Thumb-Driven Design

Thumbs drive most interactions on mobile screens. 75% of users touch the screen with one thumb. We use hands interchangeably.

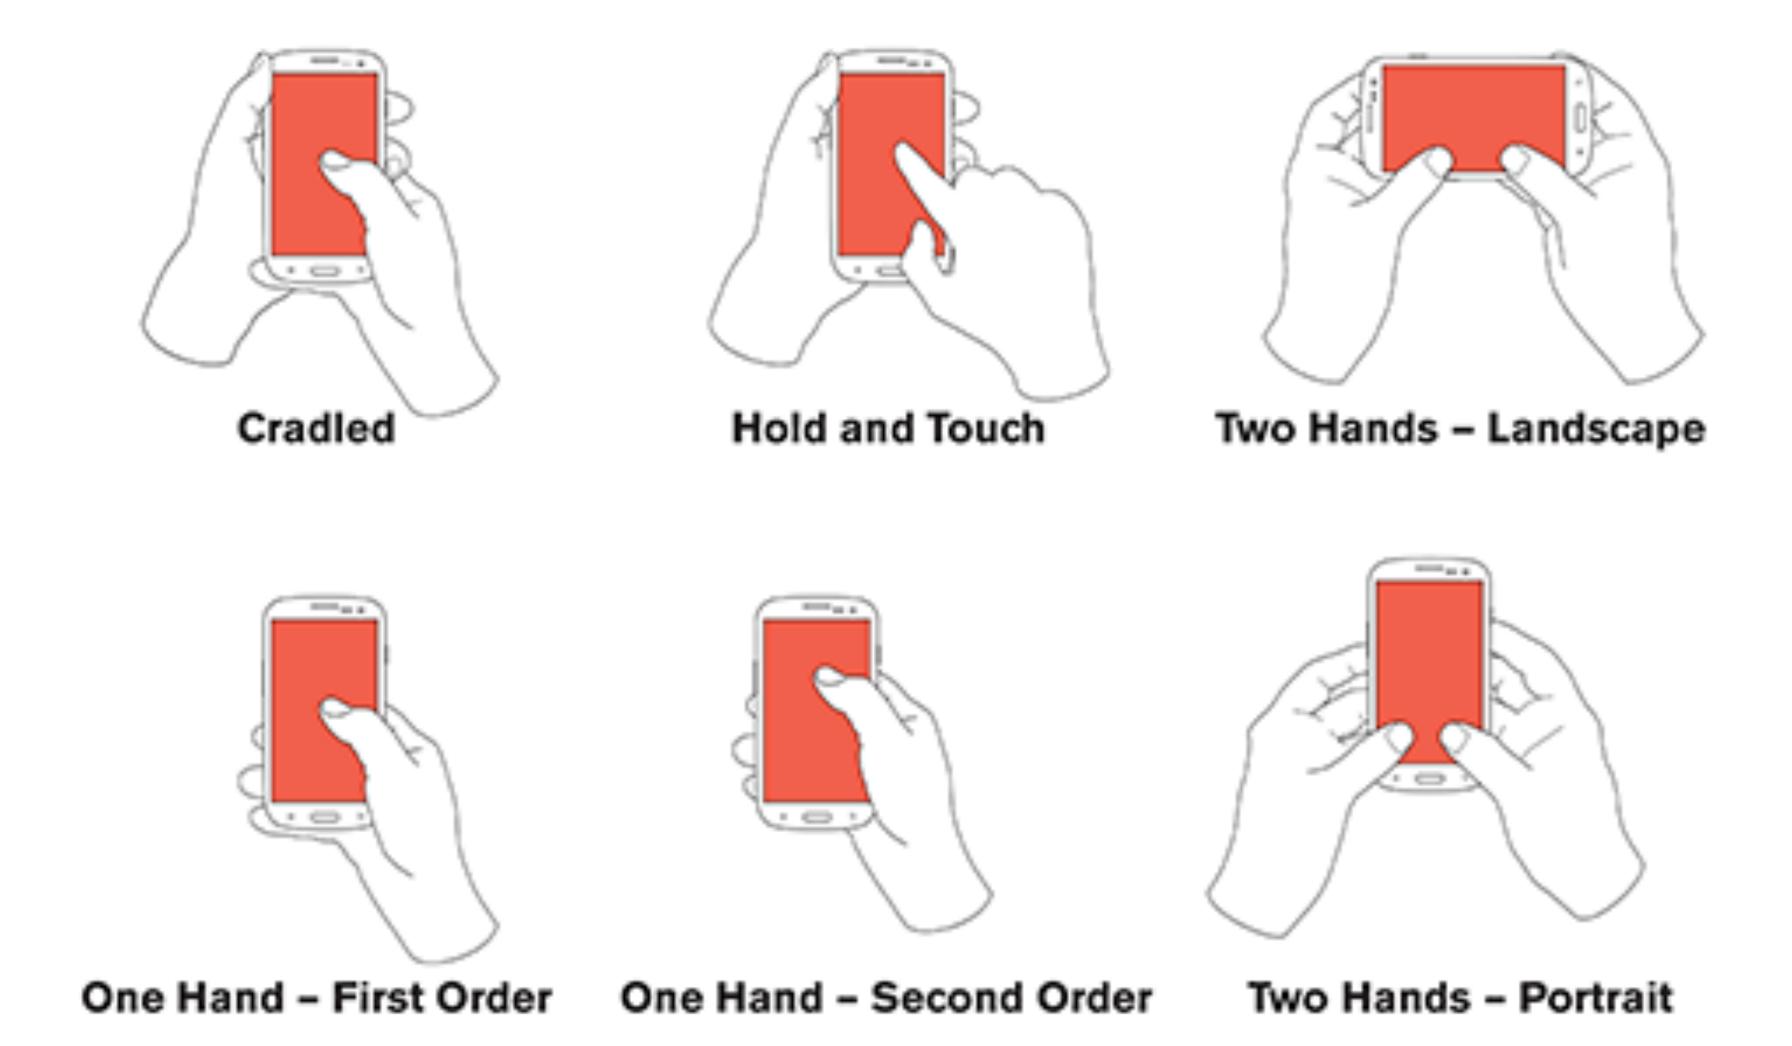

Thumb-Driven Design

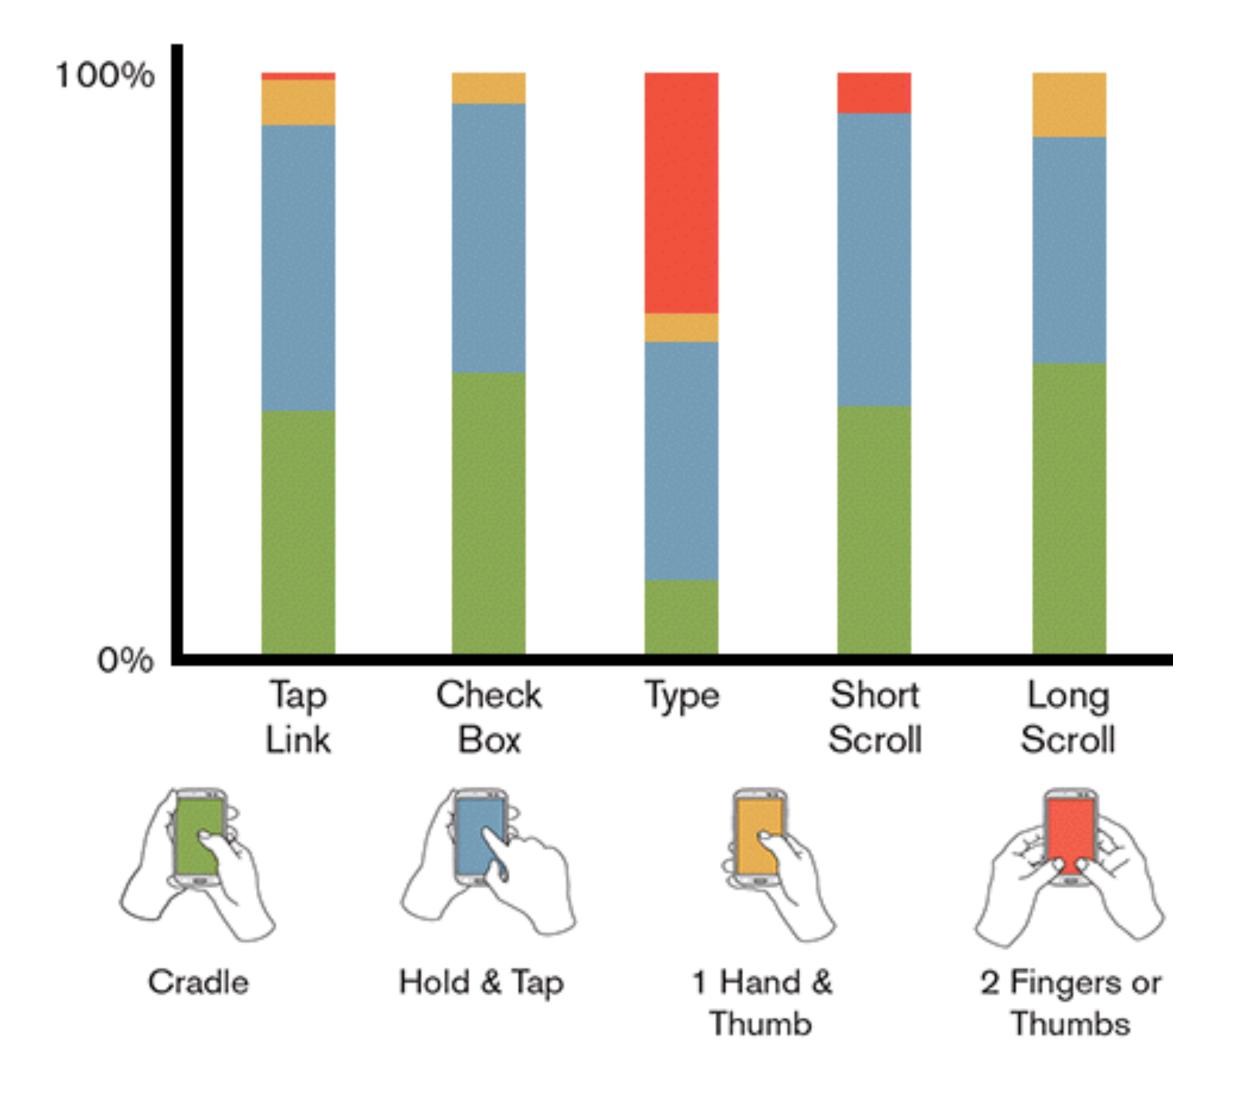

Thumb sweep area is limited, but we are good at shifting our grip across the back of the phone. It also depends on contact patch.

