SWCD Spotlight

Bodcau SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

The Bodcau Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) is coterminous with Bossier Parish and was formed in October 1988 by dividing from the Dorcheat SWCD. This division followed what Bossier parish landowners quickly perceived as heightened conservation opportunities to address resource concerns along the Red River alluvial plain via the 1985 Farm Bill. Since its 1988 inception, the Bodcau SWCD has often been a step ahead in planning to fulfill its conservation purpose and continues to strengthen private-land conservation efforts throughout Bossier Parish through stakeholder and community engagement, producer partnerships, and resource stewardship programs. With a historically dedicated board and strong collaboration with the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD), and the LSU AgCenter, the district has experienced notable growth and success throughout its history, and especially over the past several years.

Annual Tree Sale Continues to Grow

Bodcau SWCD, in partnership with the LSU AgCenter, resumed its annual tree sale in 2024 after a pause of several years. Since restarting, sales have grown each year, with demand for fruit trees especially high; during the past two sales, they sold out within the first 45 minutes. The district plans to triple its fruit tree inventory for 2027 and expand offerings to include additional plants. This community wide event continues to support conservation by increasing the diversity of native and flowering trees and shrubs and providing affordable conservation planting options for residents.

Feral Swine Perimeter Fencing Program

In 2024, Bodcau SWCD was awarded $200,000 through NACD's national Feral Swine Perimeter Fencing Program, which is administered with funding support from NRCS. Feral swine continues to pose significant threats to agriculture, water quality, native species, and human and animal health.

Through this grant, Bodcau SWCD is cost sharing feral swine exclusion fencing implementation with 12 eligible producers across three parishes to install an estimated 54,739 linear feet of exclusion fencing. Initial site visits were conducted by SWCD board members, with NRCS providing fencing checkouts through their job approval authority to ensure practice specifications are met. Participating landowners have already shared positive feedback, noting that completed projects reduce feral swine access and protect valuable land and water resources. The Bodcau SWCD remains very busy administering this program's many active landowner contracts from the initial sign up, and plans to carefully consider any additional funding opportunities for this practice in light of the existing workload.

COMMISSIONER'S CORNER

Federal Emergency Management Agency Designates 8 Parishes in Louisiana as Natural Disaster Areas Due to Severe Winter Storm

Triggering Presidential Declaration M4900 Amendment 1

This Presidential disaster declaration allows the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) to extend much-needed emergency credit to producers recovering from natural disasters through emergency loans. Emergency loans can be used to meet various recovery needs including the replacement of essential items such as equipment or livestock, reorganization of a farming operation, or to refinance certain debts. FSA will review the loans based on the extent of losses, security available, and repayment ability.

Impacted Area: Louisiana

Triggering Disaster: Severe Winter Storm January 23, 2026, through January 27, 2026

Application Deadline: November 4, 2026

2026 Louisiana 4H Food Challenge

Last week, the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry’s Produce Safety program participated in the 2026 Louisiana 4H Food Challenge!

This competition has been held for the past 5 years and has gained so much traction that, for 2026, it was split into two days, with the final competition taking place in May.

Students from 4th to 12th grade came from across the state to represent their schools and present their knowledge of food safety, MyPlate nutrition values, and cooking skills.

With a budget of $4.50 for a mock-pantry, teams of 2-4 were given 40 minutes to prep, cook, and clean up, as well as to prepare a presentation for a panel of judges.

To make things interesting, every year there is a mystery ingredient; this year, it’s Louisiana Certified Maggie’s Mushrooms. Students had to incorporate mushrooms into their dish and ensure the meal was balanced and healthy, as evaluated by the judges.

Winners, from Lafourche, Evangeline, Acadia, East Baton Rouge, and Vernon Parishes, move on to the final in May.

Founded in 1982 as a traditional tomato farm by Harold and Linda Langridge, Langridge Plant Sales has evolved into a premier 20-acre wholesale nursery in Belle Chasse, Louisiana. Since being acquired in 1999 by long-time General Manager Tony Carter, the company has expanded its facilities to include 70,000 sq. ft. of greenhouse space and 4 acres of outdoor production. Today, Langridge serves independent garden centers and landscape contractors across a 100-mile radius—spanning southern Louisiana and Mississippi—with a diverse inventory ranging from its signature vegetables and citrus to annuals, perennials, and professional landscape supplies.

