Fathers Coffee

In the latest episode of Crawfish Tales, Commissioner Mike Stain visited Fathers Coffee, a Certified Cajun/Certified Louisiana Company, run by a husband and wife duo, Doug and Martha. Fathers Coffee is more than just a brand; it's a passion project that blends a love for coffee and science. Every cup is meticulously prepared to tell a story to your tastebuds, a testament to the journey of its founder, Doug, and his dedication to quality and sustainability.

A Journey Rooted in Passion

Doug's lifelong dream had always been to become an entrepreneur. After teaching school for 20 years, he ventured into the insurance industry purely for financial reasons, though it was far from enjoyable. Doug's interest in coffee was sparked back in the 1980s when he tasted his first espresso during a trip to Florida and thought to himself, "Ugh, this is horrible." Over the past 30 years, he has been honing his espresso brewing skills. About five years into his journey, he struggled to find quality beans, which led him to start roasting his own. He began with the basics, and after 12 years, he invested in a commercial roaster—a significant financial commitment that took four years to pay off.

Seven years ago, a friend visited him and his wife. As they shared their coffee experiences, she suggested they bring their passion to the local farmer's market. He and his wife, Martha, being partners in this endeavor, decided to take the plunge. They applied to become vendors at the market in Lafayette and were approved. They became the market's second coffee vendor, focusing on espresso while the other offered drip coffee. Back then, the thought of selling 50 drinks was thrilling. Fast forward to today, and they average about 250 drinks, with constant lines and a bustling four-hour market session; they feel truly blessed.

The name 'Fathers Coffee' was an idea of their youngest son and his wife. Fathers is not possessive, it's plural to symbolize a father handing down the company generation to generation. The aim of Fathers Coffee isn't to build a vast empire but to share the joy of coffee and offer the best product possible.

Crafting Excellence with Precision and Artistry

A typical day in Doug's life begins with roasting sessions twice a week. On Mondays, for instance, the warming process starts around 1 p.m., allowing the roaster to reach the correct temperature. During this time, beans are weighed and placed into the hopper. Once roasting is complete, the beans are cooled, weighed again, and then packaged in bags.

Doug's background in teaching math and science greatly influences his business approach. With a degree in industrial

Animal emergency planning

COMMISSIONER

Disasters can vary widely in scale and severity, resulting in both short- and long-term impacts. Some disasters may happen without warning, while others are more predictable. No matter where you live, disasters and emergencies can and will occur. It's essential to create a personal plan, prepare everything you need to execute that plan—such as assembling an evacuation and preparedness kit for every member of your household (including all animals)—and stay informed about local animal disaster plans. Having a plan in place for livestock and pet sheltering and safety before emergencies occur can significantly improve outcomes for both animals and their owners during disasters. Whether you're an individual pet owner or a farmer, here are some helpful tips:

Pet Planning tips:

- Be prepared for a disaster with a Pet Evacuation Kit, including a Pet Evacuation Checklist and supplies. To download the LDAF's Emergency Planning Guide for Pet Owners, visit www.ldaf.la.gov/animals/emergencies. Assemble your Pet Evacuation Kit well in advance of any emergency and store it in an easy-to-carry, waterproof container. Review your plans and kits regularly to ensure that the plans are up to date and that the food and medicine are fresh.
- Microchip your pet and be sure to register the microchip with your current address and phone number and keep the information up to date.

technology, he spent 20 years passionately teaching high school students. This technical expertise plays a crucial role in coffee roasting, where understanding thermodynamics and performing precise calculations is essential. Doug emphasizes minimizing waste by roasting only the necessary amounts, turning the process into a science. This data-driven approach is also used to determine the pricing structure, ensuring efficiency and excellence in his craft.

