LA CREOLE PECAN CANDY... SHARING A SWEET CULTURE

In a recent episode of CRAWFISH TALES with Commissioner Mike Strain, DVM, we visited with Certified Louisiana member Terrence Jones of Louisiana Creole Pecan Candy. On this day, we found Terrence, also known as TJ, at the W.D. & Mary Smith Career Center in Lafayette, teaching high school juniors and seniors how to make pralines.

The Career Center is part of the ProStart® culinary program, a nationwide, two-year program for high school students that develops the best and brightest talent into tomorrow's industry leaders. From culinary techniques to management skills, ProStart's industry-driven curriculum provides real-world educational opportunities and builds practical skills and a foundation that will last a lifetime.

In Louisiana, ProStart is managed by the Louisiana Restaurant Association (LRA) and can be found in over 57 schools across the state. The program gives students a platform to discover new interests and talents and opens the door to fulfilling careers. Students who complete the program are awarded the Certificate of Achievement and are eligible for scholarship opportunities and course credits at more than 75 of the country's leading hospitality and culinary arts colleges and universities.

"Louisiana has a rich Cajun & Creole history," says TJ, who got involved in the program to "help younger generations understand their roots and embrace their heritage."

Cultural heritage is a topic that's near and dear to TJ's heart, who started Louisiana Creole Pecan Candy after some soul searching during the recent COVID pandemic. His family's praline recipe had been passed down through the generations as far back as the early 1800s. After a few tweaks of his grandmother's recipe, TJ took a leap of faith and started Louisiana Creole Pecan Candy.

He created their two registered trademark brands, Creole-ish, which pays homage to his heritage as a Creole person, and Cajun-ish, which pays homage to his alma mater, the University of Louisiana at Lafayette.

Both of those lines have their own variety of pecan candies. Additionally, the company makes a gluten-dairy-and-soy-free praline named after Louisiana's state flower, the magnolia, and the award-winning Creole-ish Barbecue Sauce. On top of that, TJ's company was recently recognized by Beyonce herself during the Renaissance World Tour stop in New Orleans, Louisiana.

In addition to the candy, they've branched out into a lifestyle collection of Creole-ish and Cajunish products, including t-shirts and candles, all of which celebrate TJ's cultural heritage.

When asked what the recipe for success is, TJ is quick to show gratitude to those who have mentored him. That's why you see him volunteering with ProStart. He credits the Certified Louisiana program with helping him make the connections that he needed to grow, giving special thanks to the folks at Cajun Nation Seasoning and T-Beaux's Gumbo Roux, which is a part of Ragin' Cajun Acadiana Kitchens. "Their success and mentorship have gotten me to where I'm at today," says TJ. "Well, that and a lot of stirring," he jokes.

Commissioner Strain even got in on the stirring action. "Making pralines is a rather involved process, but this is truly a Louisiana delicacy," Strain said. "Chocolate pralines, made with beautiful Louisiana products, like pecans and

Results of LDAF's Seed Testing Lab available online

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry's (LDAF) Seed Testing Laboratory announces that seed sample test results can now be viewed online. Results have always been available upon request; they've just made it easier to access the information.

Lab results can be viewed at www.ldaf.la.gov/plants/seeds/seed-sample-test-results.

"Seed selection is one of the first and most important decisions that agricultural producers make each year. This investment is significant," remarks LDAF Commissioner Mike Strain, DVM. "Seed costs for major agricultural crops can run in the hundreds of dollars per acre and have continued to increase in recent years."

The inclusion of herbicide, insect, nematode, and disease resistance coupled with improved seed protectants have contributed to the overall value of agricultural seed and increased costs to producers. Producers willing to make that level of investment require the most accurate and up-to-date information to make informed decisions on seeding rates and field production strategies.

"The concern that is quickly becoming a reality is that farmers are reducing seeding rates to the absolute minimum to reduce input costs," said Billy Leonard, Professor Emeritus with Louisiana State University's Department of Entomology.

