The media agency's guide to Pinterest

Welcome. We're so glad you're here.

Pinterest is the home of inspiration, where people come to take action. Nine out of 10 people use Pinterest to get inspired about things to buy—eight of whom end up doing so.¹

A firm grasp on consumer behavior is more important than ever. And since Pinnerers are future-thinkers who use the platform to plan and look forward, we get an earlier indication of what's to come—which can help brands make better business decisions.

To make sure your clients get the most out of Pinterest, we've created this go-to guide with everything you need to know.

People come to Pinterest first

People come to Pinterest to plan for what could happen, not scroll through pictures of what already did. And that future-focused mindset is exactly what makes Pinterest so valuable as an advertising platform. People on Pinterest are ready to take action. Let's explore what this means for your clients.

Most people use Pinterest to decide their next purchase and start their search early. When they're browsing. When they're still undecided on what they want. When they're looking for inspiration to help guide them as they start to make their decisions.

That's why 97% of the top searches on Pinterest are non-branded.³ Read that again. That means that people come looking for something in particular but not a brand in particular—yet. Which means you have an incredible opportunity to introduce yourself at exactly the moment they are most open to discovering you. Before the competition. When people are considering what to do or buy next.

People come to Pinterest to plan

People on Pinterest are always planning for their next thing. And those things range from everyday interests like meal prep or handling picky eaters, to seasonal holidays like Father's Day and back-to-school, to major life milestones like a wedding or the arrival of a new baby. For advertisers, showing up at the final moment isn't good enough. Pinterest offers a unique opportunity to show up early and meaningfully to shape inspired decisions around key moments.

On Pinterest, there's a natural alignment between what consumers are there to do (get ideas and inspiration) and what advertisers are there to do (enable them to act on that inspiration). So naturally, ads (branded content) are additive to the audience's experience. They stand out because they fit in. And brands that connect with people on Pinterest are offering them the right solution, at the right time. That's why it takes half as many impressions to convert someone on Pinterest as on other platforms.⁴

People come to Pinterest to purchase

Pinterest is a full-funnel solution. People don't just come to see inspiring content, they come to act on it. Advertisers have the opportunity to share relevant content with Pinners at every stage of their journey—when they're exploring possibilities, when they're comparing a handful of options and when they're ready to make a purchase.

And these aren't the one-off, transactional customers of Amazon or Google. People on Pinterest tend to buy more, more often.⁶ They put more items in their shopping carts.⁷ They're bigger brand advocates.⁸ And they spend nearly 80% more in retail than people off Pinterest.⁹

Online inspiration to action

No matter how much shopping has changed, the powerful and critical role that inspiration plays in helping people to decide what to buy has stayed the same. In fact, 2 in 3 people say that the inspiration phase is influential in determining what to buy.¹⁰ And visual search and discovery are an important part of that consumer journey, connecting the dots between online research and offline buying—and vice versa. Nearly 9 in 10 weekly Pinners use Pinterest for inspiration in their path to purchase.¹¹

Go a level deeper with Pinterest Trends

Pinterest Trends is a self-serve tool for any business to discover what Pinners are searching for and when, compare search terms related to a topic over the past year, and explore creative examples associated with their search results.

Stay on trend with the Pinterest 100

Pinterest searches are like a window into the future. With over 367 million people using the platform every month⁴³ to plan, we gain unique insight into what people want to try next. The Pinterest 100 is our annual list of 100 emerging trends we foresee spiking in the upcoming year. Use these insights to help plan campaigns or develop new products and better services.

Set the right bids for your ads

Bidding is a powerful tool that influences the total amount of clicks you can get for your ads. Custom cost-per-click or cost-per-action bids are manually entered and updated by you. But with automatic bidding, Pinterest takes the wheel and automatically updates your bids throughout the day. We aim to get you the most clicks at the lowest possible cost within your given budget. Our internal tests have shown that on average, advertisers using automatic bidding got 35% more clicks for the same budget.

The basics

What's a Pin?

Pins are bookmarks that people use to save ideas they love on Pinterest. And when people find an idea from a brand, they can click through to learn how to make, do or buy. In fact, about 85% of weekly Pinner have made a purchase based on content they saw from a brand on Pinterest.⁴⁴

That's because on Pinterest, brands are additive and ads are content. They don't interrupt; they inspire. They aren't a distraction; they're a decision-making tool. They provide the fuel to make ideas happen. Whether it's with a recipe or a pair of sneakers, brands add value rather than disrupt.