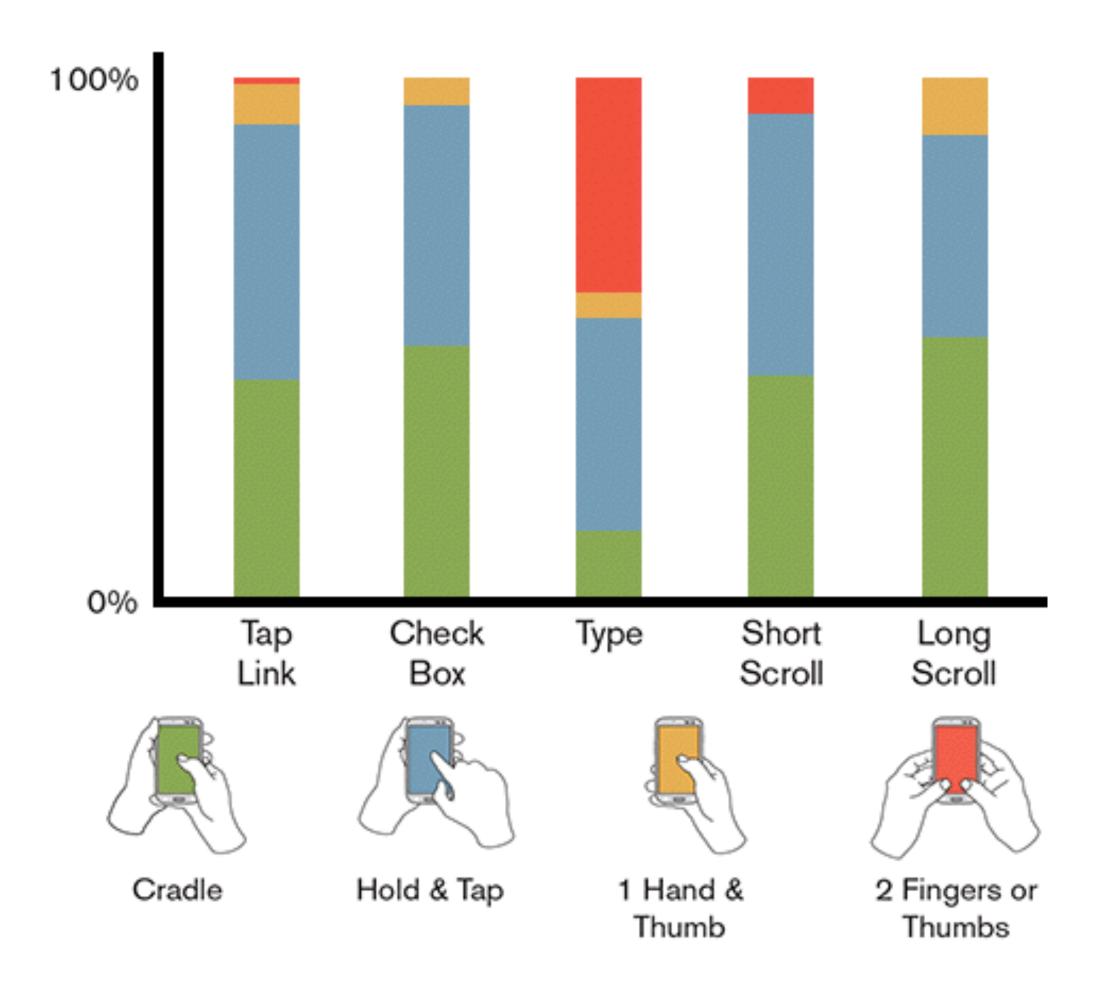

Thumb-Driven Design

Thumb sweep area is limited, but we are good at shifting our grip across the back of the phone. It also depends on posture.

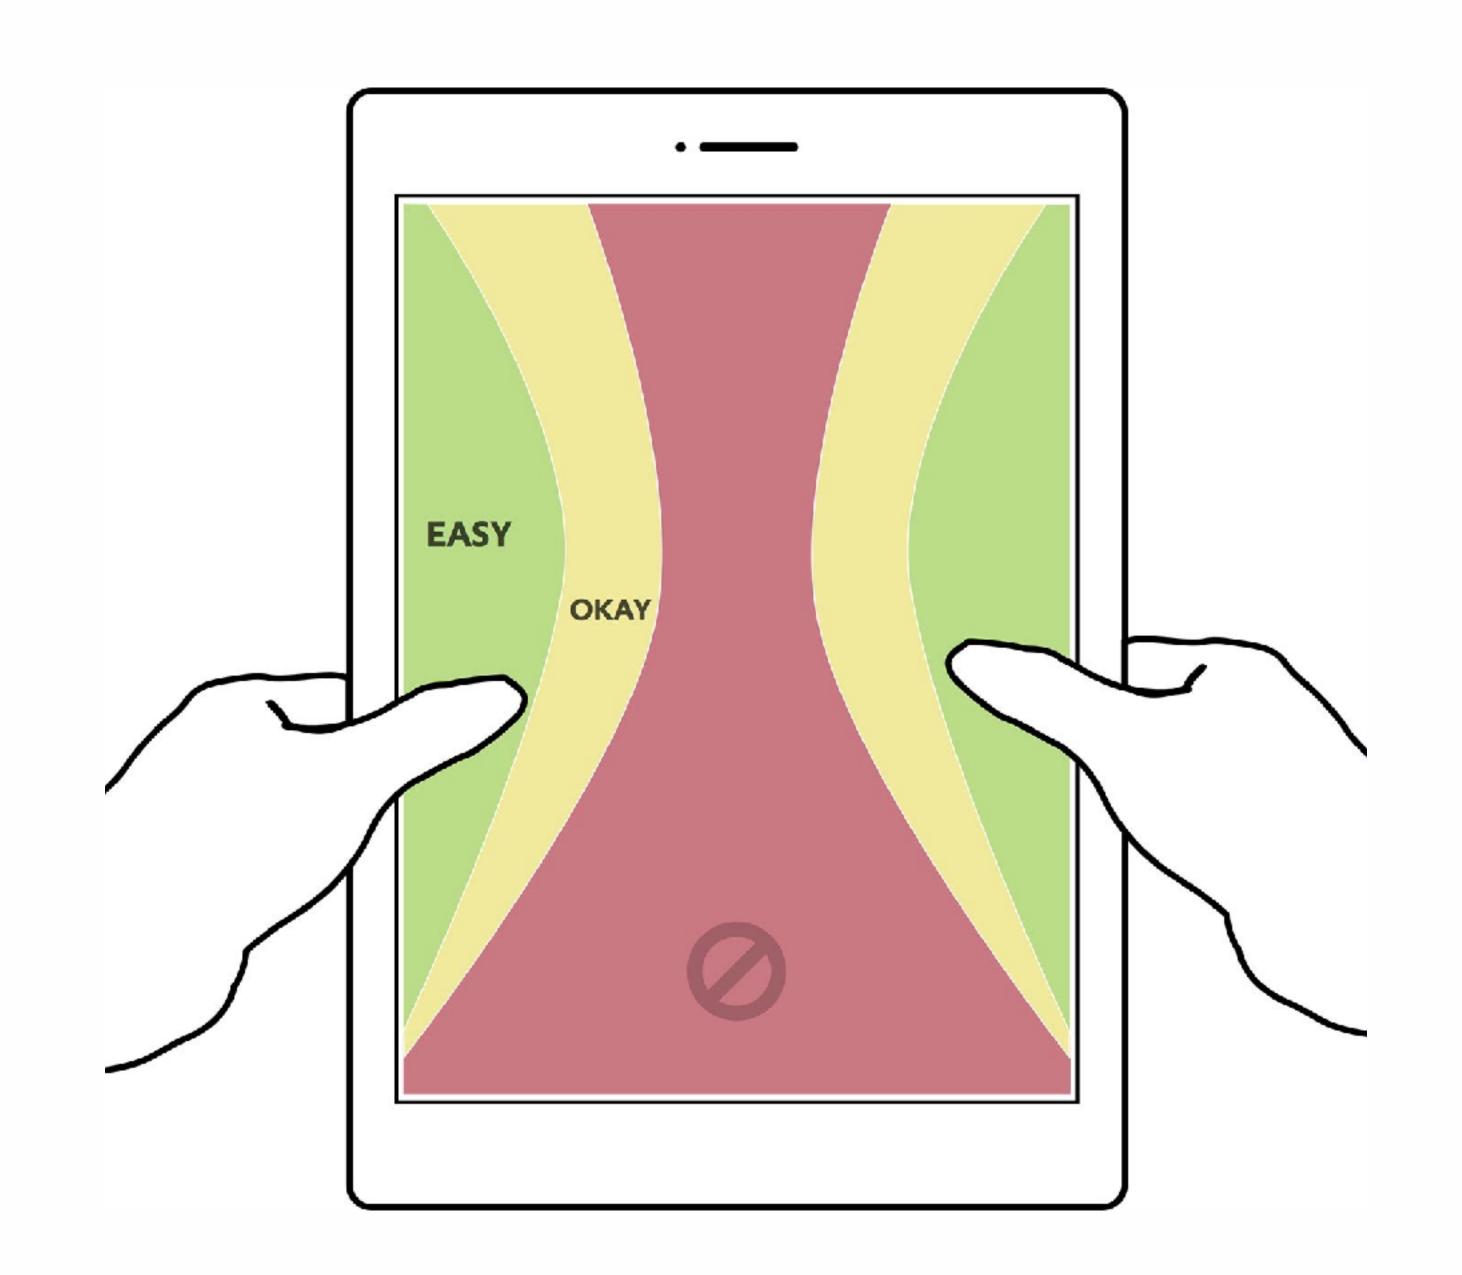

Grip Changes When Needed

People frequently shift their grip, for specific types of interactions, depending on their task/context.

36% cradle their device, using a second hand for reach or stability.