Ensuring Louisiana producers have high-quality planting seed with a recent germination test is critical to their success — hence, LDAF's

PINEAPPLE RUM UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Submitted by New Orleans Distillers, LLC

Ingredients:

¼ cup butter
 ⅔ cup packed brown sugar
 9 pineapple slices in juice, drained (reserve juice)
 9 cherries
 1 ⅓ cups all-purpose flour
 1 cup granulated sugar
 ⅓ cup butter (softened)
 1 ½ teaspoons baking powder
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ½ cup milk
 ¼ cup reserved pineapple juice
 ½ cup New Orleans Distillers Rum or Gold Rum
 1 egg
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Instructions:

Heat oven to 350°F. Melt butter in the microwave. Pour the melted butter in a 9-inch square pan and then evenly sprinkle with the brown sugar, or use a muffin pan for individual cakes. Arrange pineapple slices over the brown sugar. Place a cherry in center of each pineapple slice. In a medium bowl, beat remaining ingredients with electric mixer on low speed 40 seconds, then beat on high speed 3 minutes, until well blended. Pour the cake batter over the pineapples. Bake 45 to 50 minutes or until a toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. (For smaller cakes, adjust the time). Immediately top the pan with a plate, pan, or serving dish, then flip the cake/dish over. Let the cake sit for a few minutes then remove the pan. This will allow the topping to drizzle over the cake. Serve warm, topped with whipped cream or ice cream.

Seed Testing Laboratory's decision to implement the service enhancement of making results more readily available online. The LDAF field inspectors collect samples of agricultural crop seeds at local seed distributors prior to their shipment to producers.

Historically, those samples were tested by our Seed Testing Laboratory for regulatory compliance only, and interested producers would have to request the results. Now, the germination test results are available to producers on the LDAF website, providing them with the most current germination quality information on specific seed lots before shipment.

Currently, LDAF is providing the latest warm germination test results for field corn, cotton, and soybean samples online but may extend that to other tests and crop kinds as required by the industry. All seeds are sampled and tested according to Association of Official Seed Analysts (AOSA) rules and are representative of the specific seed lot, or portion of a seed lot, that was available at the time and location the sample was collected.

SWCD Spotlight

Dugdemona SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

The Dugdemona Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) was created in 1939 at the request of resident landowners who recognized the need to conserve soil and water resources. Dugdemona SWCD encompasses Winn, Jackson, and a portion of Caldwell Parish that lies west of the Ouachita River.

The Dugdemona SWCD provides conservation assistance to landowners through their partnership with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). Through this partnership, both technical and financial assistance are provided to SWCD cooperators for conservation measures on their land, including, silvopasture, forest stand improvement, fire breaks, prescribed burning, various pasture improvement practices, and more.

Each year, through a locally led process, stakeholders such as landowners, homeowners, and concerned citizens discuss local resource concerns within the district and provide the results to their Local Work Group (LWG). The LWG is an advisory board which consists of community leaders and conservation partners. During this LWG meeting, the resource concerns discussed and analyzed at the locally-led meeting are prioritized by the LWG for final state-level prioritization by the State Technical Advisory Committee. These prioritized natural resource concerns are used to structure conservation programs to help insure effective program funding and implementation.

Recently the top resource concern for the Dugdemona SWCD cooperators has been damage caused by feral swine on private lands. After successive years of providing this information to the NRCS, 10 parishes in Louisiana were invited to participate in Louisiana's Feral Swine Pilot Program. Created with funds from the 2018 Farm Bill, this pilot program obligated $75 million to 10 states to aid in removal and eradication of feral swine and restoration of damaged working lands. Winn Parish was among the 10 invited parishes, and with these funds, the Dugdemona SWCD purchased 15 hog traps, surveillance equipment and supplies, as well as the salary for a full-time trapper-technician.

Upon receiving funds through the Pilot Program, both Jackson and Caldwell parishes along with most other statewide SWCDs received funds from Rep. Jack McFarland's amendment to the 2022 Supplemental Appropriations bill. These funds not only provided SWCDs with the means to purchase feral swine trapping equipment, but also allowed the Dugdemona SWCD to purchase an additional four traps.

A "Good Neighbor Authority" (GNA) agreement has recently been signed between the Dugdemona SWCD and the USDA Forest Service's Kisatchie National Forest for forest, rangeland and watershed restoration within the Dugdemona SWCD. This agreement with the Forest Service, along with two others in adjacent Louisiana SWCDs, is among the first in the nation.