How content gets discovered

Pinterest is a place where good ideas find their right audience again and again. Pins are evergreen and never get buried in a newsfeed. You'll see people interacting with your Pins months after you originally posted them, continuing to grab attention for your business.

Brands can use Pins to launch products, share tutorials, spotlight campaigns and more. Whatever Pin format you choose, whether it's a static image or a video with autoplay, you'll just need three main components: a featured image or video, a description and a website link.

Anatomy of the Pin

📌 Pin pointers

- Pinterest is a place where good ideas find their right audience again and again.
- The more people engage with your content, the more it gets shown in other places on Pinterest for millions to discover.

Setting up accounts for success

Start with a business account

First, make sure your client has a business account. It's free to sign up and offers access to tools like Pinterest Analytics and a special business profile. You'll also get more control over things like branding and content attribution. In just minutes, you can sign up for a new business account or upgrade an existing personal account to use business features.

Business profile owners can also add people to their ad accounts and choose the level of access each person has. This way, a variety of people can manage different aspects of a brand's ad account—billing, audience editing, campaign creation—without having to share login credentials with an entire business. Multi-user access also makes it possible to see who is making what updates.

Organic and promoted go hand in hand

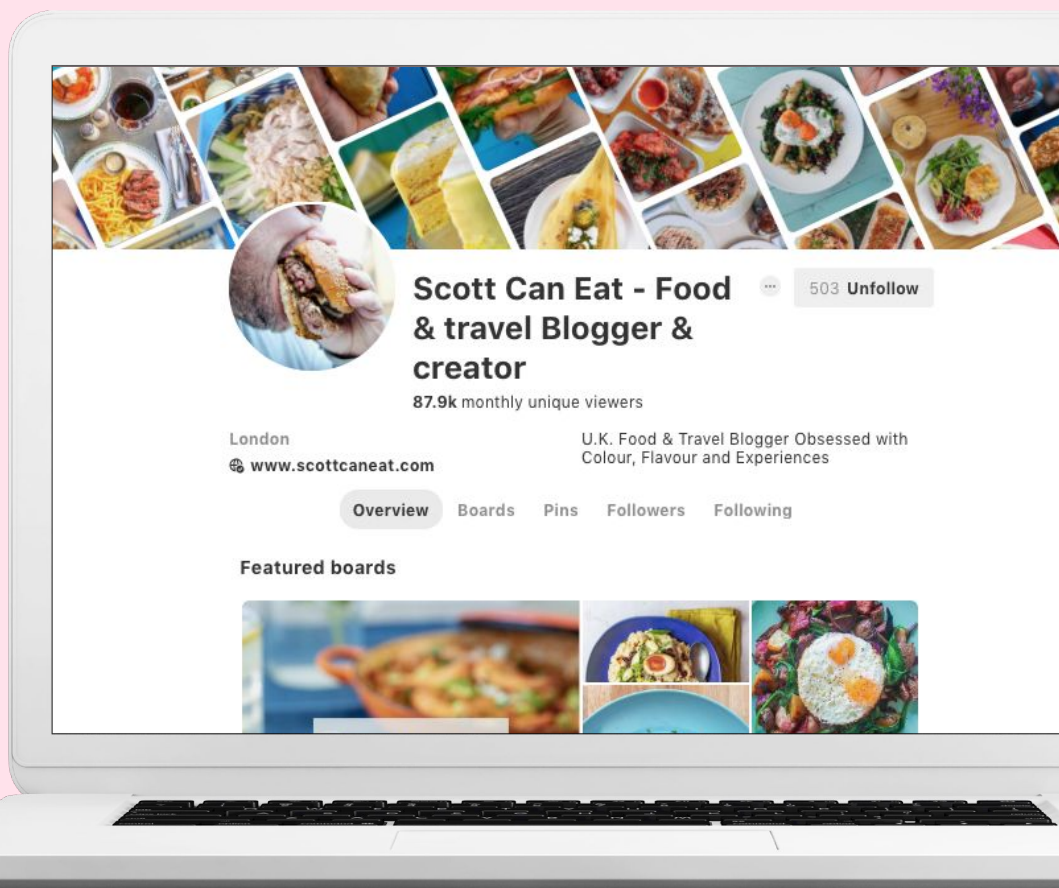

Unlike posts on social media, organic Pins have a long lifespan. On Pinterest, your followers are the first to see your ideas. And the more they engage with your content, the more it gets shown in other places on Pinterest—like search results, feeds, and recommendations—for more people to discover. Ads, meanwhile, allow you to target the audience and drive towards KPIs.