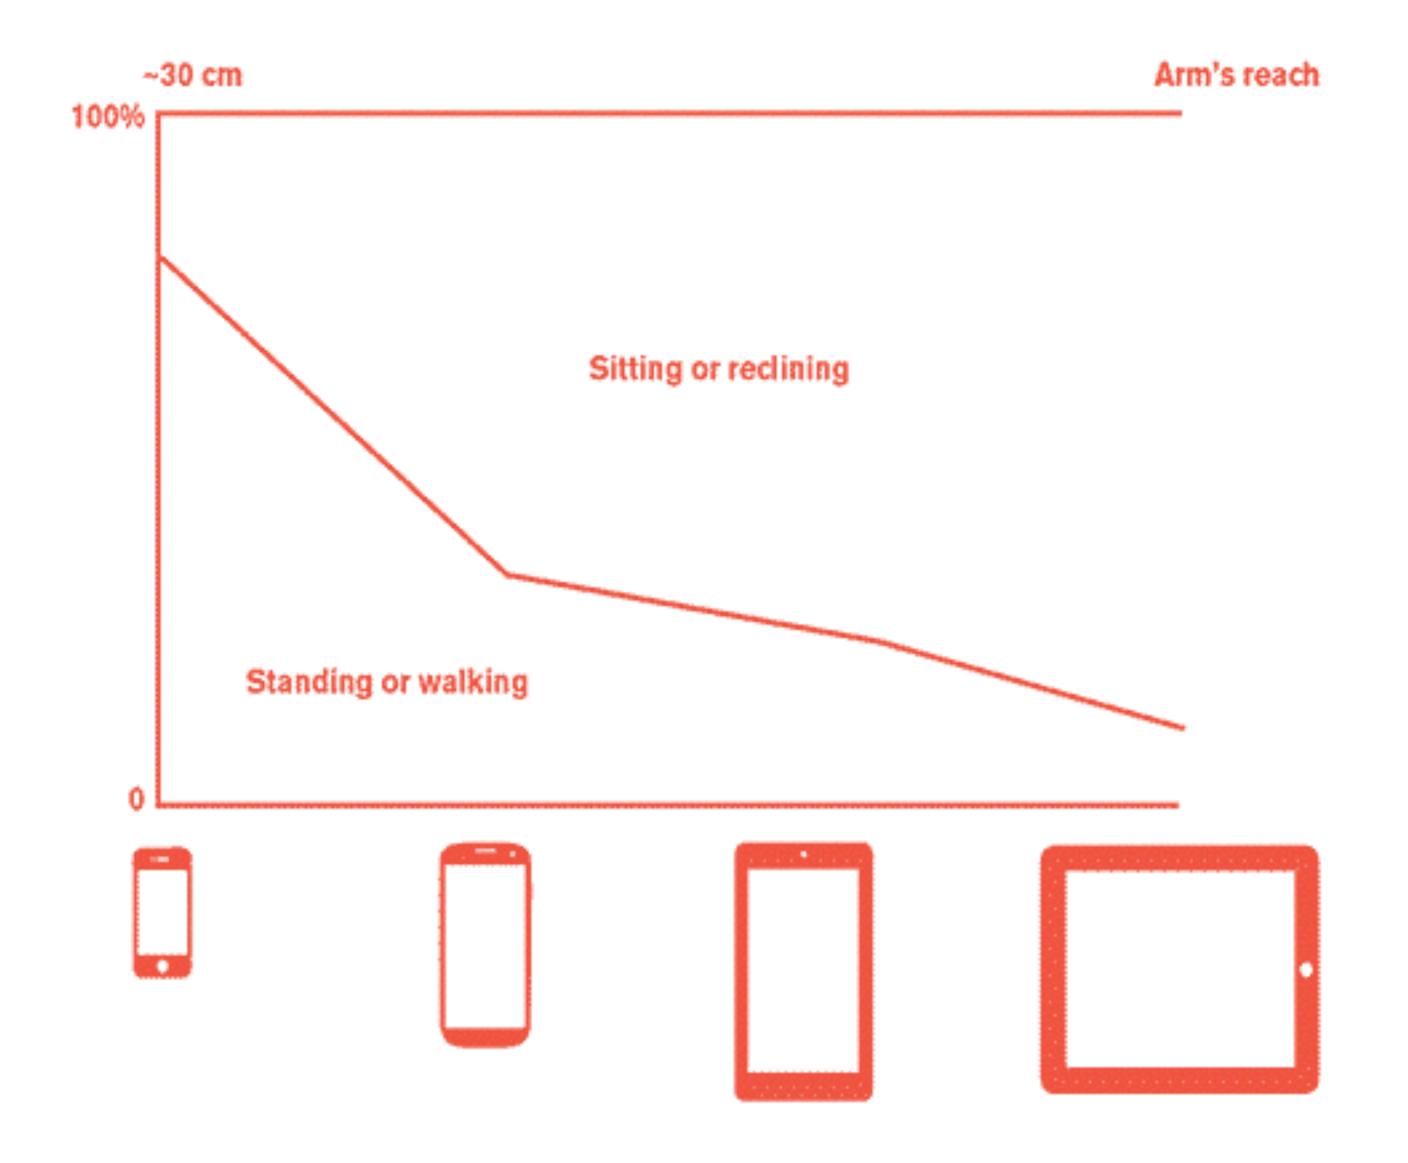

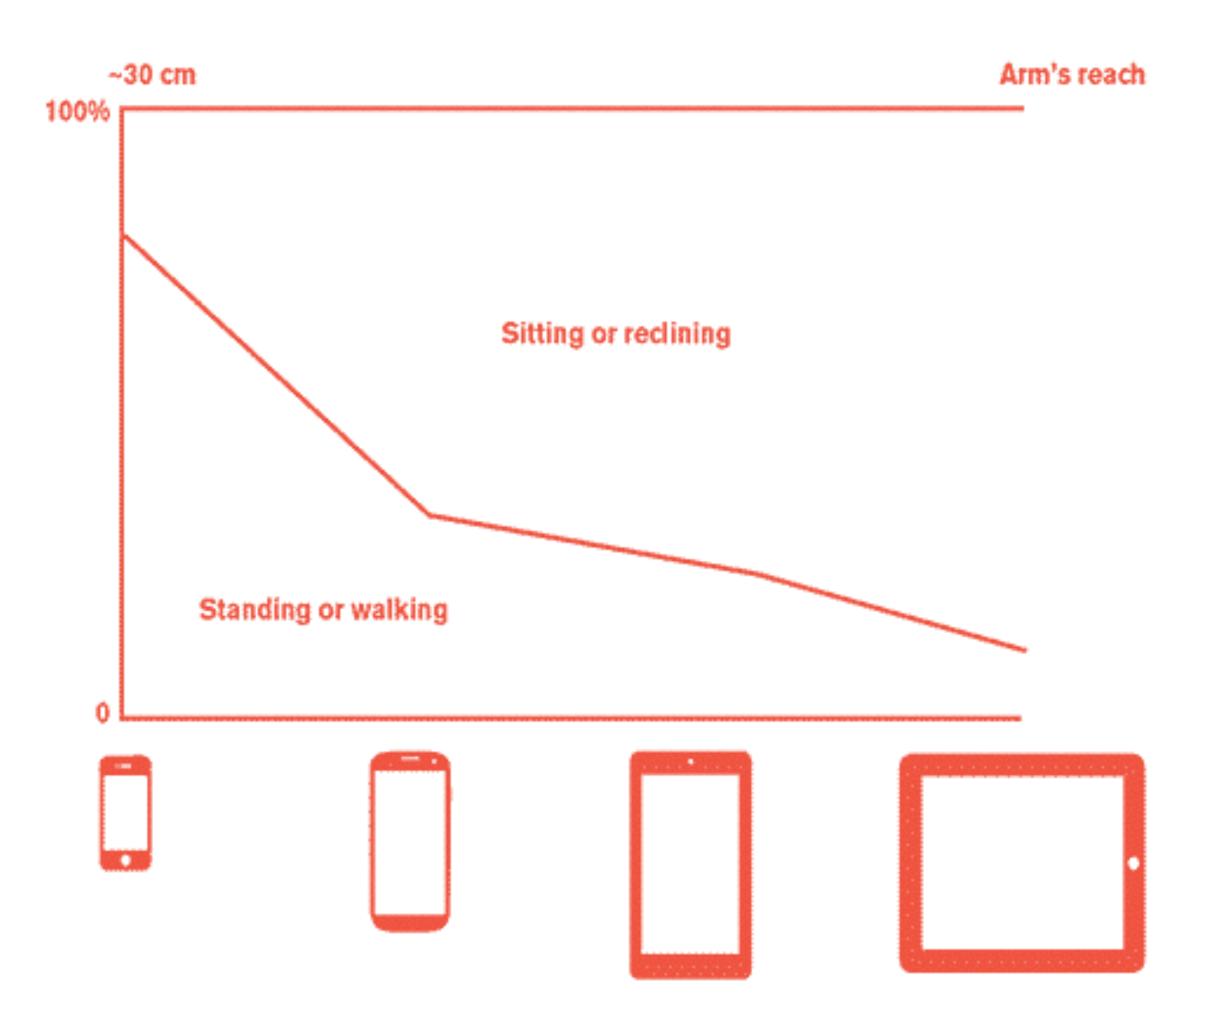

THE PINKY BOUNDARY

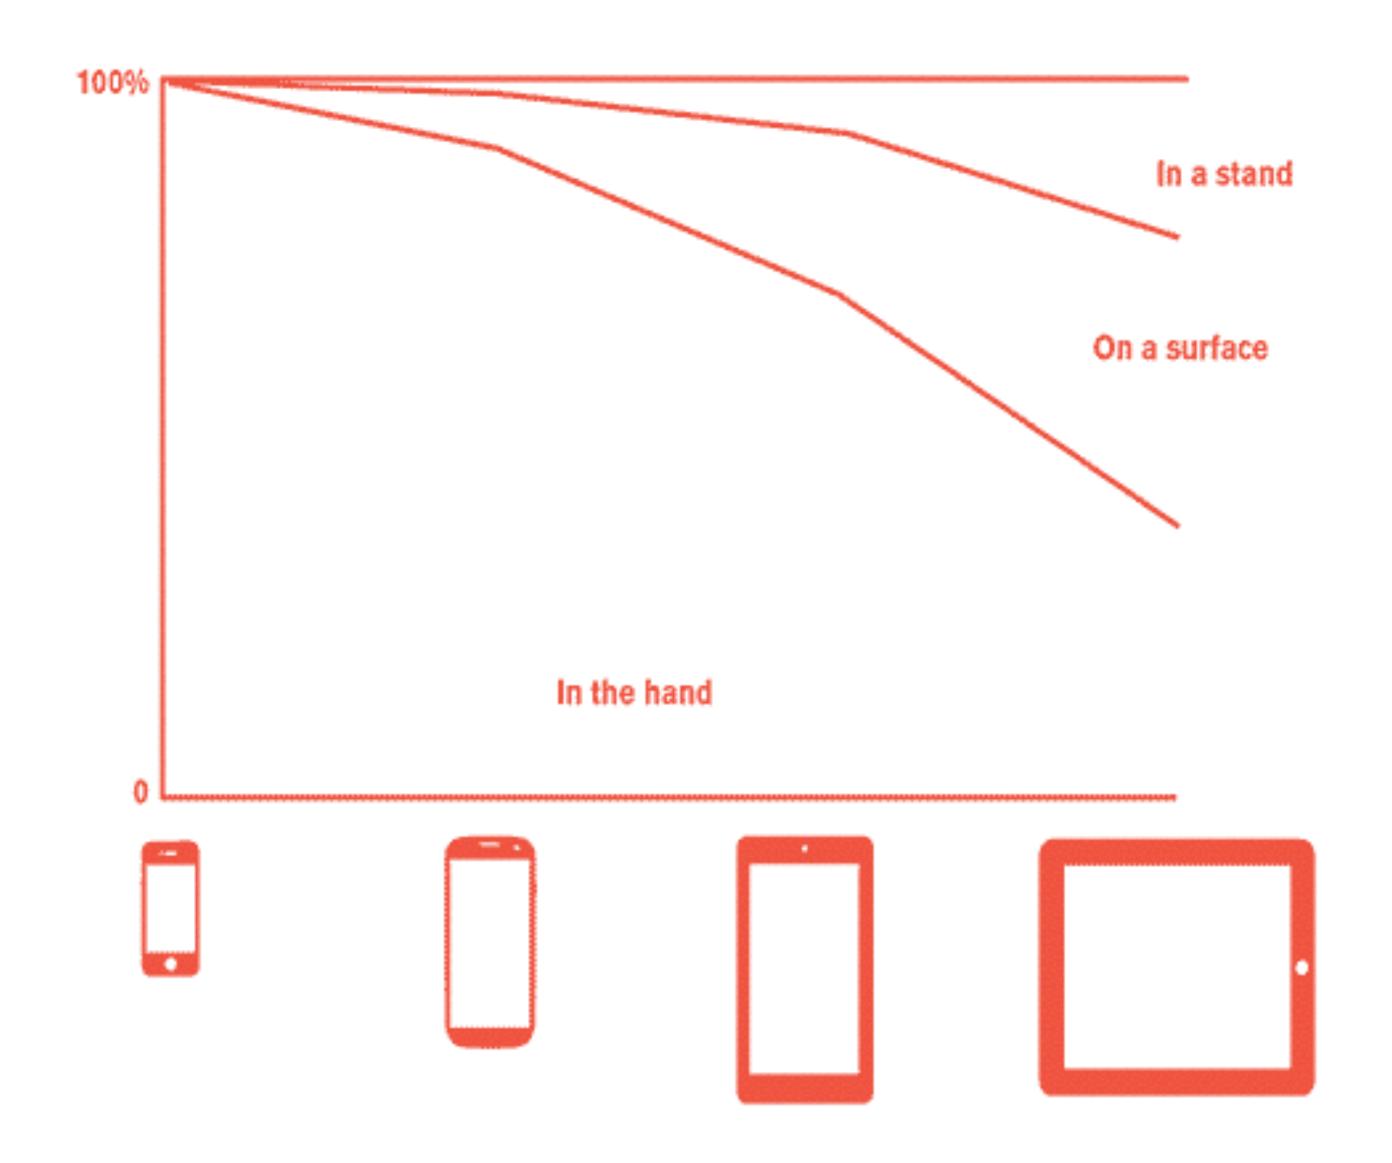

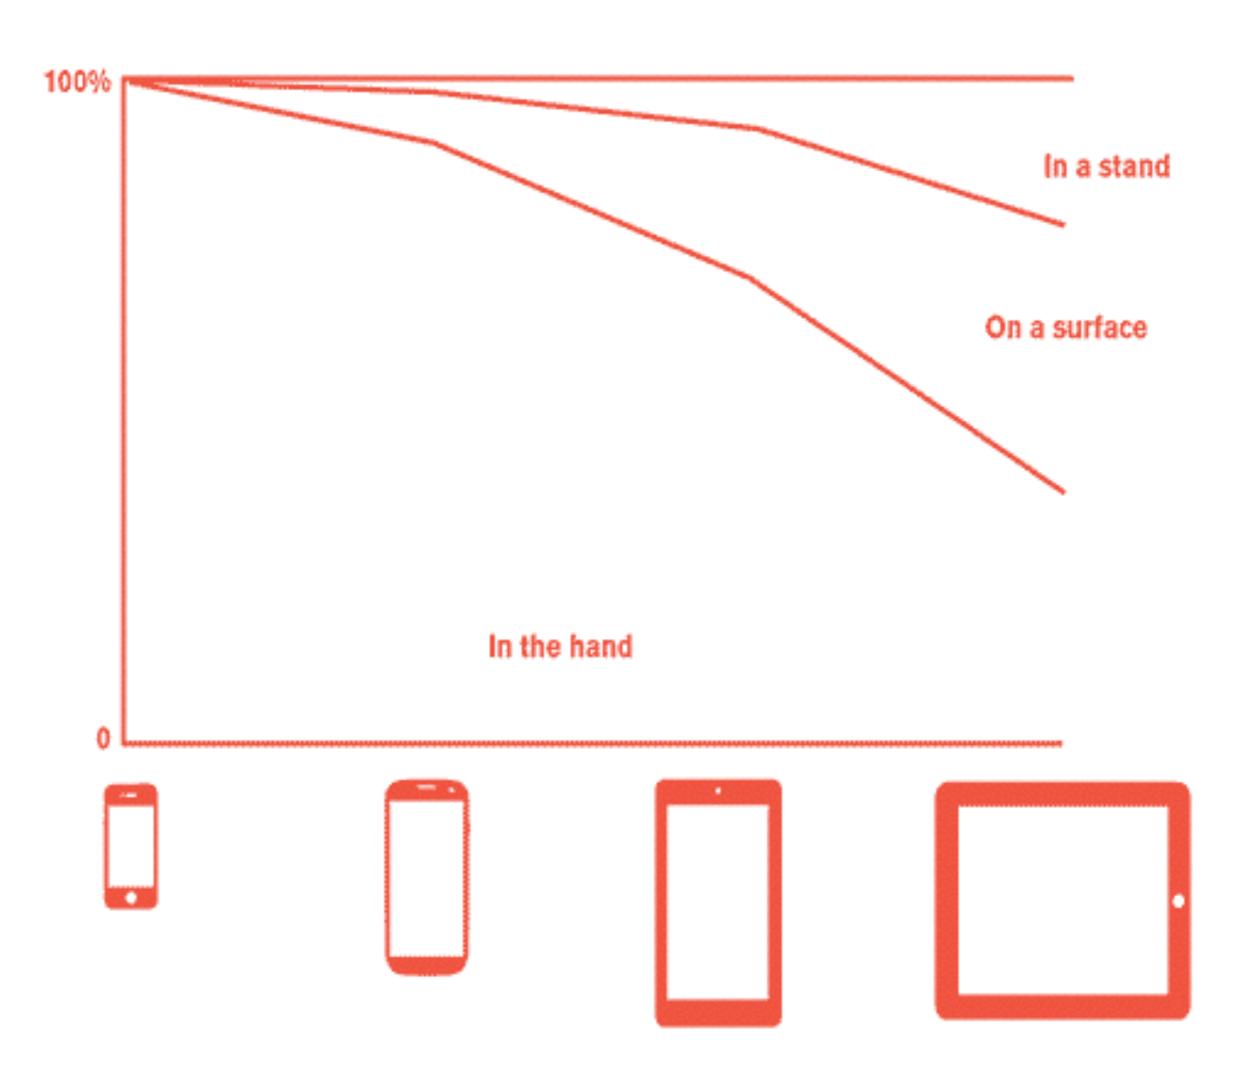

Distance From Eyes Varies

The larger a device is, the further people hold them away from the eyes. We use larger devices when sitting down more than phones.