Through funds generated from their annual tree sale, the Dugdemona SWCD provides conservation education and outreach to local landowners, educators, and students at school events, fairs and local community colleges, as well as providing technical assistance at 4-H and FFA judging events. The conservation programs and activities made available through the Dugdemona SWCD successfully highlight the great public benefit of private lands conservation.

Prescribed burns, such as this one on a Dugdemona SWCD cooperator's property, are used to improve wildlife habitat and reduce wildfire risk.

At far left, a landowner's property and winter hay stock were being severely affected by feral swine. Hog trapper Hunter Tolar helped by setting out feral swine traps purchased through the Feral Swine Pilot Program.

sugar. It's absolutely delicious — a holiday treat!"

But what is stirring if not dedication? That dedication and a love of what you're doing go hand in hand with the real-world skills that ProStart students learn with the help of instructors like Theresa Edwards. In addition to teaching them the skills they need to be experts in their field, Edwards hopes the experiences and opportunities will help them hone in on what they want to do after graduation. "Whether they're interested in hospitality, management, or culinary careers, they learn what the job expects," Edwards says. "There's a wide variety of instruction. We also teach them how to use local ingredients and how to best showcase those ingredients. We learn plating and participate in statewide competitions."

Commissioner Strain praised the program and the opportunities it provides. "These students are the chefs of tomorrow, and very soon, they'll be at a restaurant near you," said Strain. "And I love seeing the mentorship from the Certified family, the LRA, and folks like TJ and Theresa."

We probably don't need to remind you that Certified LA products make great Christmas gifts, and Louisiana Creole Pecan Candy pralines are no exception. TJ says their pralines are popular because they melt in your mouth. They're perfect... not too hard, not too brittle, not too chalky. "Most people don't know, but our candy doubles as a coffee creamer and a sweetener," says TJ. "You can drop a little piece in there, and it'll dissolve and act as a coffee creamer."

If you're still shopping for last-minute gifts, be sure to check out all of our unique, local Certified Louisiana companies. "Gifts of food, especially Louisiana food, are gifts from the heart," says Strain. "When you buy these products, you're getting part of our culture, the heart and soul of Louisiana."

If you've got your heart set on some Louisiana Creole Pecan Candy, you can connect with them in a couple of different ways. They're available at local stores in Lafayette and Breaux Bridge, and you can also visit their website, louisianacreolecandy.com, or their Amazon site to find all of their delicious pecan candy and Creole-ish and Cajun-ish lifestyle products.

The Certified logo program was established to enhance and promote Louisiana's agricultural industry, the logo aids in marketing Louisiana products to consumers for farmers, processors, producers, and suppliers alike. Projects eligible for inclusion in the Certified Louisiana logo program must be made, grown, manufactured processed, produced, or substantially transformed in the state of Louisiana.

What is Creole?

Creole is a term used to describe a wide range of people, languages, and cultures. In many regions of the world, Louisiana Creoles are generally known as people of color with a mixed ethnicity from a French, Spanish, Black and/or Native American heritage.

Creole is also a spoken language in both Louisiana and the Caribbean. Creole as a language is taken from Pidgin French and mixed with the native tongue, which can vary from country to country. These elements, combined with distinct food and music, have created what we know as Creole culture.

In Louisiana, some of the most distinguishable elements of Creole culture come from music and food. Known for having a large presence in South Louisiana, Creole culture has been blended into most southern Louisianians' daily lives. Although some elements of Cajun and Creole culture overlap due to both having a traditional French heritage, there are some differences between the two.

Creole Heritage Month, a holiday celebrated each October since the 1970s, is a time to acknowledge, educate, and uplift the culture, language, and long-lasting impression that Creole people have made on the global landscape.

(Source: LafayetteTravel.com)

But you don't have to wait until October to celebrate! Visit your favorite Creole restaurant, go on a trail ride, learn to dance Zydeco, or master a new recipe.

To learn more, visit the Creole Heritage Folklife Center in Opelousas or the Vermilionville Living History Museum and Folklife Park in Lafayette.

The Creole flag above, crafted in 1987 by Pete Bergeron, combines symbols of Louisiana's French heritage with influences from West African cultures and Spanish Colonial heritage. The emblem reflects the unique blend of histories and traditions that define the vibrant Creole culture.