Savoie's Sausage & Cajun Food Products

#CertifiedCajun

Like the Cajuns themselves, Savoie's Foods started with the humblest beginnings. Since then, the name Savoie's (pronounced "sav-wah's") has come to represent the very essence of authentic Cajun food and cooking. From the popular roux used in gumbos and gravies to the smoked sausage, boudin, and tasso added for that unmistakable authentic flavor, Savoie's Cajun food products have become staples of Cajun cuisine, a part of every family meal and gathering.

"Ms. Eula's products are as authentically Cajun as those our forefathers put on their tables over two centuries ago." -Chef Paul Prudhomme

MARINE FISHERIES

History in Louisiana

Since the 1800s, Louisiana has had a thriving commercial seafood industry in which the catching and selling of crabs, shrimp, oysters, freshwater and saltwater finfish, alligators, and crawfish have supported the livelihoods of many families and communities.

Before refrigeration became readily available in the early 1800s, the exporting of seafood products was difficult. Most seafood products were consumed locally and in New Orleans markets and restaurants. With the development of more sophisticated transportation and freezing techniques in the latter 20th century, Louisiana Seafood could be shipped and consumed far beyond the state's boundaries. Today, Louisiana's seafood is enjoyed worldwide. Louisiana is the largest commercial fishery industry in the U.S.

Key components

Commercial Fishing involves the harvesting of wild finfish and shellfish, such as tuna, cod, shrimp, and salmon, for profit. Commercial fishing is a crucial part of the heritage, culture, and commerce along Louisiana's coast. About 1 billion pounds of seafood, on average, is landed in Louisiana each year for commercial sale, with an estimated dockside value of $300 million.

Marine aquaculture involves the breeding, rearing, and harvesting of aquatic plants and animals in controlled environments. This is such a large segment that it will merit its own industry highlight.

Recreational Fishing - Louisiana's recreational fishing industry is a major economic driver, with over 825,000 anglers generating approximately $1.7 billion in total economic output annually. The state offers highly productive coastal, bayou, and freshwater habitats that support diverse species such as red drum, speckled trout, and largemouth bass, making it a premier fishing destination.

Top Sectors

Shrimp

Economic Impact: Louisiana has led the United States in shrimp landings every year since 2000. Louisiana generally accounts for 28% to 40% of all shrimp caught in the U.S., with typical landings of 70-80 million pounds annually in recent years. The industry creates an estimated $1.3 billion in annual economic impact, supporting about 15,000 jobs.

The two main species harvested are white shrimp (Litopenaeus setiferus) and brown shrimp (Farfantepenaeus aztecus). Usually, brown shrimp are harvested in the spring, and white shrimp are harvested in the fall.

Crabs

Economic Impact: Blue crabs make up almost all of Louisiana's crab harvest. Louisiana is the top producer of blue crab in the United States, providing about 25% of the nation's total supply. The industry generates over $293 million in annual economic impact and supports roughly 3,000 jobs, with annual landings typically exceeding 40 million pounds.

Hard-shell crabbing is a year-round industry, peaking from May to August, with significant production in the Lake Pontchartrain and Terrebonne basins. Soft-shell crabs, a high-value product, are produced from March through November, with peak production between May and September.

Menhaden

Economic Impact: The Menhaden industry supports over 2,000 direct and indirect jobs and contributes $25 million in state and local tax revenue. The menhaden fishery is one of the United States' oldest and most valuable fisheries. More than 97% of Louisiana's total finfish harvest is menhaden.

Roughly 1 billion pounds of menhaden are harvested annually in the Gulf, with 93% of Gulf Menhaden (Brevoortia patronus) caught in Louisiana state waters. They are processed into animal feed, fertilizer, and fish oil.

Oysters

Economic Impact: Louisiana is the top harvester of oysters in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico (Gulf) and has led the United States in oyster landings every year since 2000. There are 1.68 million acres of public oyster grounds in Louisiana, and another 400,000 acres are in private oyster leases. Louisiana’s commercial oyster industry, which accounts for almost 4,000 jobs, has an annual economic impact of $317 million.

Environmental Benefits:

- Shoreline Protection: Oyster reefs act as natural breakwaters, reducing wave energy and protecting coastal marshes from storm-driven erosion.
- Water Quality Improvement: As filter feeders, oysters remove pollutants, algae, and sediments from the water, improving overall estuary health.
- Biodiversity Hotspots: Reefs provide essential habitat, breeding, and nursery grounds for fish, crabs, and shrimp.

Production & Use: Louisiana has more than 200 years of history in cultivating the eastern oyster (Crassostrea virginica). Original efforts focused on moving oysters from productive reefs east of the Mississippi River and transplanting these seed oysters to leases on the western side. This improved not just growth, but also flavor.