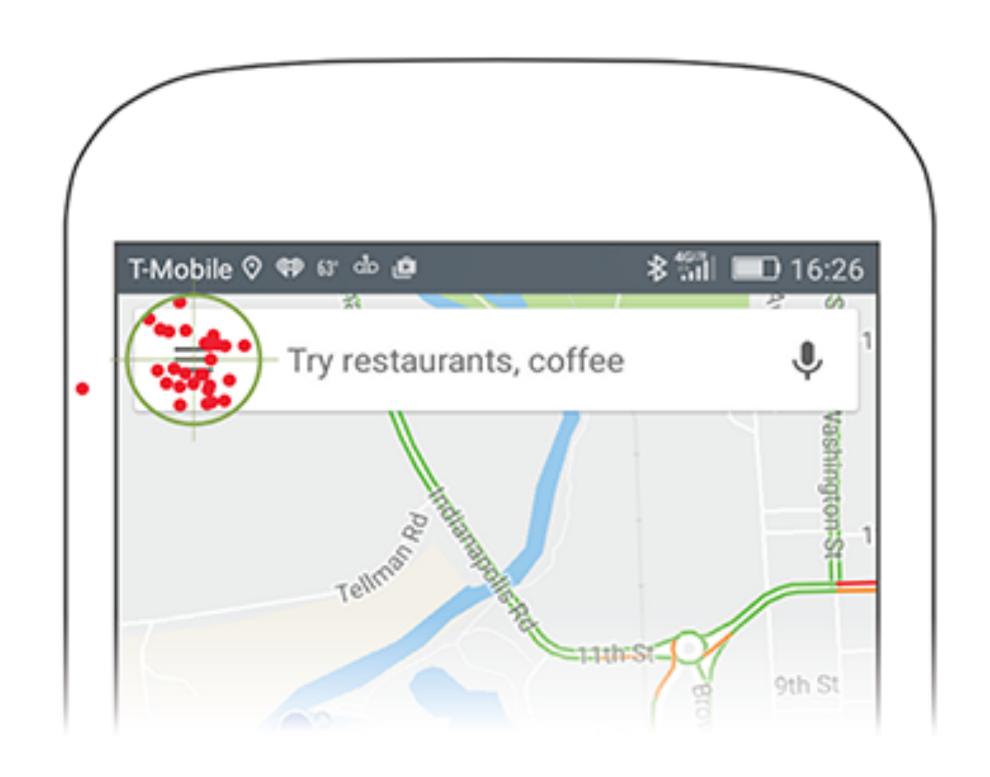

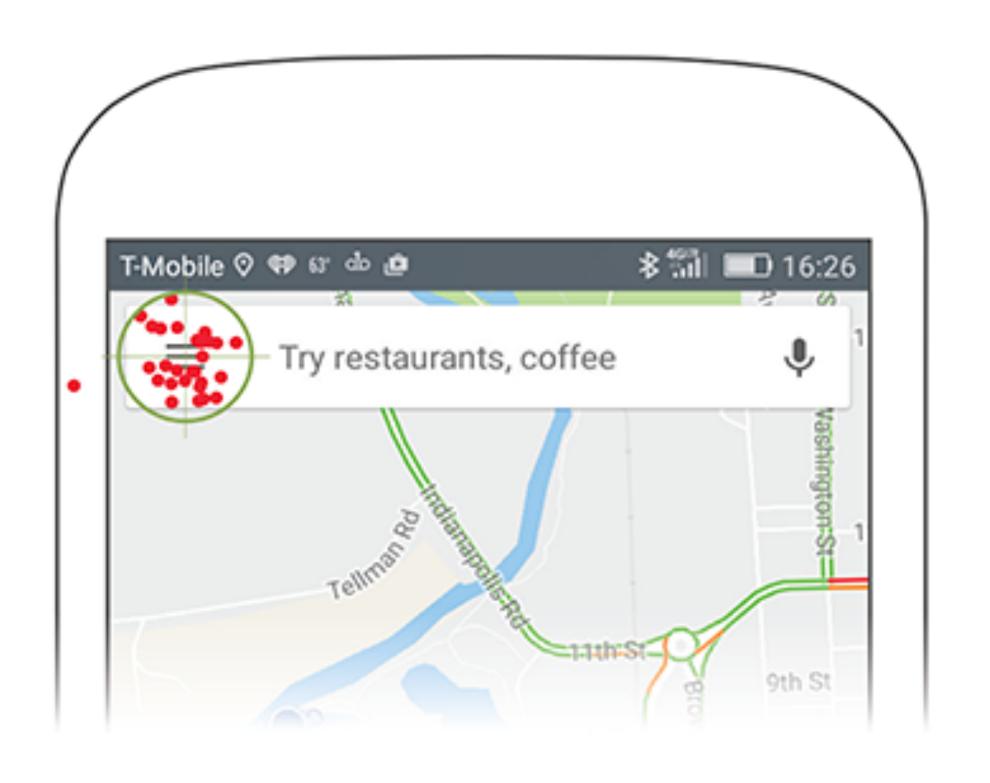

Small Devices Used On The Move

The smaller a device is, the more people use it on the move. Larger devices are usually residing on the desk or on a stand.

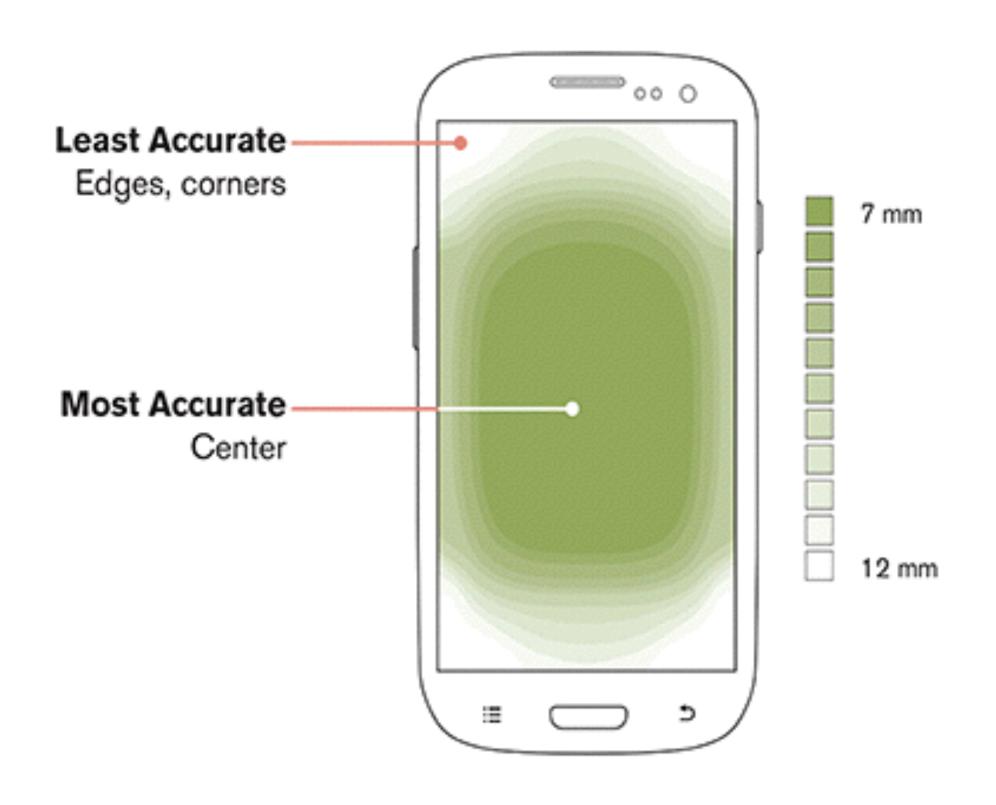

Input Is Always Imprecise

Humans rarely hit tap targets on mobile, so our designs should accommodate for misses with generous padding.

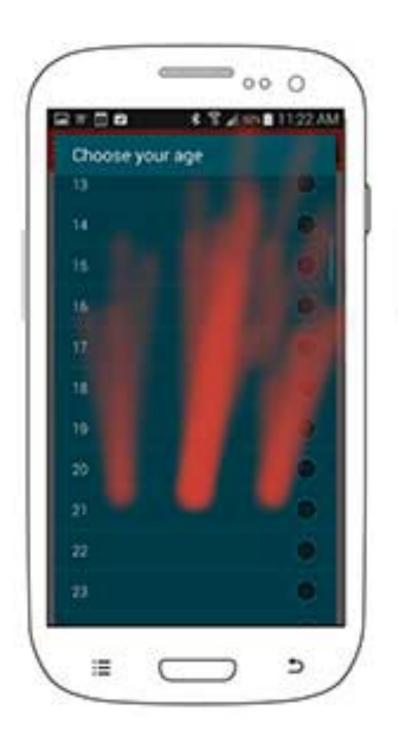

Central Area Matters Most

The further away hit targets are from the center, the larger the padding should be (7–12mm). We prefer to tap around the center.

Central Area Matters Most

The further away hit targets are from the center, the larger the padding should be (7–12mm). We prefer to scroll around the center.

Design Around Priorities

Primary content at the center.

Secondary actions along the top and bottom edges (e.g. as tabs).

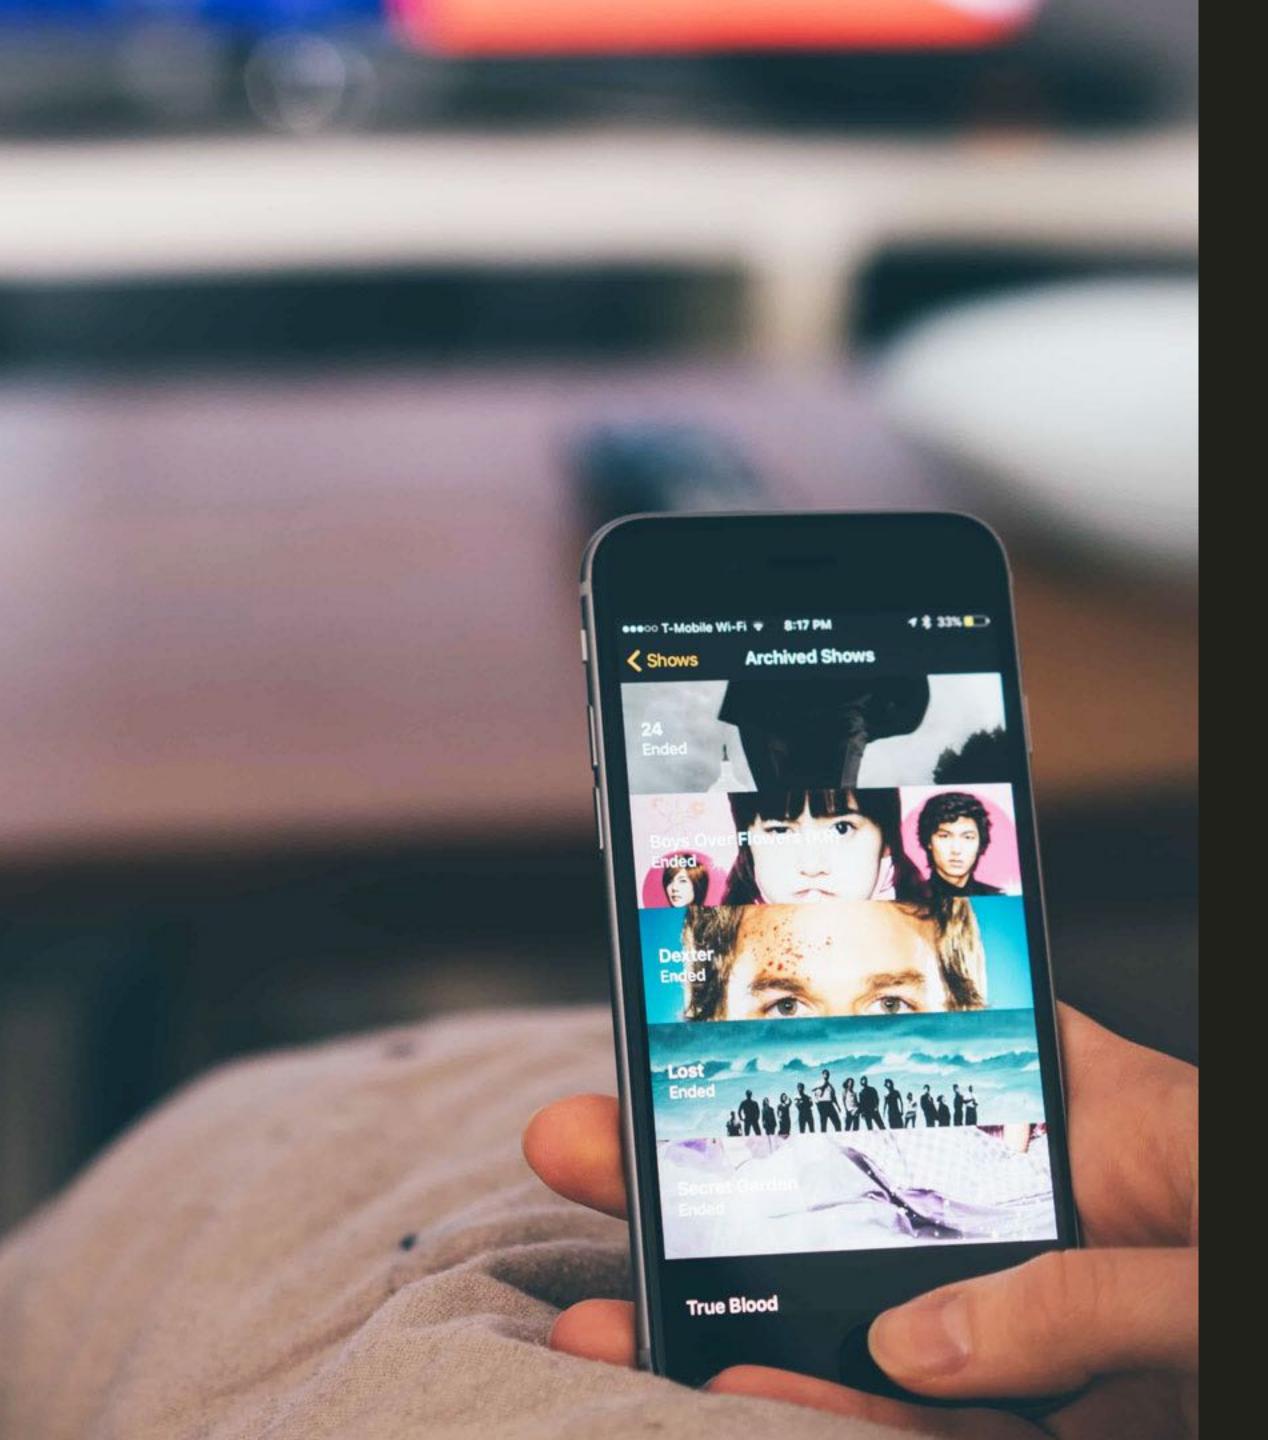

Tertiary functions behind menus, in one of the corners.