All organic strategies on Pinterest should be supported by promoted content, while all promoted strategies should have complementary organic content too. Organic Pins gain traction as Pinners search and discover ideas. From there, you can identify your top performing Pins and promote them to reach a larger or more targeted audience. Lastly, you can amplify support for key product lines, seasons and/or dates, leading with a paid strategy for your key initiatives. This approach is fundamental to your success on Pinterest.

School's in session

We want your brand to succeed on Pinterest. That's why we offer Pinterest Academy, a free e-learning program to help businesses get started. Go through the courses at your own pace and on any device, learning how to connect through different ad products, start your campaign and create best-in-class creative. Each course takes less than 10 minutes to complete and the entire curriculum can be finished within a couple of hours. We're adding new content to Pinterest Academy on an ongoing basis, so be sure to check back often.

Getting to know your business profile

Flexible profile cover

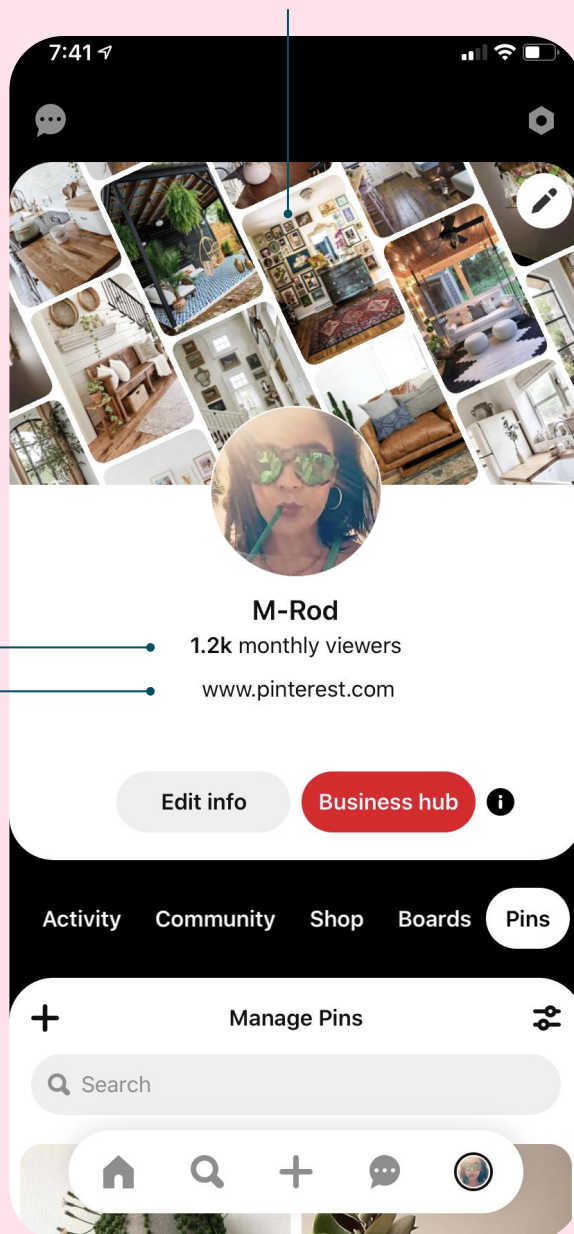

Choose to show your latest Pins or a select a specific board to display

Monthly viewers

Claimed website

Your verified website is shown prominently

Consistency is key

Publishing Pins consistently gives people a steady stream of great ideas, which is better than a once-a-week flurry. Unlike social platforms where reach peaks in the first 24 hours, on Pinterest your reach will grow over time as people discover and save your Pins.

Keywords and hashtags

Good keywords or hashtags will help your content get to the right audience and give helpful context about your Pins and boards to Pinners. When adding a hashtag, we recommend you be specific and descriptive, using words or phrases that clearly describe the content in the Pin.

