Style exploration

While the internet remembers everything, culture continues to keep looping. Whether it's diving back into the comfort of past eras, or pulling them forward into the present with TV reboots, bands reuniting, and cult classic remakes.

As the world shapeshifts, style becomes a way to make sense of it all. Our audiences are all playing with time, using fashion as a means to find comfort in the familiar, while re-mixing looks and aesthetics to work in the now. This season, we're celebrating nostalgia re-coded for today.

Old icons, new interpretations, this is about style that is Past Forward.

THE FASHION

Style evolution: where macro meets micro

The visual map highlights Depop's key Fall/Winter fashion trends, showcasing how they blend across macro influences ranging from streetwear to preppy, fantasy, and minimalism.

These represent mass, evergreen aesthetics that our community has been experimenting with and personalising for the longest time. Each one continues to evolve as new micro trends emerge, reshaping familiar looks into something distinctly now, while offering space for everyone – across styles, audiences, and lifestyles – to find themselves within them.

As the party season approaches – from Halloween to NYE – select trends take a night-time turn, channeling the energy of holiday fashion through bold textures, elevated details, and stand out silhouettes. Sleaze Pop, Romanticized Sports, and Dark Age embody this shift toward festive style inspiration and party-ready outfits, merging celebration and self-expression for the ultimate after-dark vibe.

THE FASHION

Heritage Woods

We're stepping into a world where countryside charm meets refined tradition – barnyard chic with a preppy twist. Think corduroy, plaid, and layers of wool and cashmere worn for bracing walks, farmhouse gatherings, or city weekends that crave a touch of the rural. The palette is warm and grounded, with textures that tell stories of weathered fields and family heirlooms. It's about timeless dressing made modern – warm, winter, countryside done the polished way.

Romanticized Sports

We’re blending ‘80s après-ski glamour with a modern country club edge for a look that’s equal parts playful and poised. Picture oversized windbreakers, satin slip dresses, and sporty stripes paired with polished heels or snow boots. It’s luxury leisurewear for those who love a grand entrance – whether courtside, slopeside, or sipping cocktails post-game. Aloof, country club, holiday energy redefined for the stylish escapist.

Dark Age

We're dressing for drama – a 90s vamp revival shaped by utility tailoring and gothic romance. Think structured trenches, gold-trimmed blazers, and armour-inspired silhouettes that balance strength with seduction. It's a world of dark opulence and functional elegance, where vintage uniform precision meets nightshade glamour. Preppy goth polish and medieval undertones define this mood of controlled extravagance – made for winter weddings, midnight parties, and red-carpet entrances that shimmer with sublime power.

Soft Norm

We're embracing minimalism at its most effortless – normcore ease softened by a touch of vintage Parisian cool. Understated silhouettes, slouchy knits, and soft neutrals form a wardrobe that moves seamlessly from matcha runs to evening catchups. It's about quiet confidence – clothes that whisper quality with a touch of 2010s design nostalgia and brand influence. Effortless, quality, and basics define this refreshed return to simplicity that nods to fashion's more understated golden era, where blending in is the new sophistication.

Sleaze Pop

We're diving headfirst into the neon-lit chaos of the 2010s – where every night was an after-party and every outfit demanded a flash. Think faux-fur hoodies, skinny scarves, slogan tees, and disco pants that cling like the memories of a house party gone too long. It's unapologetic, hyper-social, and a little bit trashy – a love letter to American Apparel confidence, Ed Hardy graphics, and Diesel-clad debauchery. Bold, playful, and undone, this revival celebrates the thrill of bad taste turned iconic –v the kind of style made for the club, the photo booth, and the hangover brunch after.