He finds the process of roasting both fun and slightly unpredictable. Despite his technical prowess, Doug identifies as a sensory roaster. He incorporates a blend of art and science, paying close attention to the visuals, such as the color of the beans, as well as the rate of rise on his computer. He also relies on his senses, smelling the beans and listening to the machine. The aroma is one of the most significant indicators; he can smell when the coffee is nearly done. When Doug drops the beans, if the color is just right—a deep chocolate orange—he knows he has achieved the optimal roast for the best flavor.

A Future Built on Quality, Not Quantity

Fathers Coffee has been roasting a specific premium espresso bean blend grown on small sustainable farms in the mountains of India for almost 2 decades. Doug discovered the California-based company through an interview he saw online. This blend, known as Malabar Gold, proved to be exceptional for espresso, and Doug refers to it simply as "Gold." According to Doug, it is the absolute best espresso he has ever tasted. Over the years, he has identified the tasting notes. The tasting notes are the natural essence that the coffee gives off. This coffee has notes of caramel apple. The apple flavor isn't what you would think; it refers to the type of acid developed during the roasting process, which is a chemical reaction known as the Maillard reaction. This process leads to the development of good acids and browning in foods. Doug credits one of his customers for pointing this out. At the market, a customer ordered a double shot of espresso, referred to as a "father shot," and upon tasting it, remarked that it was "malic." Intrigued, Doug researched "malic" and realized it referred to malic acid, which is found in apples, reminding him of the Cosmic Crisp apple. Fathers also purchases from Gold Mountain Roaster in Maryland.

Symbol of Authenticity

Initially, Fathers Coffee started with the Certified Louisiana label. From a marketing standpoint, being associated with a Certified Louisiana product was important to them, as Doug is from Louisiana. Although not born here, because his father was in the military and they traveled a lot, his family is based in Mermentau, Louisiana. A few years ago, a friend and customer suggested adding something to the packaging to signify that the product is local, but Doug wanted to avoid adding more words. Instead, he thought about an image that would represent only South Louisiana, specifically Cajun/Acadiana, and decided that the Certified Cajun label would be perfect.

Fathers Coffee is sold in Lafayette at the Farmers and Artisan Market on Jefferson Street on Saturdays from 8 a.m. to noon and in Baton Rouge at the Red Stick Farmers Market at Pennington Biomedical Center on Thursdays from 8 a.m. to noon. When shopping for products with authentic Louisiana flavor, look for Certified Louisiana logos in stores, markets, and restaurants. Purchasing products with these logos supports Louisiana businesses and families, keeping dollars local and boosting the economy.

These logos not only guarantee authenticity but also ensure that Louisiana's rich cultural heritage is preserved and celebrated. By choosing these products, you're embracing a story, a community, and a legacy. Whether it's the spicy kick of Cajun seasoning, the sweetness of pralines, or the comforting warmth of gumbo, each product carries the spirit of Louisiana. So next time you see that logo, know you're contributing to a tradition that brings people together, much like the shared experience of savoring a freshly brewed cup of coffee!

CERTIFIED DELICIOUS RECIPES

WAYNE JACOB'S RED BEAN GUMBO

Submitted by Wayne Jacob's Smokehouse
wjsmokehouse.com

INGREDIENTS

- | | | |
|----------------------------------|---|------------------------------|
| ½ cup canola oil | ½ stick Wayne Jacob's Andouille, chopped | 2 tsp. black pepper |
| ½ cup flour | | ½ tsp. cayenne |
| 1 lb. red beans | 1 stick of Wayne Jacob's Smoked Sausage, sliced | 1 tsp. onion powder |
| 4 qt. water | 1 pc. Wayne Jacob's Tasso, chopped | 1 tsp. garlic powder |
| 1 large onion, diced | 1 bay leaves | 3 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce |
| 1 bunch green onions, chopped | 1 Tbsp. salt | 2 cup chicken stock |
| 2 cloves garlic, chopped | | 1 lb. red beans |
| 1 bunch Italian parsley, chopped | | 4 qt. water |

INSTRUCTIONS

1. In a heavy pot, mix oil and flour together and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly to make a dark roux.
2. In a separate pot, boil red beans in water until beans are soft.
3. Add chopped seasonings and cook until onions are translucent.
4. Stir in smoked meats, spices, and Worcestershire to roux mixture, and fry until meat starts to caramelize.
5. When beans are soft, puree and add that and chicken stock to roux mixture. Simmer, stirring often until incorporated.
6. Serve with rice--or you can just use Wayne Jacob's Red Bean Gumbo Mix!

