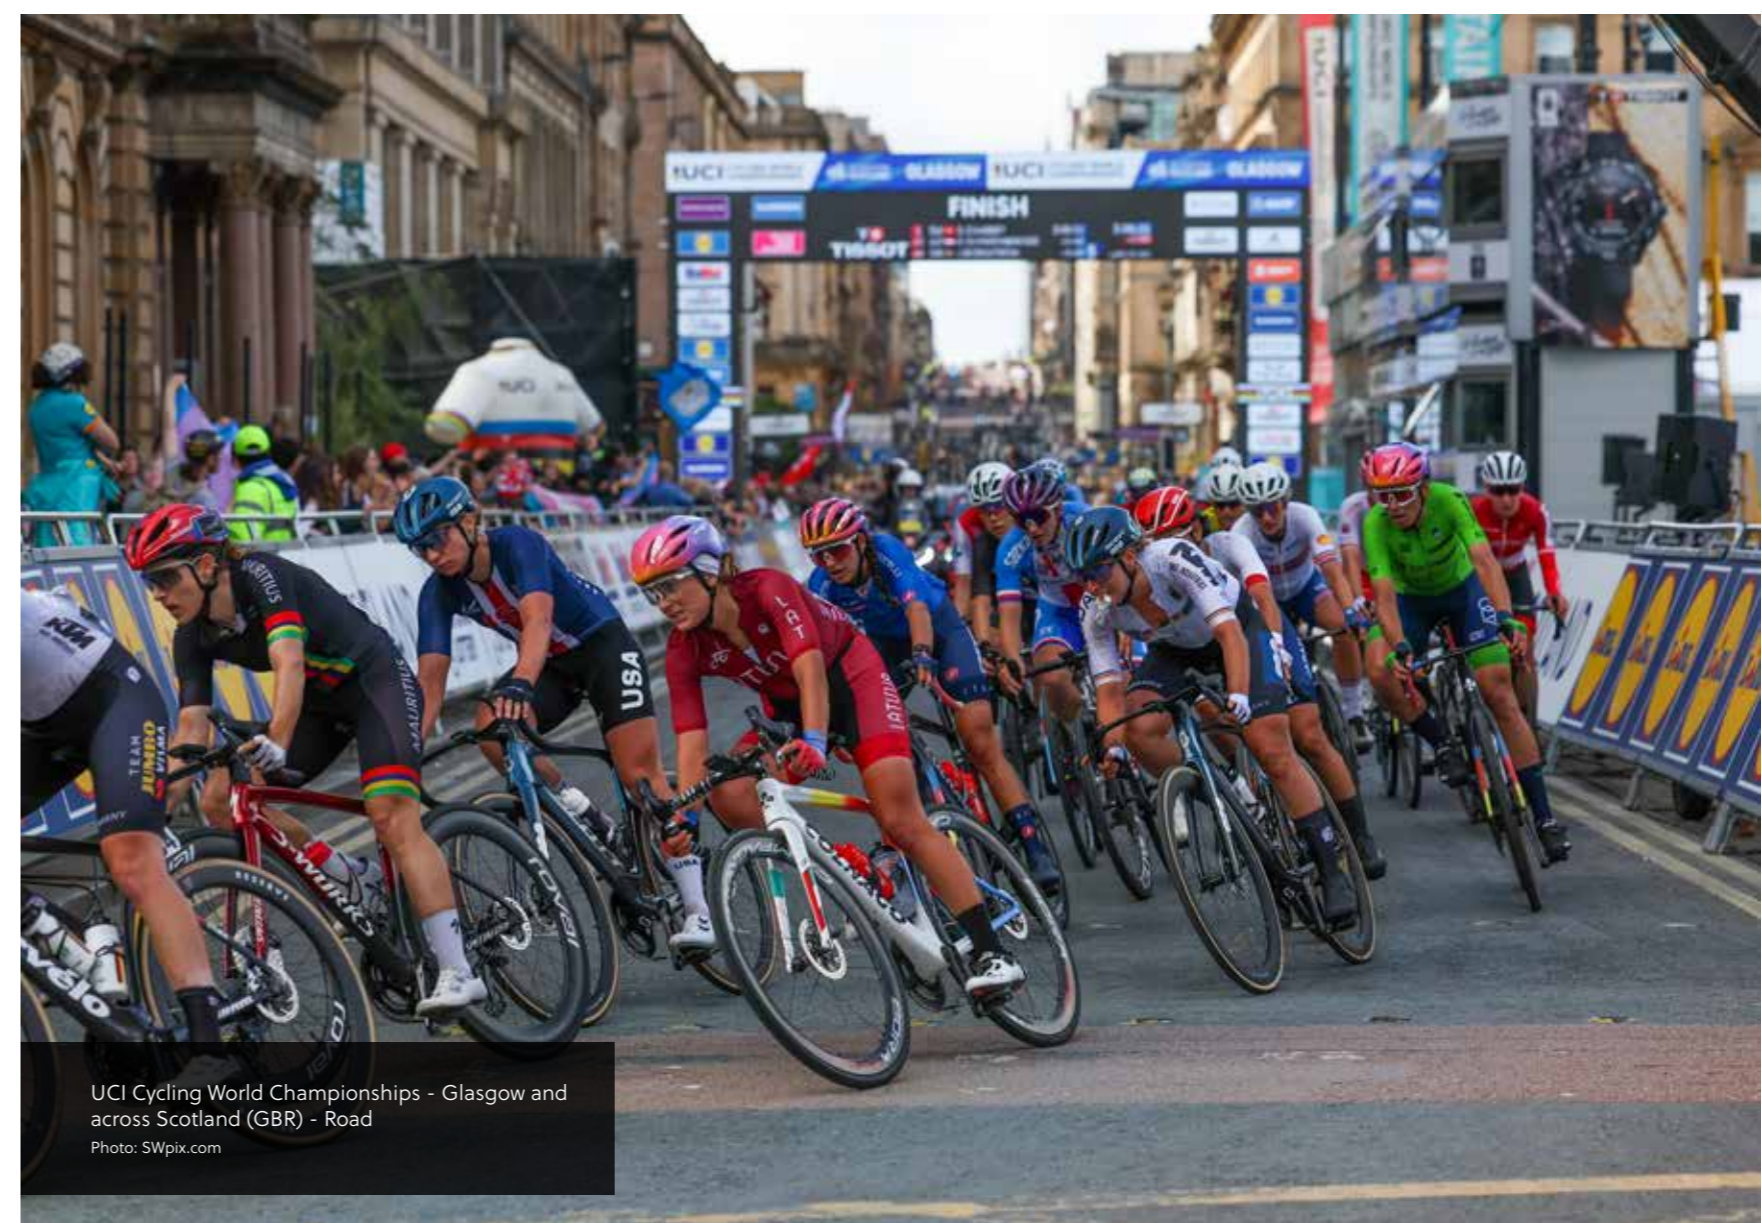

Un tel succès est de très bon augure dans la perspective de la deuxième édition des Championnats du Monde de Cyclisme UCI, qui aura lieu en Haute-Savoie, en France, en 2027, avec un programme encore plus riche.