Drought, excessive heat cause damage to LA agriculture, forestry

By Olivia McClure, LSU AgCenter

Louisiana agriculture and forestry suffered $1.69 billion in damage due to this summer's drought and excessive heat, according to preliminary estimates by LSU AgCenter experts.

Long stretches of record-high temperatures and little to no rain led to yield and quality losses and increased production costs for farmers of row crops as well as fruits, nuts and vegetables. Livestock producers dealt with animal health issues and struggled to grow adequate forage. Forest landowners faced wildfires while crawfish producers monitored the threat of saltwater intrusion.

In a recently released report, AgCenter economists Kurt Guidry, Jingtang Guo and Raghav Goyal and forester Robbie Hutchins detail the far-reaching effects of the challenging weather conditions on the state's agriculture and forestry — an industry with an annual value of about $11.4 billion.

"Unlike past natural disasters, which impacted only portions of the state for short periods of time, drought conditions coupled with record-high temperatures persisted statewide throughout most of the 2023 production season," the authors wrote.

They based their damage estimates on reports from AgCenter agents and specialists throughout Louisiana.

About half of the total damage, $836.5 million, occurred on farms where crops performed poorly or died. With the lack of usual summer rainfall, farmers also racked up expenses from having to irrigate more often. Soybeans and sugarcane took the hardest

Sugarcane stalks in Chad Hanks' field in Lafayette parish stood 3 feet tall in August, a time that they should have been 7 to 9 feet tall. Hanks was expecting at least a 40% reduction in his crop yields this year due to extremely high temperatures and lack of rainfall. (Photo by Craig Gautreaux/LSU AgCenter) economic hit, with those industries losing a combined $595 million.

Livestock and hay producers sustained $389.2 million in losses stemming from animal deaths, forced liquidation, reduced sale weights, abortions and reduced milk production. Feed costs soared as the heat and drought hampered forage production and limited grazing capacity.

Wildfires burned more than 50,000 acres of forests, destroying $71.4 million of timber. Another $249.5 million in damage was caused by drought conditions that slowed tree growth and forced the replanting of failed seedlings.

The impact to the crawfish industry is estimated to be $139.8 million. The production and harvest season has just begun, however.

"Known issues with water availability and high salinity levels are expected to limit crawfish acres," the report says. "In addition, research, along with historic experiences and knowledge, shows a high correlation between drought and extreme temperatures to reduced crawfish population."

The full effects of this year's extreme weather won't immediately be known.

"There is potential for multi-year impacts to materialize that would increase the challenges faced by certain agricultural industries," the report says.

The full report is available on the AgCenter website at <https://tinyurl.com/msz9dhcb>.

Livestock handling safety reminders & tips

Animals sense their surroundings very differently. Many animals see in black and white, not color. Cows and pigs have poor depth perception and difficulty in judging distances. For this reason cows are apparently unable to distinguish the difference between a real cattle guard and parallel stripes painted on a road. Some animals' eyes sense movement better than human eyes. Cattle have almost 360° panoramic vision and can be spooked by quick movements behind them (see below).

Due to their sensitive hearing, livestock are able to detect sounds that humans cannot hear. Loud noises easily frighten them. Dr. Grandin's research shows high frequency sounds actually hurt animals' ears. This may explain why some animals are skittish and/or balky in unfamiliar surroundings.

The following signs may indicate aggression or fear in the animals you work with:

- raised or pinned (flattened) ears; raised tail or rapidly lashing tail; raised hair on the back;
- bared teeth; snorting; and/or growling
- pawing the ground; stiff-legged posture;

Livestock handling methods may vary greatly, but some general rules apply:

- Avoid quick movements/loud noises.
- Establish a routine and move slowly and deliberately.

- Never prod an animal when it has nowhere to go.
- Touch animals gently rather than shoving or bumping them.
- Keep children away from animals and livestock handling areas.
- Respect animals-their size and bulk make them potentially dangerous.
- Provide special facilities for male animals.
- Be cautious when working around male animals-they are more aggressive by nature.
- Animals have strong maternal instincts so be extra careful around newborns.
- Be cautious around animals that are frightened.
- Always have an escape route when working in close quarters.