CAJUN SALMON WITH HONEY BUTTER GLAZE

Submitted by Cajun Legacy Seasoning
cajunlegacyseasonings.com

INGREDIENTS

- 1 filet of salmon
Cajun Legacy Cajun Seasoning, to taste
1 stick of unsalted butter
1 cup honey
Salt
Pepper
Olive Oil

INSTRUCTIONS

- The salmon
1. Skin the salmon by laying it over a mesh, skin side up, and pouring boiling hot water over the skin until it releases at the edges and is easy to pull away from the meat.
 2. Once the skin is removed, lightly brush olive oil over entire salmon.
 3. Lay salmon skin side down, on water-soaked cedar plank, or on baking sheet with parchment paper.
 4. Season with salt and pepper and generously coat the fillet with the Cajun Seasoning.
 5. Put in bbq or smoker at 350 F for about 45 minutes to an hour, depending on thickness.
- The honey butter glaze
6. In a nonstick pan, melt one stick of unsalted butter. Add 1 cup of honey. Add Cajun Seasoning to taste. Warm over stove until incorporated.
 7. Baste over the fish and serve.

Emergency Prep

Commissioner's Corner cont.

- Identify friends or family in the event that you and your family must evacuate and verify that your pet(s) are welcome too. If not, make alternative boarding arrangements for your pets.
- Identify pet boarding facilities in the area where you plan to evacuate.
- Locate pet-friendly hotels along your evacuation route and keep a list in your pet's emergency kit. Here are several resources: petswelcome.com, www.travelpets.com, www.dogfriendly.com, or www.pettravel.com.
- Monitor the local parish office of emergency preparedness, animal shelter, or animal control office to get advice and information.
- Leaving your pet at home alone places your animal in great danger. If you leave your pets behind, they may be lost, injured, or worse. It is against the law to leave a dog or cat tied or tethered outdoors in extreme weather during a declared emergency (RS 3:2362).

Large Animal Planning Tips:

- Evacuate animals whenever possible. Map out primary and secondary routes in advance.
- Make available the necessary vehicles and trailers needed for transporting and supporting each type of animal. Also, make available experienced handlers and drivers.
- Prepare livestock trailers
 - Check tire pressure and tires for wear.
 - Test brakes and running lights.
 - Inspect the overall condition of the trailer.
- Ensure all animals have some form of identification. Proof of vaccinations, especially proof of EIA testing for horses.
- Bridles, leads, and special medications.
- Ensure destinations have food, water, veterinary care, and handling equipment.
- If evacuation is not possible, identify an area on the property that is least likely to flood and where livestock can quickly and easily be moved when a hurricane or other severe weather threatens the area.

By following these strategies, pet owners and farmers can better protect their animals during disasters. Whether you're an animal owner, farmer, volunteer, or just a concerned citizen, you can find a variety of additional resources and information on the following websites:

Avian Influenza Detections Drop, But Fall Migration Looms

Over 175 million birds and 1,075 dairy herds have been affected by the current strain of Highly Pathogenic Avian Influenza (HPAI) since it began in February 2022. Detections of HPAI in both poultry and dairy cattle have slowed over the summer months with zero detections in commercial poultry flocks and just one dairy herd detection in the last 30 days. This Market Intel provides an update on the status of HPAI and what to watch for as the fall migration season approaches. Migratory birds moving south along flyways are the most likely to spread HPAI, which survives better in cool conditions, making fall a likely time for HPAI flare-ups.