Board best practices

Every Pin lives on a “board” that clusters related ideas. Someone might sort their boards by need or interest. Businesses often sort their boards by product category, interest or seasonal topic. Use boards to organize your brand’s Pins so that people can easily browse your profile and explore your ideas. Make sure your board names and descriptions are specific and relevant to your audience and pick a board category to help Pinterest better understand your content, so we can provide better recommendations.

📌 Pin pointers

- Set up or convert to a business account to get access to Pinterest Analytics and more control over things like branding and content attribution.
- Organic and promoted go hand in hand.

Choosing the most effective campaign type

People on Pinterest are here to take action

And they're looking for products or solutions like the ones your client offers. They browse their feeds for inspiration, search for topics that they're interested in and click on or save Pins to learn more or revisit the idea at a later time.

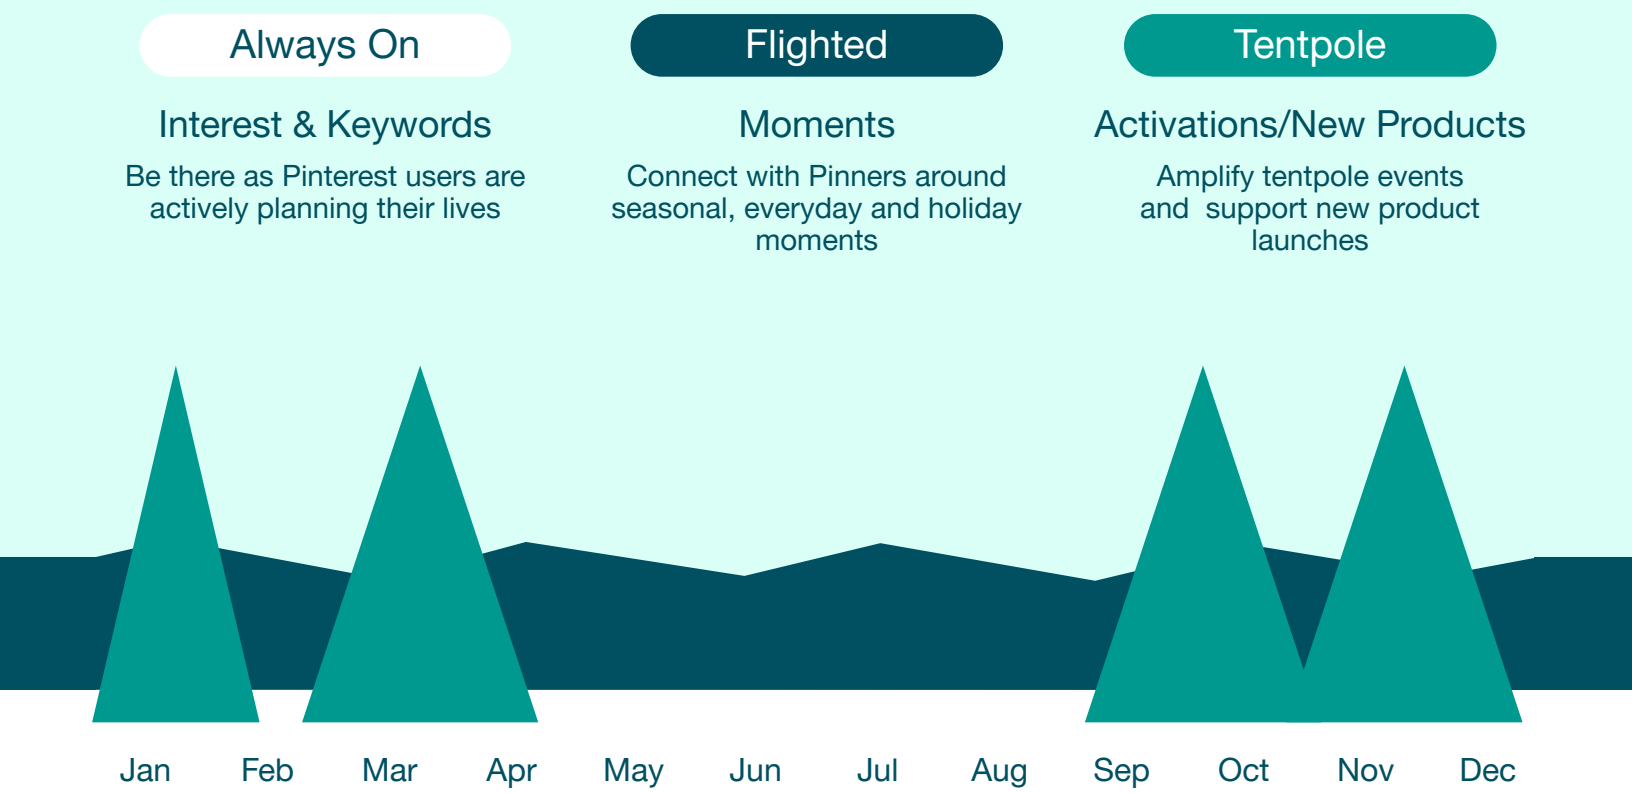

Whether it's through building awareness, driving consideration or growing sales, Pinterest Ads and campaigns can help your client get noticed. Read on to learn everything you need to know about promoting Pins to make sure you choose the right campaign every time.

50%

of US Pinners frequently use Pinterest to shop, which is over two times higher than the portion that use other media platforms to shop.⁴⁸

Planning for life's biggest moments

When Pinners approach a big life event, they use Pinterest to plan for it—and they do so months in advance. Brands that capitalize on relevant seasonal moments (like summer vacation or Christmas) or milestones (like a new baby or planning a wedding) have seen higher aided awareness and more online sales. Think about what seasonal moments are right for your client.

Pinners are more likely to purchase new products early in launch cycle

Brands across all categories can find incredible success when they launch new products on Pinterest. For example, Pinners try CPG new products (on average) 39% more than non-Pinners in the first month following launch.⁴⁹

Think outside the box

- ✓ Leverage keywords and interests with contextual targeting to find the best audiences for ads.
- ✓ Enable Pinners to engage deeper with your brand's content with a Pin extension.
- ✓ Leverage Pinterest Trends for a creative concept.
- ✓ Personalize content with the Developer API.
- ✓ Use Pincodes to help people find you and your ideas on Pinterest. It's like a QR code, but exclusively designed for Pinterest.
- ✓ Take ideas offline through an experiential partnership.

Shopping on Pinterest:

Make your thing their thing