Information and data for this article were collected from Louisiana Sea Grant, LSU Ag Center, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, and the 2022 USDA Census of Agriculture.

“Louisiana’s marine fisheries are a cornerstone of our state’s economy, culture, and way of life. The hardworking men and women who harvest our coastal waters carry forward generations of knowledge, resilience, and pride while providing some of the finest seafood in the world. By continuing to protect and promote these vital resources, we are safeguarding the health of our waters and the livelihoods of the communities that depend on them for the future.”

- Commissioner Mike Strain, DVM

Interview with Al Sunseri from P&J Oyster Company

We had the opportunity to speak with Al Sunseri, a dedicated veteran of the seafood industry, to discuss his experiences and insights from his 47-year career at P&J Oyster Company. With an extensive background that includes serving on the Oyster Task Force since 1989 and the Wildlife and Fisheries Commission, Sunseri shares his journey and advice for newcomers in the industry.

Beginning his career unexpectedly, Sunseri started working at P&J while attending Southeastern Louisiana University, stepping in temporarily after a manager’s health crisis. This temporary role turned into a lifelong career. Reflecting on his journey, Sunseri emphasized that success in the seafood industry comes from “making your customers happy and having a reliable, happy workforce.” The key, he notes, is to consistently offer the finest quality oysters at a fair price, ensuring both customer satisfaction and business profitability.

For those looking to enter or expand in this field, Sunseri advises a deep love for oysters (or other seafood products) and a readiness for hard work, as the business is heavily influenced by unpredictable environmental conditions. “Start small and build your business one brick at a time,” he suggests.

P&J Oyster Company prides itself on its top-notch products, offering Louisiana’s finest cultivated fresh “counter” oysters, also known as “half-shell” oysters, perfect for raw or charbroiled preparations. Additionally, they provide freshly shucked oysters suited for a variety of culinary uses, from soups to broiling. Sunseri’s commitment to quality and customer service remains at the heart of his business philosophy, ensuring that P&J continues to thrive in the ever-evolving seafood industry.

LDAF involvement

Seafood Safety Task Force Commission: This commission is overseen by LDAF’s Office of Agro-Consumer Services (ACS). Its purpose is to ensure the safety of seafood processed, distributed, purchased, and consumed in Louisiana and to educate consumers about the health risks associated with imported seafood.

Commercial and Recreational fishing is regulated by the Louisiana Department of Wildlife and Fisheries (LDWF). For more information on their programs and policies visit wlf.louisiana.gov.

SOIL & WATER

CONSERVATION DISTRICT

1st Place Evelyn Hyde, 1st Grade

1st Place Jamison Baucom, 3rd Grade

1st Place , Avery Dodson, 4th Grade

Bodcau SWCD has always prioritized conservation outreach and education and continues to support it in the community. In 2025, the district had 32 students sign up for the annual conservation Poster Contest across grade levels Kindergarten - twelfth. In 1996, when the Louisiana Project WET (Water Education for Teachers) first came to the State, the Bodcau SWCD immediately had its staff trained to serve locally as Project WET facilitators, providing instruction to local formal and non-formal educators on how to incorporate this interdisciplinary conservation curriculum supplement into the classroom and the community. The district remains committed to fostering conservation awareness among local youth and partnering with schools and educators.

The district's 2025 locally led stakeholder meeting was held at the Bossier NRCS/ Bodcau SWCD Field Office. Supervisors also conducted additional outreach throughout the parish to gather input on conservation needs. Top resource concerns identified included water quality, erosion, plant productivity, plant structure and composition, plant pest pressure, sediment transport to surface waters, inadequate water quantity and distribution, and energy efficiency on farms.

Additional Feral Hog Abatement Support & District Equipment and Services

To further assist cooperators in managing feral swine, the district provides access to wildlife control equipment. Bodcau SWCD offers two Pig Brig traps and one Bull Creek Game Changer trap for rent, providing producers with effective tools to reduce feral hog damage on their property. To date, these traps have helped remove over 2,000 feral hogs from the landscape, significantly reducing pressure on local farms and native ecosystems. Producers have expressed strong appreciation for having these control options readily available within the district.

The district also offers a no-till drill for rent, which remains an important resource for local landowners. It is frequently used for both pasture establishment and wildlife management. Producers commonly plant oats and a variety of wildlife mixes, including cereal grains, legumes, clovers, vetch, sorghum, radish, rye, and winter peas.