The Outbreak

Poultry

Since the first detection of the current HPAI strain on Feb. 8, 2022, there have been 1,710 detections of HPAI in 50 states and one territory, affecting nearly 175 million birds. The virus caused the most production loss in turkeys and egg layers due to their close proximity to the Central and Pacific flyways where HPAI is more prevalent. Broiler flocks (chickens raised for meat), while impacted, are raised further from those flyways and have benefited from lower infection rates.

Dairy Cattle

The first detection of HPAI on a dairy farm occurred in March 2024. Since then, HPAI has been confirmed in 1,075 dairy herds in 18 states. Over 72%, or 777, of premises with positive detections were in California. Factors like geographic location and shared employees, equipment and vehicles are risk factors for spreading the virus among dairy farms. The last detection of HPAI for dairy and poultry was a dairy herd that tested positive in California on Aug. 1, 2025.

Impacts

Eggs

Commercial egg laying farms account for over 130 million, or 75%, of the birds affected by HPAI. This significantly reduced the supply of eggs, especially for states that only allow the sale of eggs from cage free production practices, causing egg prices to rise to record levels on several different occasions from 2022-2025. The slowdown in HPAI detections over the summer allowed egg prices to decline. The national average retail price for a dozen eggs in July was $3.59 per dozen, down 40% from the record of $6.22 per dozen set in March of this year.

USDA's most recent Chickens and Eggs report, published on Aug. 22, estimates egg-type chicks hatched in July totaled 58.2 million, up 4% from July 2024. Eggs in incubators were 56.2 million, up 9% from last year. This indicates that the egg industry is recovering, and inventories are strengthening as fall approaches. It's important to note that a single detection on a large operation can have big impacts. This is another reason why egg prices are particularly vulnerable to detections of HPAI.

Broilers(Raised for Meat)

As stated earlier, broiler chickens have been affected much less than egg layers and turkeys in this strain. This is largely because most U.S. broiler production takes place away from the Central and Pacific flyways where HPAI is most prevalent. However, broiler flocks have not gone unaffected. A total of 13.2 million broilers have been affected, accounting for 7% of the total birds affected by HPAI since 2022. USDA projects broiler production will be 47.7 million pounds, up 1.6% from 2024. While higher weights are partially behind the increase, continued strength in broiler chick hatch numbers will provide a cushion if HPAI detections show up in broiler flocks this fall.

Turkey

Over 18 million commercial turkeys have been affected by HPAI since 2022, accounting for about 10% of all poultry birds in this outbreak. USDA will release its annual Turkeys Raised report on Sept. 26. This report contains annual data for turkeys raised in the U.S. in 2025. Turkeys are the number two category impacted by HPAI. The number of turkeys raised has fallen dramatically over the last 15-20 years, dropping by 25% from 275 million in 2008 to just 205 million turkeys in 2024. Fewer turkeys raised means the industry is more vulnerable to HPAI and other diseases. While there have not been any recent detections of HPAI in turkey flocks, avian metapneumovirus has also been driving production lower.

Dairy

HPAI in dairy herds has also slowed over the summer months with only five dairy herds testing positive between June 1 and Aug. 28. The HPAI strain affecting dairy cattle is genetically different from the strain spread by wild birds. This strain mostly affects lactating dairy cattle.

PERCENT OF BIRDS AFFECTED BY CATEGORY

Feb. 2022 – August 2025

Note: WOAHP (World Organisation for Animal Health) Poultry refers to all birds kept in captivity for the production of any commercial animal products, or for breeding for this purpose and all birds used for restocking supplies of game or for breeding for this purpose, until they are released from captivity.

WOAHP Non-Poultry refers to birds not fitting the WOAHP definition of poultry, such as those in private households, that do not pose the same level of commercial risk.

