

Panic, born as Dennis Copier on November 24, 1975, in Rotterdam, is an influential figure in the Dutch hardcore and gabber scene. Since the early '90s, he has distinguished himself through his energetic sets and unmistakable mixing techniques. Known for collaborations with Paul Elstak ("Up Yours" / "Hate"), Neophyte ("I Will Have That Power"), and Evil Activities ("Never Fall Asleep" / "Bigger Than Ever"), he has left a lasting mark on hardcore music.

Panic has not only produced music but also built his own brand with merchandise and successful events like Start The Panic, Panic Room, and Rotterdam Loves Houseclassics. These events attract both old and new fans, celebrating the rich history of hardcore and house music.

He has performed at nearly all major dance events in the Netherlands, including Defqon.1, Decibel Outdoor, Thunderdome, Zwarte Cross, and Dominator. However, his impact extends beyond the Netherlands; Panic has also played across Europe and in countries such as the United States, Australia, and Japan, building a global fanbase.

With recent releases like "Early Rave Addict," "Hype Me Up," and "Music for the 90's," he remains relevant and innovative, staying true to the roots of the genre. His ability to inspire both old and new generations of hardcore fans makes him a lasting force in the scene.