Shoppers are turning to Pinterest as a key shopping destination: a place to get inspired and discover new ideas as a refreshing alternative to news and politics. They're walking the virtual aisles of the platform, searching for visual ideas to help them adapt to their new reality. While brands on Pinterest have always been a part of Pinners' inspiration journey, we're making it easier than ever for your client to connect with shoppers looking for the right things to buy.

Through product updates that make shopping easier, to partnerships with vetted retailers, Shopping on Pinterest is better than ever.

Catalogs

is the fastest way to get your products onto Pinterest. Turn your entire product catalog into organic Product Pins, all at once, and then sort them into groups to promote them as Shopping Ads.

Shopping ads

Shop tab

If your client has a Business Profile and created Product Pins with Catalogs, they can feature shoppable products in the designated Shop tab on their account.

Even more ways to reach shoppers

Shopping in closeup

When Pinners look at a lifestyle Pin in close up, they can easily shop the scene via visual search.

Shop mode in search

When Pinners search for home decor or fashion inspiration, they can filter results by what's 100% shoppable.

Shop your board

When a Pinner visits their home decor or fashion board, they'll see a Shop section that shows products from or inspired by the Pins on their board.

Verified Merchant Program

Receive a special blue checkmark on their profiles, and be eligible for increased distribution within high-intent shopping experiences and metrics like conversion reporting.

Style guides

Visual recommendations that make it possible for Pinners to explore trending styles and taste when they're searching for inspiration.

📌 Pin pointers

Essential tips for great Pins

The best Pins are visually compelling, tell a good story and make people want to learn more. It isn't hard to make great Pins—just follow these creative best practices.

Think vertically

Use high-quality, vertical images and occupy maximum screen real estate to communicate your message

Include your branding

Always put the product or logo in the top half of every Pin that you make.

Align to moments

Make your ads relevant by showing Pins with content specific to seasonal or special moments.

Design for mobile

Ensure that text is large enough that it's legible on mobile so your Pins will stand out in people's feeds.

Highlight brand benefits

What makes your brand stand out from competitors? Make sure those benefits are highlighted front and center on Pinterest.

Pin Stats

Unlike content posted on social networks, Pins continue to be impactful long after you've created them. And the more people engage with your content, the more it gets shown in other places on Pinterest for millions to discover. Go to ads.pinterest.com or analytics.pinterest.com to access easy-to-use dashboards and measure your results.