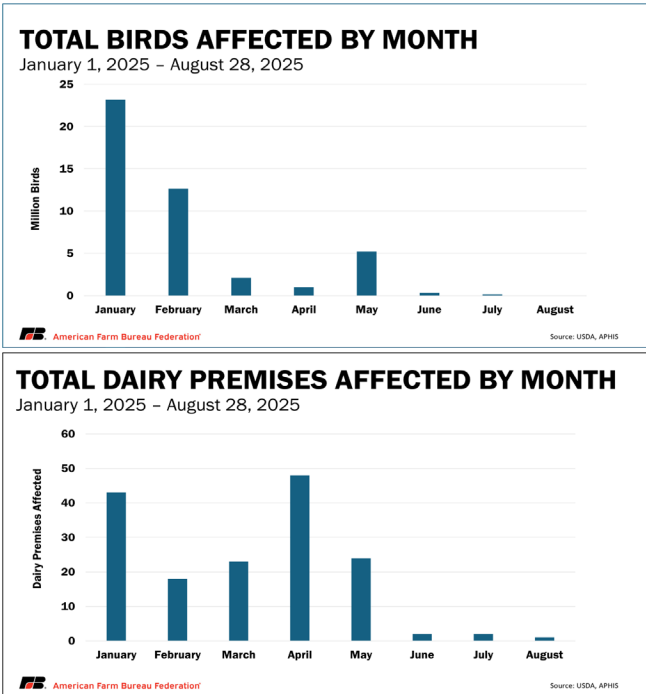

Symptoms of the virus include reduced milk production; thicker, concentrated or colostrum-like milk; reduced feed consumption; abnormal or loose feces; lethargy; dehydration; and fever. Most cattle recover after a couple of weeks and mortality rates are very low, with deaths occurring in only about 2% of affected cattle. A recent study by Cornell University researchers estimated economic losses due to decreased milk production, mortality and early herd removal were $950 per infected cow. Even if the cow makes a full recovery, farmers face an average of $367 in milk losses per infected cow, according to the study.

American Farm Bureau Federation called on USDA to help dairy farmers offset their risks of full participation in the response to HPAI. As a result, USDA is now providing financial assistance to eligible dairy farmers for any milk losses due to HPAI in dairy cattle. Since USDA began accepting applications on July 1, 2024, over $390 million has been paid out to 989 processed applications through USDA's Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP).

Conclusions

Detections of HPAI in both poultry and dairy cattle have slowed over the summer months, allowing stakeholders in both industries time to improve biosecurity and get ready for the upcoming season. USDA offers two free voluntary biosecurity assessments to help farmers get ahead of any potential HPAI threats. One focuses on wildlife risk mitigation and the other on general biosecurity improvements. USDA had completed 948 biosecurity assessments as of June 26 and more have been completed since then. These assessment-driven biosecurity improvements will soon be tested as migratory birds begin their annual trek south for winter shortly and the risk of HPAI detections increases.

$1M in state funding awarded for Louisiana foodbank efforts

Feeding Louisiana works to end hunger and improve food access in every corner of the state, and the state is helping to put money where your meal is.

Supported by $2.5M in state funding in 2023 and 2024, Feeding Louisiana partnered with 82 local farmers to deliver locally sourced food to parishes across Louisiana.

The organization recently announced that it has received $1 million from the Louisiana legislature to continue its efforts to promote healthy food accessibility in 2025.

This funding, approved by the Joint Legislative Committee on the Budget on August 8, 2025, will be directed towards the purchase of locally grown produce and proteins for distribution through the state's five regional food banks.

Pat R. Van Burkleo, Executive Director of Feeding Louisiana, expressed gratitude for the Legislature's continued support. "This funding helps us feed more families while creating reliable markets for Louisiana's small and mid-sized farmers," he stated. "We are proud to demonstrate proven results across all 64 parishes."

The food purchased with the new funding will be distributed through Feeding Louisiana's network of five regional food banks:

- Second Harvest Food Bank of Greater New Orleans and Acadiana
- Greater Baton Rouge Food Bank
- Food Bank of Central Louisiana
- Food Bank of Northeast Louisiana
- Food Bank of Northwest Louisiana

This strategic investment bolsters food access and supports local agriculture, ensuring that families across Louisiana have access to healthy and nutritious food options.