Customers Are Often Distracted

Often in-between, tired, stressed, busy, hungry—wishing for instant gratification. Abandonment rates depend on time of the day/week, motivation and cognitive effort.

Customers Are Often Distracted

Humans are using our stuff while they are doing something else.

More often than not, that else is way more exciting or interesting.

INTRODUCTION

Ignorance isn't bliss; a system rooted in faulty assumptions and unproven hunches risks terrible mistakes and cannot represent the

An example from Struik's Lectures on Classical Differential Geometry

p. 23

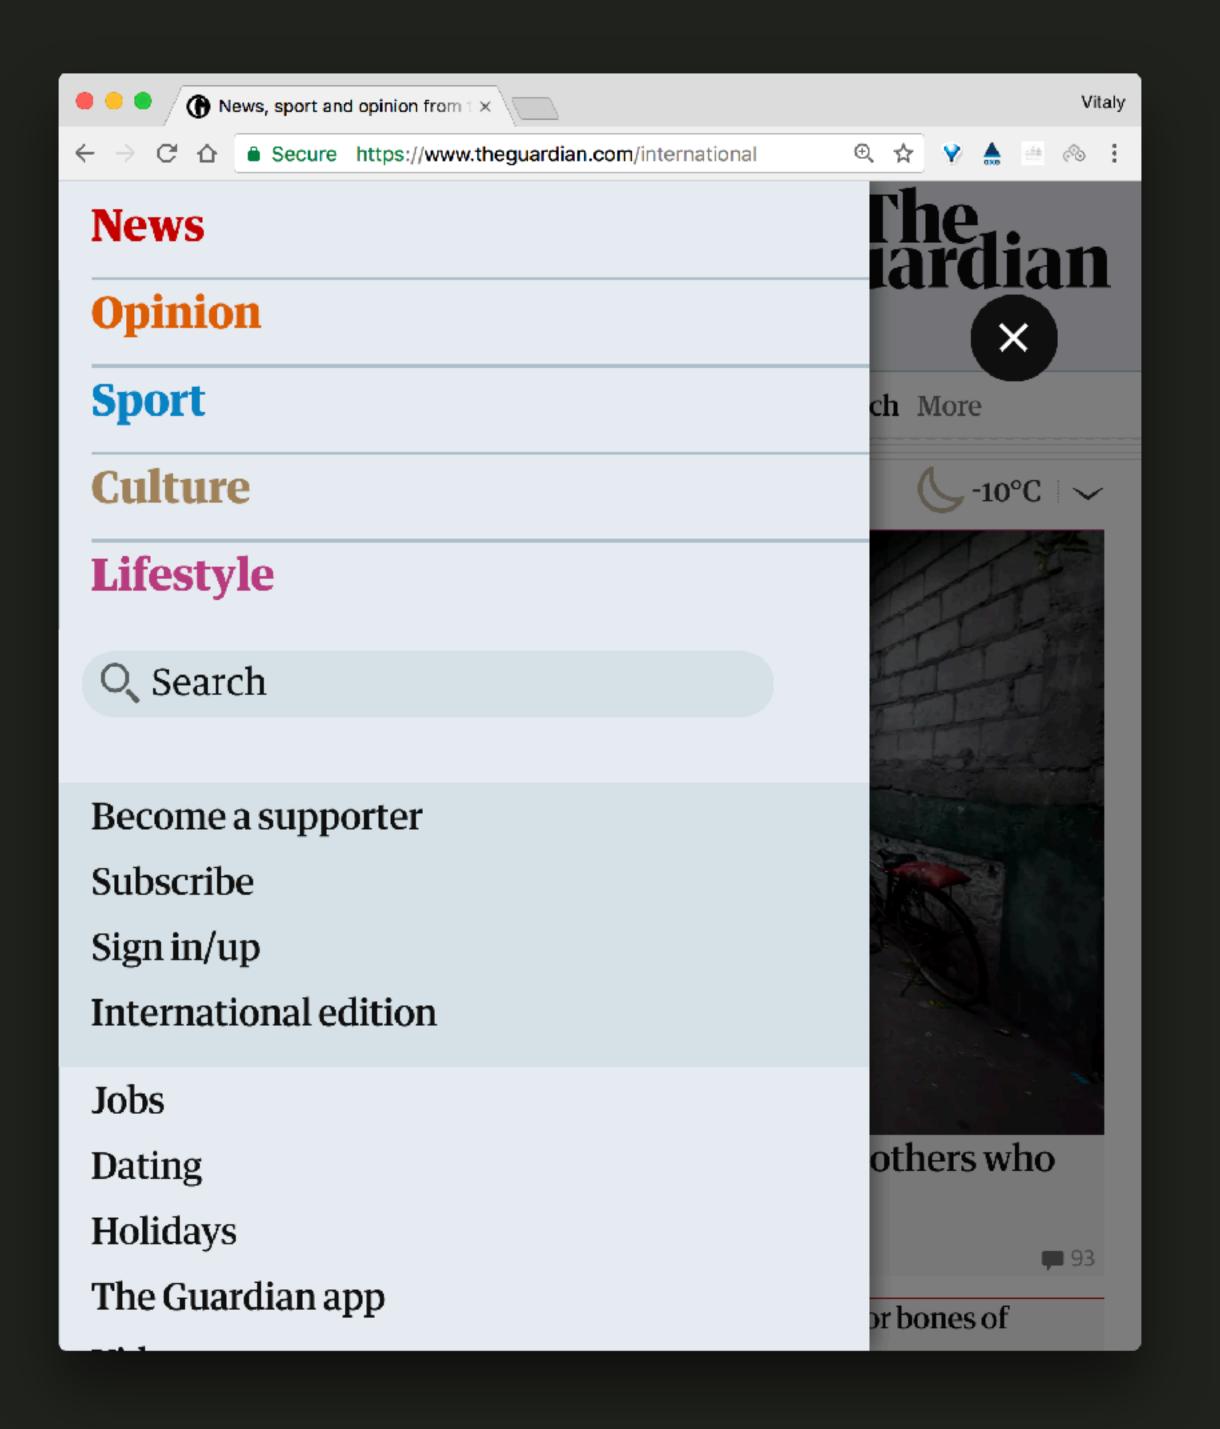

MathJax: Collapsing Differe X

This procedure is simply a generalization of the method used in Sects. 1-3 and 1-4 to obtain the equations of the osculating plane and the osculating circle. Let f(u)near $P(u = u_0)$ have finite derivatives $f^{(i)}(u_0)$, i = 1, 2, ..., n + 1. Then if we take $u = u_1$ at A and write $h = u_1 - u_0$, then there exists a Taylor development of f(u) of the form (compare Eq. (1-5)):

$$f(u_1) = f(u_0) + hf'(u_0) + \frac{h^2}{2!}f''(u_0) + \dots + \frac{h^{n+1}}{(n+1)!}f^{(n+1)}(u_0) + o(h^{n+1}).$$

Here, $f(u_0) = 0$ since P lies on Σ_2 , and h is of order AP (see theorem Sec. 1-2); $f(u_1)$ is of order AD. Hence necessary and sufficient conditions that the surface has a contact of order n at P with the curve are that at P the relations hold:

$$f(u) = f'(u) = f''(u) = \dots = f^{(n)}(u) = 0$$
: $f^{(n+1)}(u) \neq 0$.

Accordion Design Checklist

- 1. How do you design a category's title?
- 2. What icon do you choose to indicate expansion?
- 3. How do you indicate collapse/expanded states?
- 4. Where exactly do you place the icon?
- 5. Should all section be collapsed or open by default?
- 6. What happens if a user clicks on the category?
- 7. What happens if a user clicks on empty space?
- 8. Should expanded section collapse automatically?
- 9. What if there isn't enough space to display all items?
- 10. Should accordion contain a link to category's main page?
- 11. Should the user be scrolled to top with expanded accordion?
- 12. Do you include the "expand all / collapse all" functionality?
- 13. Do we keep the state of an accordion on reload?

Summary

- use chevron or plus to indicate expansion
- icon maps well with the direction of expansion
- chevron changes direction (top/down)
- plus changes to close/minus
- place the icon left-aligned or right-aligned
- entire bar should act as expansion
- thumb should be large enough for tapping
- category's main page is listed in a dropdown
- expanded state could collapse automatically

Responsive Table Layouts

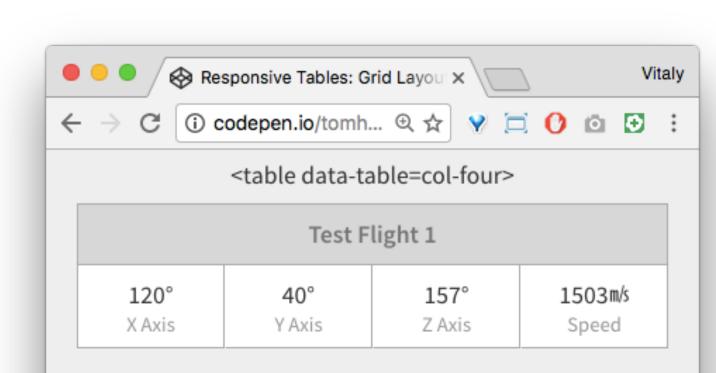

Grid Layout using Element Queries

These table styles are a cleaned up version of some table styles from a fantasy sports web app. The original table styles were written using regular CSS @media queries, but as soon as the tables needed to be added to a layout with a sidebar or other content we had to re-do the breakpoints all the time and we ended up with a lot of duplicate code.

