At The Fresh Market, we inspire our guests to make everyday eating extraordinary by being a premier, fresh-focused specialty food retailer. Our stores are warm and inviting—encouraging guests to linger, explore and try new flavors—and our service is always friendly, helpful and inspiring. We also carefully curate and create products that help our guests cook with confidence and serve easy, delicious meals, any night of the week.

OUR HISTORY

After returning from a trip to Europe, Ray Berry and his wife Beverly were inspired to bring the charm and essence of an open, European-style food market to America. They wanted to offer a more intimate and personalized shopping experience than the warehouse-type supermarkets popular at the time.

Leaving his job at the Southland Co. overseeing 3,600 7-Eleven stores, Ray Berry and his wife poured their life savings into their dream: creating a warm and inviting shopping experience filled with the freshest produce, meats hand-trimmed by butchers in-store, fresh-cut flowers and the finest foods and ingredients from around the world.

While searching for the ideal place to make their dream a reality, the Berrys fell in love with the quaint community of Greensboro, North Carolina. On March 5, 1982, the first The Fresh Market store opened in Greensboro on Lawndale Drive, where a store still stands today. Everything about this small specialty grocery store was designed to enhance the food shopping experience.

The initial 14,000-square-foot store differentiated itself from conventional supermarkets with a farmer's market atmosphere, complete with locally-grown produce, bins of freshly roasted coffee, an old-world style butcher shop and fish market, in-store bakery, fresh cheeses and cured meats and floral stands.

The original store became the blueprint for other locations to follow. Today, with 160 locations in 22 states, The Fresh Market is committed to their original values of inspiring guests with the freshest foods to make everyday eating extraordinary.