USDA opens application period for RAPP

Regional Agricultural Promotion Program designed to help American producers maintain and develop markets for their commodities

USDA Secretary Tom Vilsack has announced the Notice of Funding Opportunity for the first tranche of funding under the new Regional Agricultural Promotion Program (RAPP). USDA is providing up to $300 million in funding in its first year to support eligible projects that enable exporters to break into new markets and increase market share in growth markets.

“It takes significant investment to open and develop new export markets and this new fund will be dedicated to helping provide that start-up capital so that American exporters can diversify their markets and create new opportunities,” said Secretary Vilsack. “In order to capture those markets from our competitors we need to have a presence, address barriers, and showcase America’s high-quality, agricultural products across the world.”

RAPP funds are available to non-profit U.S. agricultural trade organizations, non-profit

State Regional Trade Groups (SRTGs), U.S. agricultural cooperatives, and state agencies that conduct approved market development activities to foster expanded exports and market diversification by encouraging the development, maintenance, and expansion of diverse commercial export markets for U.S. agricultural commodities and products.

Market diversification is an important tool for maximizing growth opportunities for U.S. agriculture, as well to hedge the risk of market contraction and general volatility in the global marketplace. USDA is committed to promoting export opportunities in diverse and non-traditional markets, ensuring that U.S. agricultural commodities and products are available to diverse consumer groups. Therefore, the current top export markets will be ineligible for first tranche of RAPP funding. Those top ineligible markets are: China (including Hong Kong and Macau), Canada, Mexico, and the European Union.

All other markets will therefore be eligible, with the exception of those countries for which sanctions or other legal barriers are in place. Further, the following three regions have been identified for special emphasis through the first tranche RAPP: 1) Africa, 2) Latin American/Caribbean, and 3) South/Southeast Asia. Out of the total funding available for the first tranche of RAPP, USDA will specifically set aside $25 million to fund activities in Africa.

Future tranches of funds will be released in future years to ensure that the focus of funding can be adapted to changing trade environments and market conditions.

RAPP awards will be generally granted for a period of performance of five years, with an expected period of performance starting June 1, 2024, and ending on September 30, 2029. Applications are due by 5 p.m. ET on Feb. 2, 2024. Additional information on RAPP is available at grants.gov.

USDA extends application deadline for discrimination financial assistance

Department incorporates stakeholder feedback to ensure maximum reach

The USDA has extended the deadline for the Discrimination Financial Assistance Program to January 13, 2024, to give eligible farmers, ranchers, and forest landowners more time to apply for assistance. The original deadline was October 31, 2023.

This deadline extension is responsive to feedback from potential applicants, nongovernmental program administrators and community-based organizations working closely with USDA to inform and assist eligible individuals. The new deadline will allow more time to reach and help farmers, ranchers and forest landowners through direct, no-cost technical assistance and training sessions. The extension will also ensure everyone has adequate time to apply, including producers whose harvest season falls during the original application period.

Since the opening of the financial assistance application process on July 7, the Discrimination Financial Assistance Program team has embarked on a nationwide outreach campaign and quickly opened 30 local offices across 26 states. Regional administrators have held well over 600 virtual and in-person events across the country.

Cooperators have also held dozens of virtual and in-person events to complement these efforts while also educating their specific networks. Advertising on digital, print and radio channels targeting potentially eligible individuals and rural communities has also been deployed. These efforts have successfully allowed program staff to reach many potential applicants and will be further increased with the new, extended deadline.

This program delivers on Section 22007 of the Inflation Reduction Act, which provides financial assistance for farmers, ranchers and forest landowners who experienced discrimination in USDA farm lending programs prior to January 2021. Congress provided a total of $2.2 billion for this program. The amount of money awarded to individuals through this program will depend on the number of eligible applicants and the consequences of the discrimination. Eligible individuals have the option to apply online or by submitting paper-based forms via mail or in-person delivery to local program offices. Applicants are not required to retain an attorney and should take precautions to protect themselves from potential scams.

USDA’s commitment to equity spans the Department’s mission areas and agencies. We are actively working to build a USDA that ensures none of our customers are ignored or left behind. The Discrimination Financial Assistance Program is just one of many programs helping USDA rebuild trust, address systemic issues and improve service to people who may have been underserved by USDA in the past.