These tables use <code>@element</code> queries instead, via <code>EQCSS.js</code>, so the responsive breakpoints are based on the width of the <code></code> elements themselves rather than the width of the browser. This way this one set of responsive styles should be able to style a <code></code> placed into any layout.

• Suggest the "best" option

Based on customer's preferences, calculate that "match score" and guide users towards best option.

Feature Comparison Checklist

- 1. How do you indicate that comparison is possible?
- 2. What happens when the first item is added for comparison?
- 3. Have you disabled the option to compare only one selected item?
- 4. Before comparison, do you change the link/highlight the selected product, or display a comparison bar/lightbox?
- 5. How do users unselect a selected option?
- 6. Should we suggest products to compare at some point?
- 7. How many items may a customer add for comparison?
- 8. Do we use animation or transitions to display comparison?
- 9. Do we display the price (or price development), a link to the individual product page, ratings, reviews, a thumbnail, the product's model name, and price-matching tooltip?

Feature Comparison Checklist

- 10. Can users switch to see only differences/similarities/all?
- 11. Do we group and collapse attributes by default?
- 12. Do we track attributes consistency/comparable meta data?
- 13. Do we highlight columns and rows upon hover or tap?
- 14. Can the user move columns left and right?
- 15. What if the user compares items in unrelated categories?
- 16. How do we allow users to add more items for comparison?
- 17. How do we allow users to remove items from comparison?
- 18. Should we ask customers to choose preferred attributes?
- 19. Do we suggest a "winner" among the compared products?
- 20. Does every action have visual and/or aural feedback?

Feature Comparison Checklist

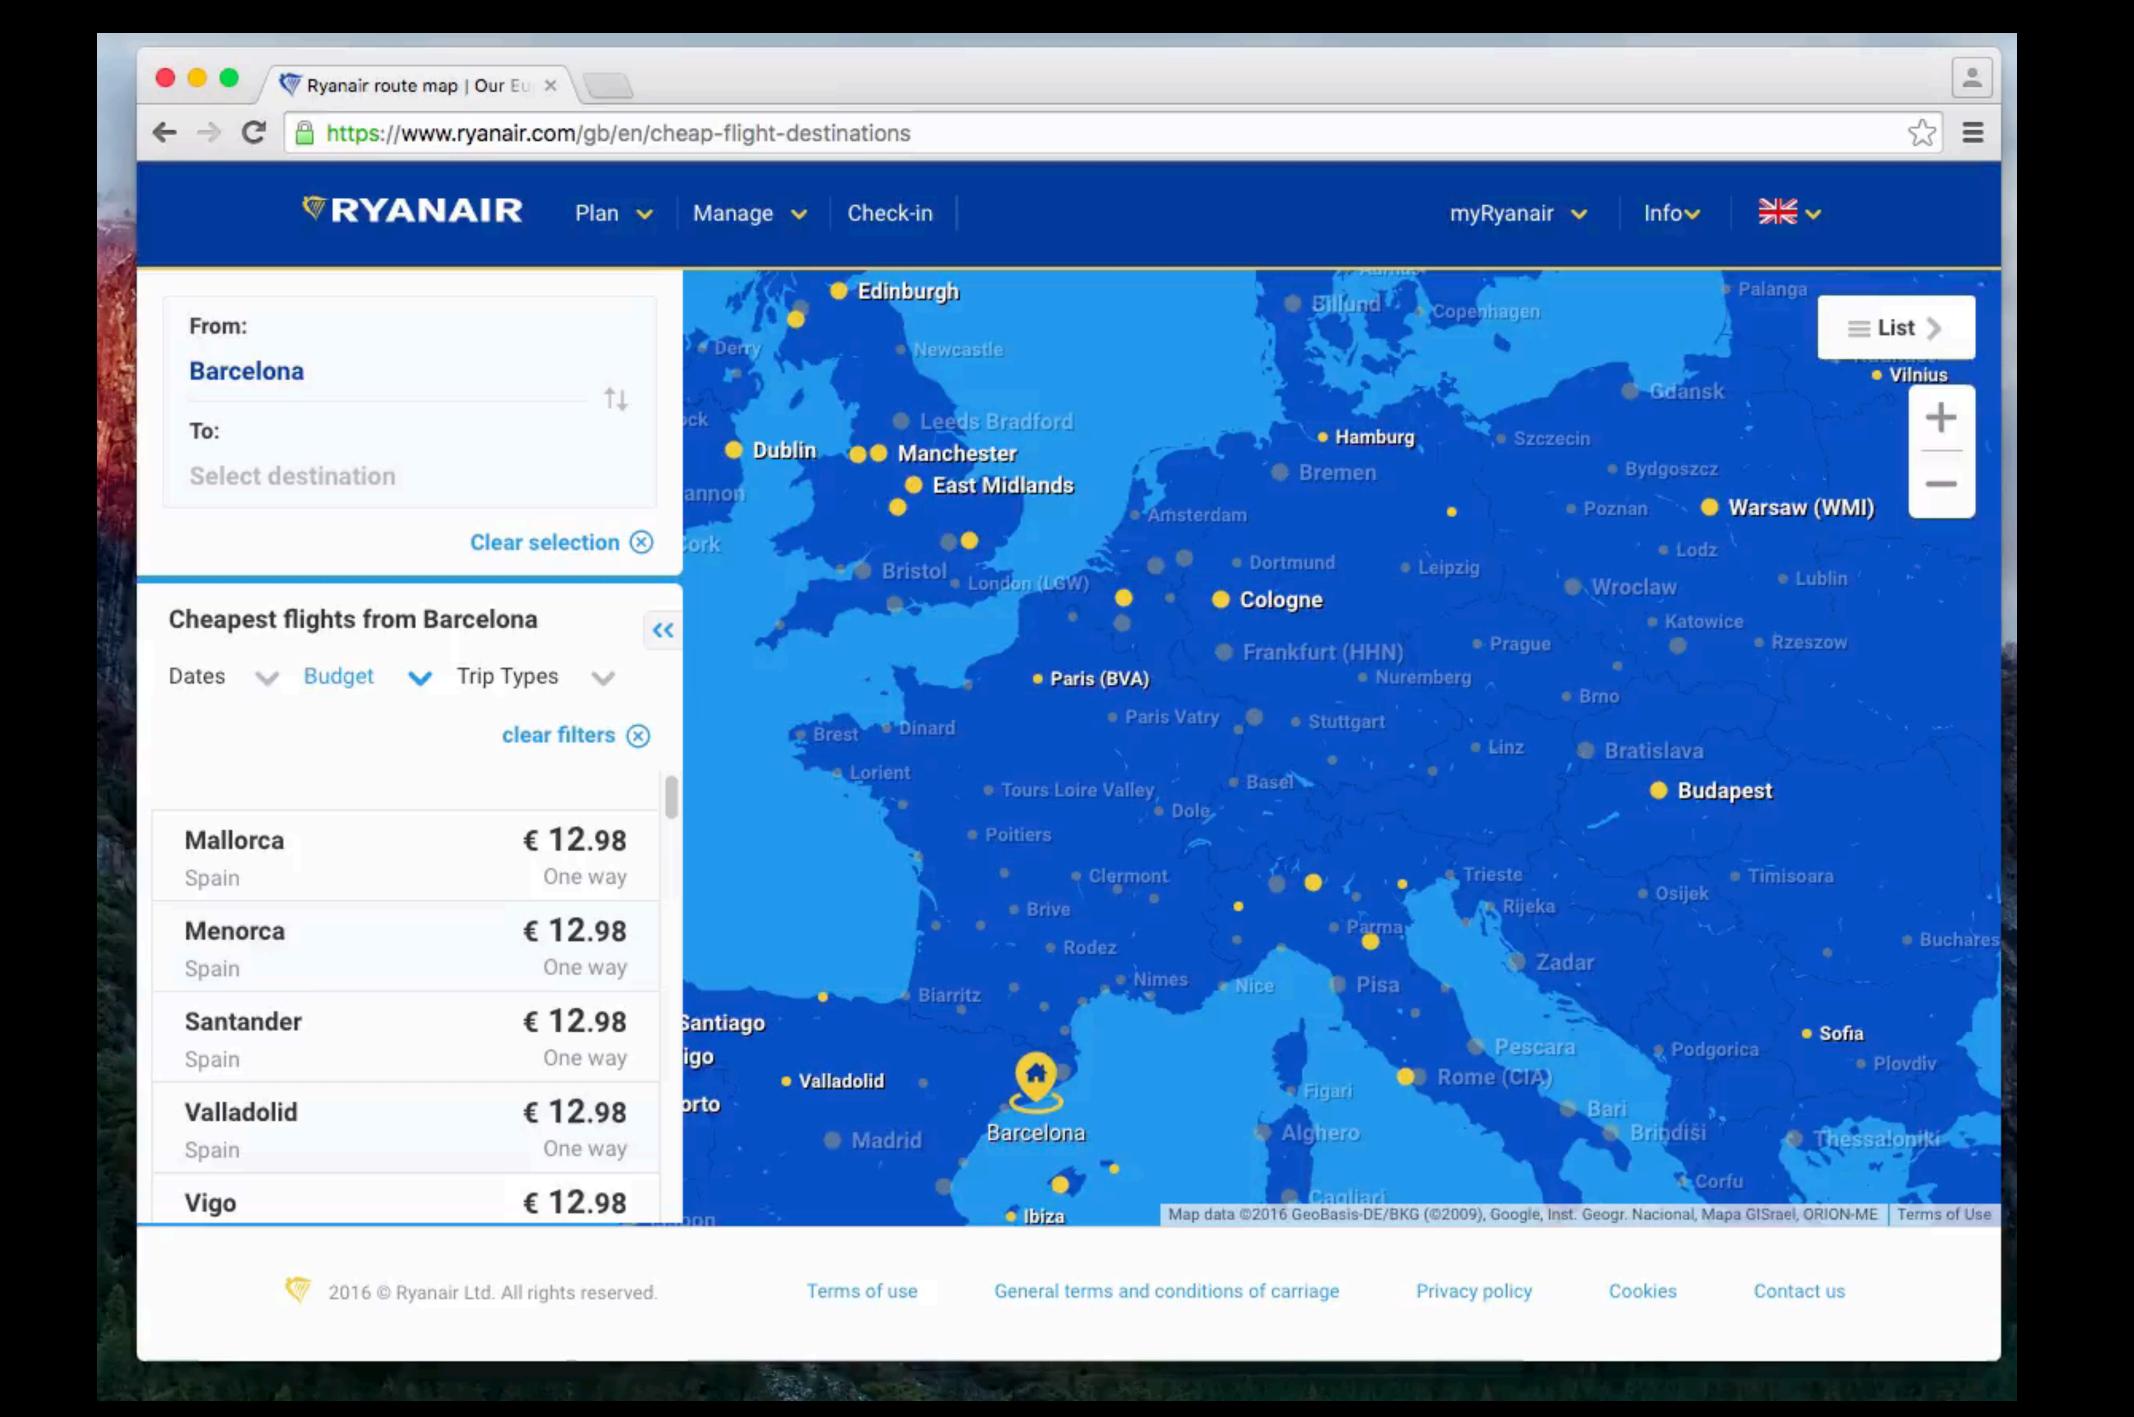

- 21. Have we provided a shareable link for comparison?
- 22. Are compared items stored persistently (page refresh/exit)?
- 23. Do we include a "Notify about price drop" option for emails?
- 24. Is the feature comparison accessible, an unordered list?
- 25. How do we make the feature comparison behave responsively?