Supervisor Highlight: Bart Dobson Named Master Farmer of the Year

The district is proud to recognize Supervisor Bart Dobson, who has served on the Bodcau SWCD board for nearly nine years and was recently awarded the prestigious Louisiana Master Farmer of the Year Award, requiring at a minimum, classroom instruction on conservation programs, needs and processes, in-field conservation field day attendance, and a whole-farm Resource Management System Conservation Plan, as well as continuing education credits. A diversified producer of soybeans, corn, wheat, and cattle, Mr. Dobson has been farming since 2013 and is an active supporter of district activities and conservation efforts, assisting with equipment rentals, tree sale preparations, and community outreach.

Bodcau SWCD Board Members

- Patrick Beavais, Chairman
- Danny Martin, Vice Chairman
- Annette Blount, Secretary/Treasurer
- Bart Dobson, Supervisor

Why Your Best Crop Investment Won't Show Up On An Invoice

The advice from champion corn growers David Hula and Randy Dowdy for the upcoming season isn't flashy, but it is a blueprint for success in a challenging year. In a world often distracted by "quick fixes," they insist that disciplined execution of the fundamentals—from the planning process to the final pass of the combine—is what can help you capture high yields and ROI this season.

Here are three specific actions they recommend:

1. Build Your Yield House

David Hula often compares high-yield corn production to building a home. You don't start with the roof; you start with a solid foundation.

“When building a house, you have the design, the foundation, and the framing,” Hula says. “On the farm, those basics look like choosing the right hybrids for your farm, picking the appropriate tillage system, getting your fertility in order, and ensuring your planter is truly field-ready—not just ‘dealer-ready.’”

2. Focus On Timely Actions

A recurring theme for Hula and Dowdy is the distinction between speed and timeliness. In today's world, equipment allows farmers to cover acres faster than ever, but speed doesn't equal success if the timing is off or the practice is poorly done.

“You can’t pay for or buy timeliness,” Hula says. “The grower has to be willing and ready to go when he needs to go. You can’t buy back a lost window of opportunity.”

This means your logistics, maintenance, and finances must all be prearranged and in order before they're needed. When the weather breaks, you should be moving — not deciding on a plan or fixing a planter. This readiness extends through the entire season, Hula adds, and not just at planting or sidedress time.

He shares a powerful example of the payoff when a grower is ready to act. A Midwest farmer called him late last summer and said he had southern rust in his corn crop and asked what he should do.

"I said, 'go spray,' and he claims that fungicide application saved him 62 bushels [an acre]," Hula recalls. "That's the kind of result that could help a person service a lot of debt."

3. Avoid the ‘Shiny Object’ Trap

With a constant stream of new products hitting the market, Randy Dowdy warns farmers not to let the “latest and greatest” distract them from covering the basics.

"Every day, somebody has a new biological or stimulant they're trying to get you to buy," he says. "If everything we were told was worth five to 10 bushels an acre, this job would be a lot easier than it is to make ROI."

His key message: don't let products or unknown practices distract you from implementing the fundamentals well. "Test things, yes—but on top of a solid foundation, not instead of it," Dowdy says

Repeat wildfire offender convicted in Allen Parish

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) has announced the conviction of Timothy L. Caudle for causing a wildfire on September 9, 2025, along Cherry Winche Road in Allen Parish. LDAF investigators found that Caudle was burning debris without establishing proper containment lines and left the fire unattended, resulting in 2.87 acres of damage to a neighboring property.

Caudle pleaded guilty on November 5, 2025, and was ordered to pay a $250 fine, $240 in court costs, $232.50 in fire-suppression reimbursement, and to serve 20 days in jail, suspended.

This marks Caudle's second conviction related to wildfires. On October 19, 2023, a fire that began on his property escaped due to inadequate fire lines, burning 323 acres of Rice Land Lumber Co.'s timber farm and causing over $300,000 in damage. He was convicted on November 18, 2024, fined, and placed on probation.

“LDAF reminds residents that outdoor burning must be conducted responsibly and in accordance with state regulations,” said LDAF Commissioner Mike Strain, DVM. “Neglecting proper precautions can lead to criminal charges, financial penalties, and serious harm to Louisiana’s agricultural and forestry resources.”

The LDAF also urges the public to ensure all outdoor burning is properly contained and monitored to prevent wildfires and safeguard Louisiana's timber resources.

For more information about safe burning practices, contact the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry or visit <https://www.Ldaf.la.gov/land/fire>