Fisheries & Seafood Leadership Program

The Louisiana Sea Grant Fisheries & Seafood Leadership Program (FSLP) is a one-year program divided into four, two-day workshops for networking and skill-building. It includes seminars with experts, on-site tours, personal skills improvement, and meetings with business and government leaders in Louisiana.

Who should apply?

- Participants directly working in fisheries and seafood production in Louisiana including:
- Fishing industry: captains, deckhands, owners
- Docks and processors
- Science and extension
- Fisheries managers
- Insurance
- Finance
- Political staffers

Why attend?

- Leadership skill building
- Effective communication
- Emerging technology
- Business and marketing trends
- Commodity policy issues
- Public policies at the national, state and community levels
- Economic development

The program will have a tuition of $400 to help cover costs, but scholarships may be available.

Would you like to be a sponsor?

Please contact us for details on how to help support the program.

USDA Forest Service invests in four projects to restore state and private forests across the South

Recently, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service announced it is investing more than $2.1 million in four projects across nine states in the Southern Region to restore state and private forestlands. These investments directly support the agency's efforts to reduce wildfire risk, increase timber production, and expand rural economies, while providing critical support to landowners across management jurisdictions as they work to promote healthy, productive forests that benefit rural communities.

The investments, totaling more than $7 million nationwide, are being delivered as competitive grants through the Landscape Scale Restoration program. Of the total funding, $600,000 will support two projects for federally recognized tribes.

Projects awarded in the Southern Region are:

- Increasing Resilience of Longleaf Pine Forests on State and Private Lands ($600,000)
Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina

The work will increase timber management and prescribed fire for wildfire risk reduction. It includes 50,000 acres treated to reduce or mitigate hazardous fuels, and 2,000 acres of trees planted.

- Forestry Workforce Promotion & Training Program ($600,000)
Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina

The program aims to develop a skilled workforce capable of implementing science-based forest management practices, with 550,000 board feet of timber produced.

- Three-State Cooperative Upland Oak Restoration in Central Hardwoods Region ($600,000)
Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky

The work will restore and manage upland oak ecosystems (including invasive species removal), which is critical to forest health, wildlife habitat, timber and other forest products. Plans include 250 acres treated to reduce or mitigate hazardous fuels; 2,912 acres treated for insects and disease; 250 acres treated for invasive plants; 20,000 trees planted.

- Southeastern Partnership for Forests and Water ($333,333)
South Carolina, Georgia, Texas

The partnership increases collaboration across eight Southeastern states and implements targeted forest management projects across multiple watersheds in three of those states. Plans include 2,100 acres under new forest management plans; 50 acres tree planting.

In the Southeast, protecting wildlife habitat and restoring important forest ecosystems such as longleaf pine and oak are important priorities to ensure continued economic productivity of rural working lands.

Between 2018 and 2024, the Forest Service awarded 359 competitive grants to support projects in 47 states and five territories for a total of $91.2 million dollars in federal funding.

A complete list of funded projects for Fiscal Year 2025 is available on the Forest Service website at: <https://www.fs.usda.gov/managing-land/private-land/landscape-scale-restoration/funded-projects>

About the Forest Service: The USDA Forest Service has for more than 100 years brought people and communities together to answer the call of conservation. Grounded in world-class science and technology- and rooted in communities-the Forest Service connects people to nature and to each other. The Forest Service cares for shared natural resources in ways that promote lasting economic, ecological, and social vitality. The agency manages 193 million acres of public land, provides assistance to state and private landowners, maintains the largest wildland fire and forestry research organizations in the world. The Forest Service also has either a direct or indirect role in stewardship of about 900 million forested acres within the U.S., of which over 130 million acres are urban forests where most Americans live.