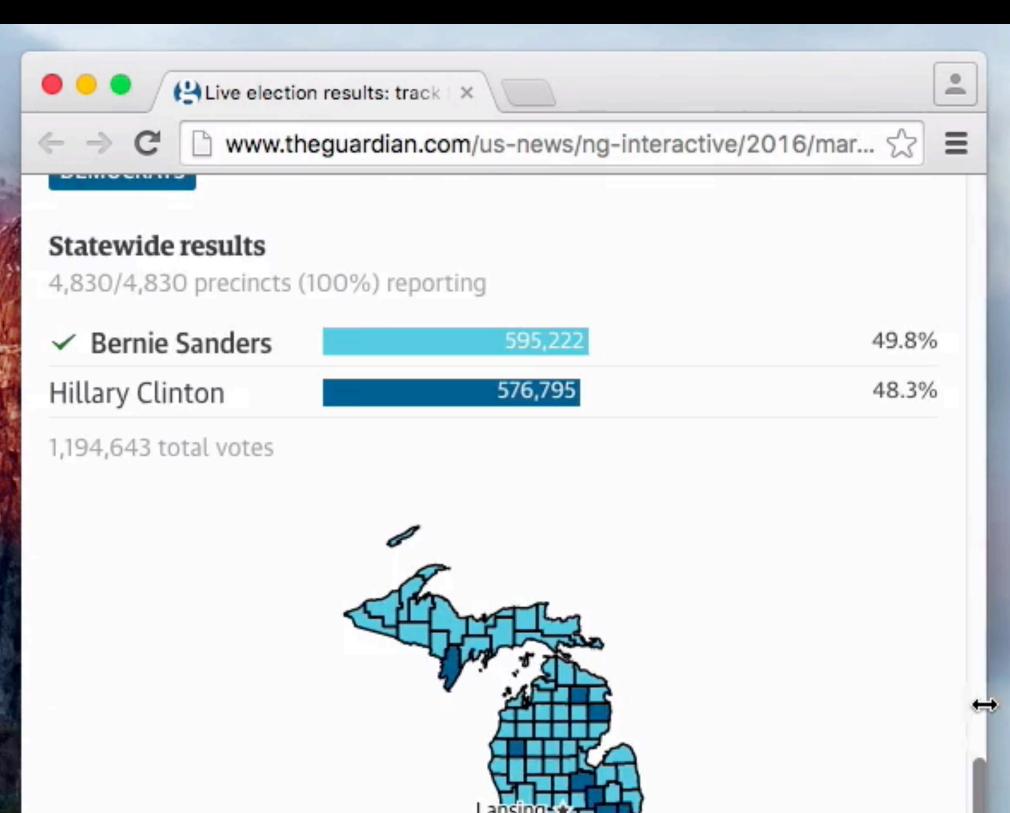

Summary

- highlight adv/disadvantages from reviews,
- expose price, ratings, model name, URL
- extract and highlight keywords from reviews
- consistent, comparable attributes matter
- group and collapse attributes
- provide only differences/all attributes views
- enable adding products to comparison
- highlight columns/rows on tap/hover
- rearranging columns is provided
- keep the headings/thumnbails floating

Also, add reassuring microcopy, a slightly different background, and visual grouping of payment items.

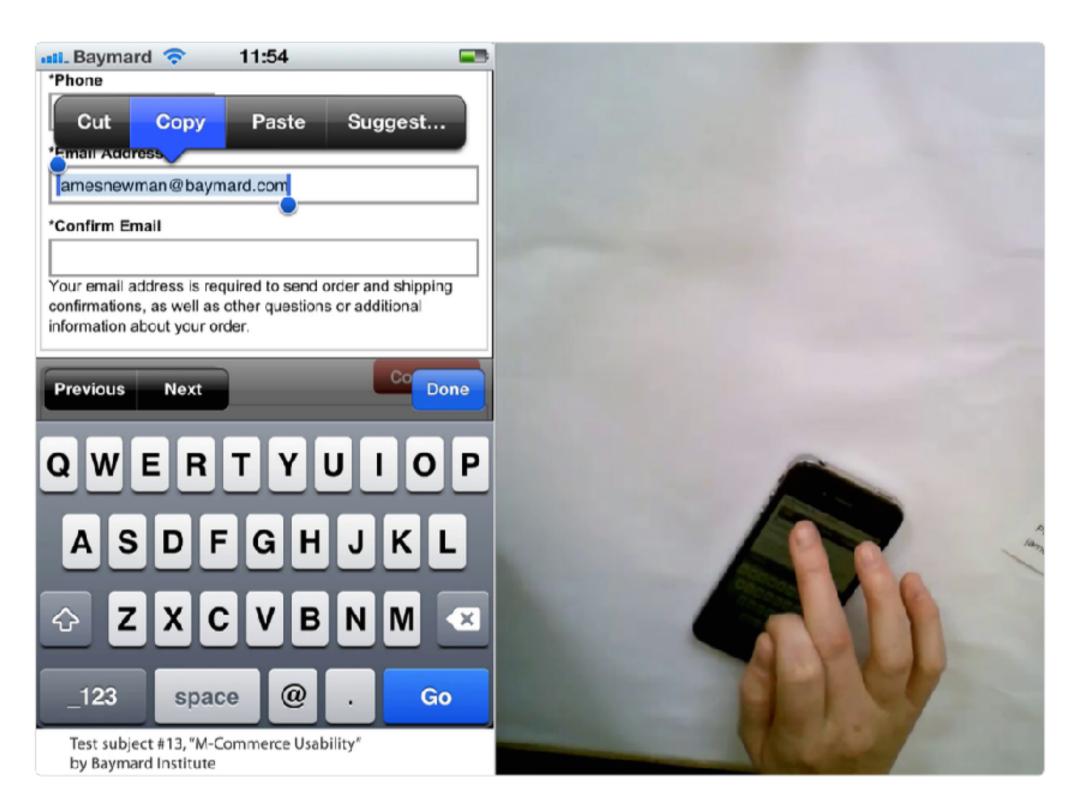

Home-made icons and padlock icon might do the trick, too..

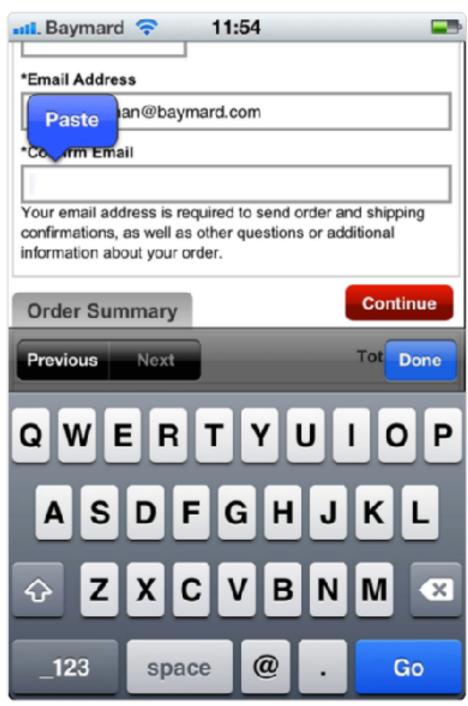

Here's a quick mock-up we've made to illustrate how you can 'visually secure' your credit card form fields. Notice the background color, padlock image and placement of the GeoTrust site seal.

Redesigning the Country Selector

Turning standard drop-downs into advanced auto-complete fields

During our recent checkout study we found several usability issues when using a drop-down for your country selector: a lack of overview, unclear sorting, scrolling issues, inconsistent UIs, a lack of context on mobile devices, and finally, they break the user's tab-flow.

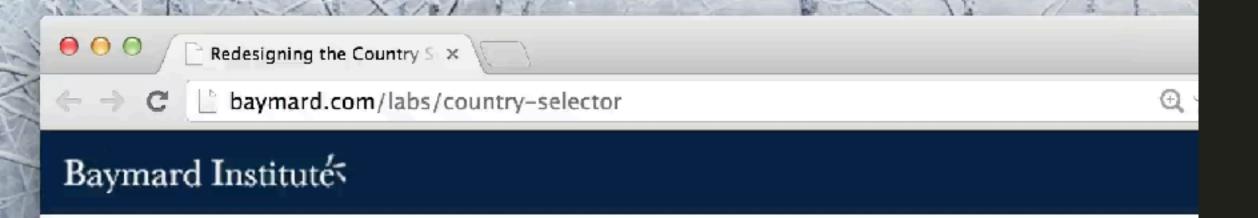

So we took it upon ourselves to redesign the country selector.

Type your country DEMO

Using principles of progressive enhancement we turn a standard drop-down into an advanced auto-complete field. This means the drop-down remains accessible, while providing a much better experience in modern browsers – handling typos, multiple spelling sequences, synonyms and prioritization.

You can read the more about the design process and usability aspects in our article on Smashing Magazine: Redesigning the Country Selector.

To be notified about future improvements, follow the project on GitHub.

Update (December 13, 11:39PM CET): Apparently that one wasn't easy to crack. The first to find all the emoji were Dawid Gaweł, Łukasz Łabędzki, SkiX, Thomas Lin, Liam Yorke, Efrén Pastor, Mario Estrada and Musk M. Elon. We'll contact the winners shortly. The Mystery will be resolved soon. Have you resolved it yet?;-)