Impressions

How many times your Pins were seen on Pinterest.

Engagements

The total number of saves, closeups, link clicks and carousel card swipes on your Pins.

Closeups

How many times people viewed a close-up version of your Pin.

Saves

The total number of times people saved your Pins to a board.

Link clicks

How many people visited your site from a Pin.

Video views

The amount of views for at least 2 seconds with 50% of video in view.

Total audience

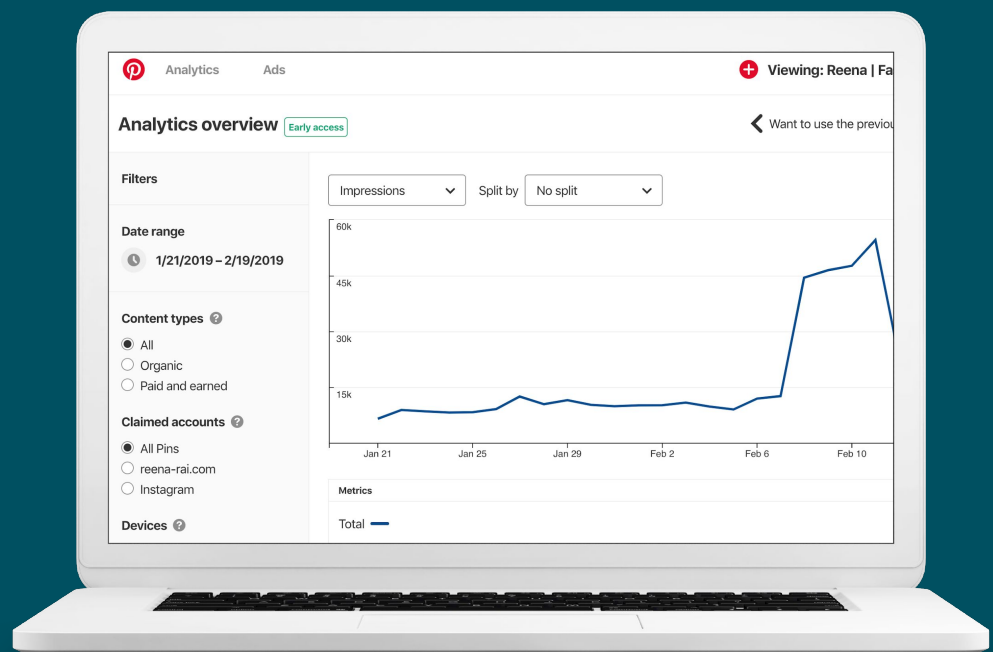

The total number of people who saw Pins you saved or Pins other people saved from your website and linked accounts.

Engaged audience

People who saved your Pins, clicked on a link or viewed your Pin in closeup mode.

Pinterest Analytics

With Pinterest Analytics, you can see a comprehensive view of your organic, paid and earned engagement for all of your Pins. The insights you get from Analytics can tell you what people like, what they save from your client's website and help you learn more about what your client's audience really wants—so you can build their content and media strategy with confidence. For instance, if most of the impressions are mobile, you can suggest they optimize their website for mobile. If an item on their site is driving traffic, make sure it's available, feature it in more Pins or ads and save it to more boards.

Audience Insights

The Pinterest Audience Insights tool reveals what your existing and potential customers are interested in, based on their behavior on Pinterest. These insights are powered by the Taste Graph and reflect the active consideration mindset of Pinners, incorporating actions like searches and saves. You can even view a demographic breakdown of your audience selection by age, gender, location or device.

How we're different

Pinterest isn't social media.

It's the home of inspiration, where 367 million people from around the world come each month looking for ideas to help them plan, visualize and create a life they love.⁵¹

Your audience is on Pinterest.

The undecideds and the decision-makers. People who plan early and spend more. People with higher incomes and higher value for your brand.

Reach them first.

Pinterest influences what people buy more than any search or social platform. Nine out of 10 people use Pinterest to get inspired about things to buy.⁵² Since they're already here to shop, your ad gets a head start.

Be their next inspired decision.

On Pinterest, ads are content. They don't interrupt, they inspire. They don't distract, they provide the fuel to make ideas happen. People come to Pinterest to grow. Your brand can, too.
