Friction

The design process is weird and complicated because it involves people and systems, which often are weird and complicated.

OUR STORY

How'd Tijuana Flats become Tijuana Flats? Funny story, really. Back in '95, this college kid, Brian Wheeler, walked into a bar. Actually, a bunch of bars. (And restaurants, too.) At first, it was just harmless fun. But over time, the good times got the best of him and just going out no longer cut it. So Brian decided to open his own restaurant despite having never worked in one before (brilliant, right?). Only problem was, Brian was broke. Luckily, his parents weren't. And after much begging and pleading, his dad loaned him $20,000 & Brian opened the first Tijuana Flats in Winter Park, Florida.

Summary

- embedding a story can boost engagement
- we can make users think to capture attention
- usability + accessibility first, friction later
- pick a boring element, make it interesting
- build concepts without circles and rectangles
- seek pain points focus on tackling them first
- no design is bad or good; the context decides it.

Summary

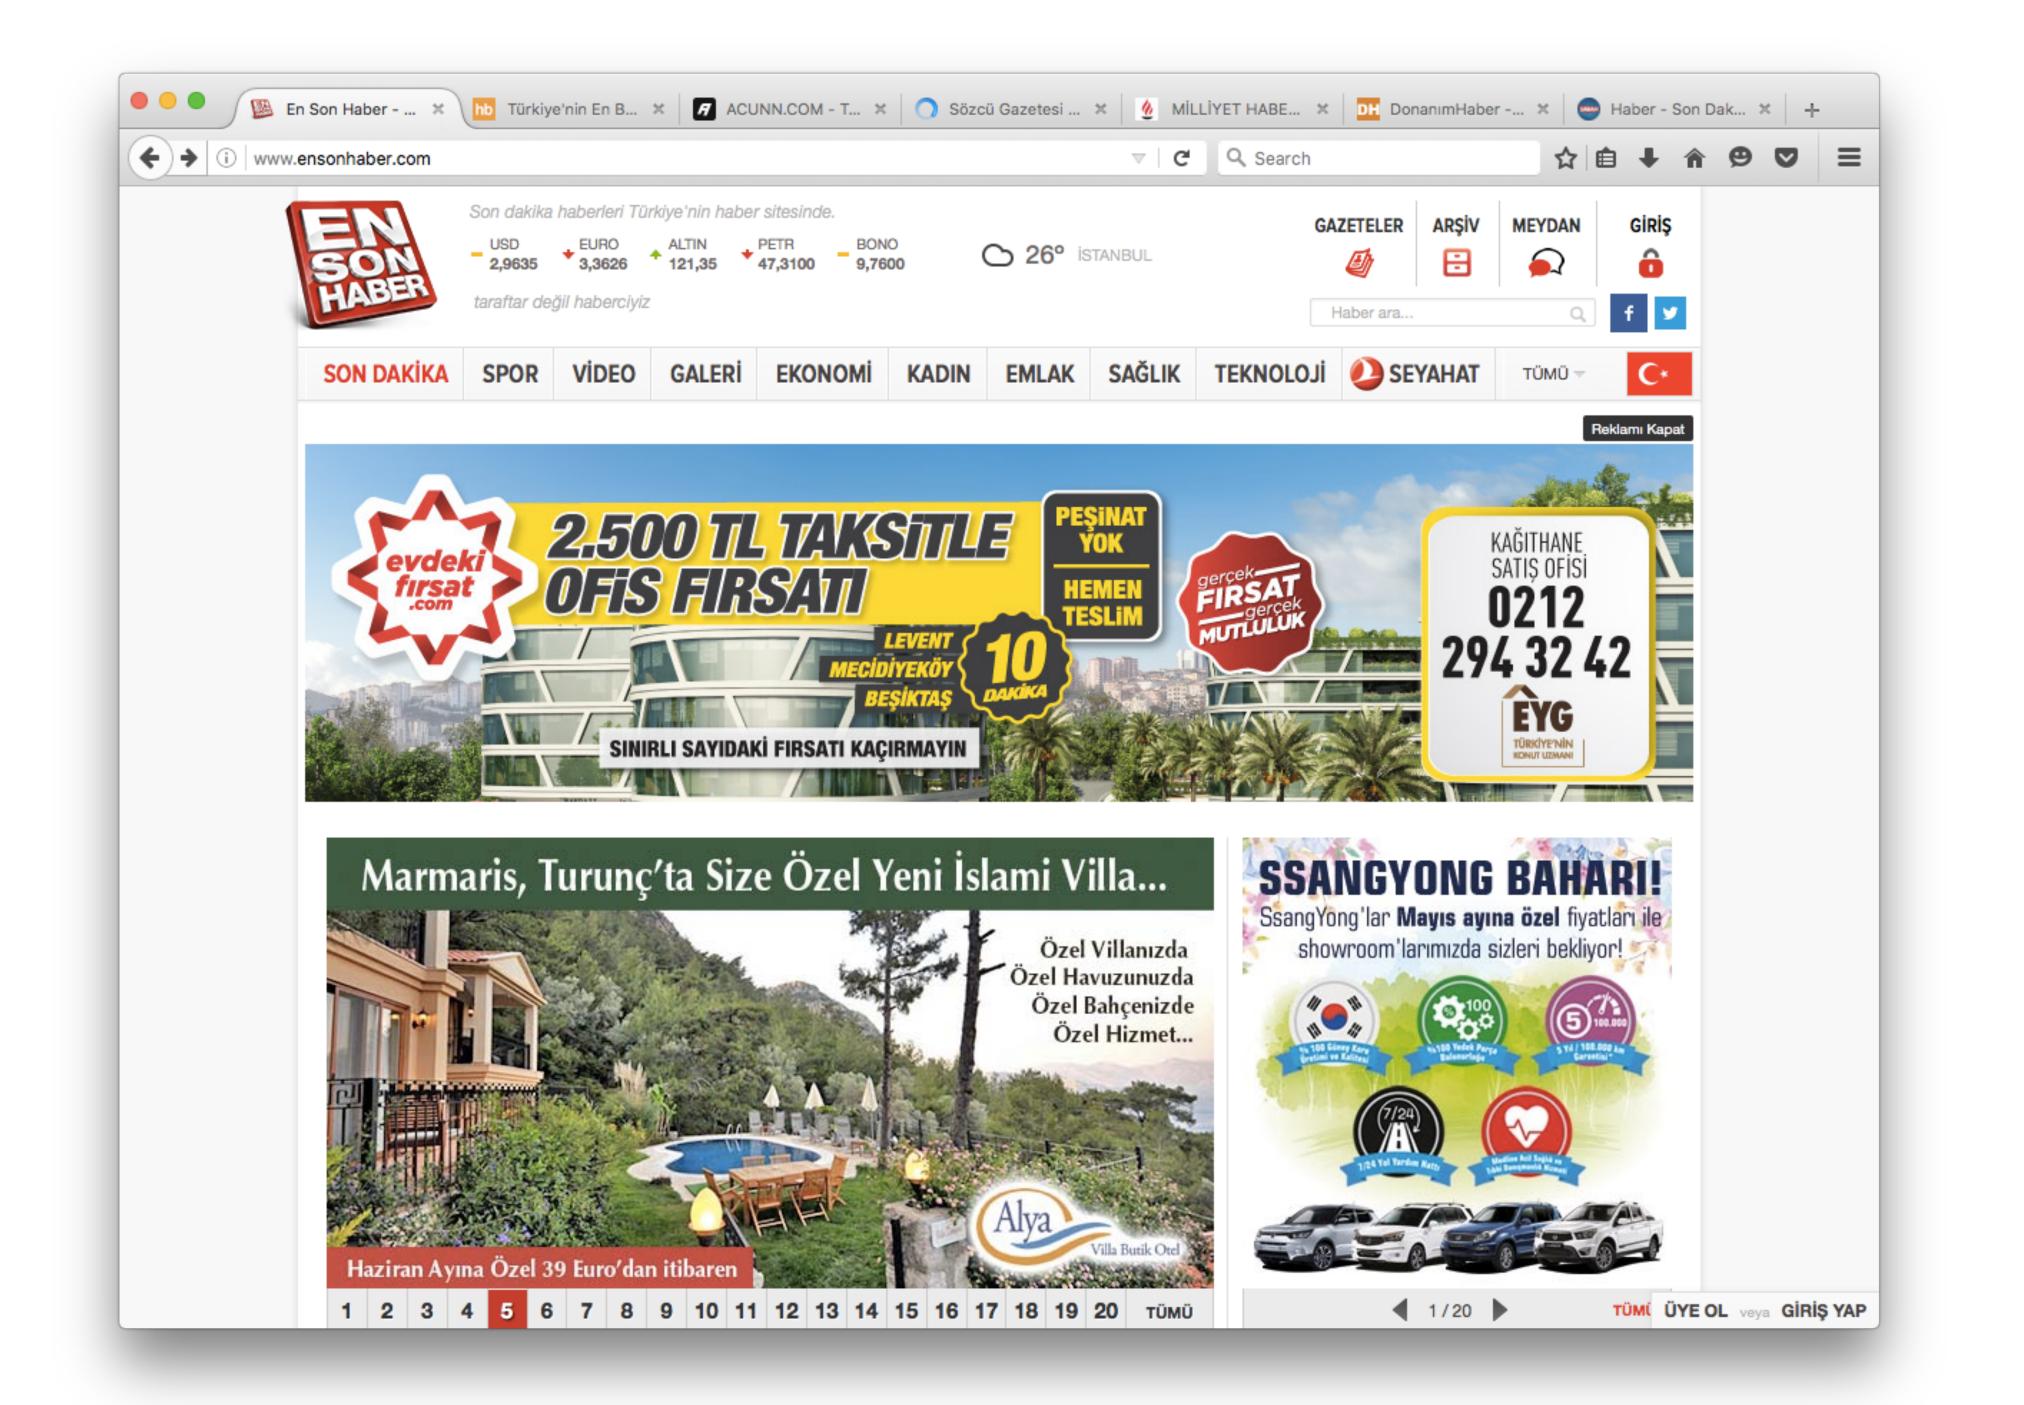

- use chevron or plus to indicate expansion
- icon maps well with the direction of expansion
- chevron changes direction (top/down)
- plus changes to close/minus
- place the icon left-aligned or right-aligned
- entire bar should act as expansion
- thumb should be large enough for tapping
- category's main page is listed in a dropdown
- expanded state could collapse automatically

Carousel Design Checklist

- 1. Can we display slides instead of a carousel?
- 2. How do we indicate current slide?
- 3. Do we display a slice of upcoming slides?
- 4. How do we indicate how many slides we have?
- 5. What happens when user hovers over a slide?
- 6. What happens when user hovers over the progress indicators?
- 7. Do we support tap and swipe gestures on mobile?
- 8. How many items do we display on mobile vs. desktop?
- 9. Do we use auto-rotation, and how fast will it be?
- 10. How do we choose the sequence of slides?
- 11. How large will the carousel be on mobile vs. desktop?

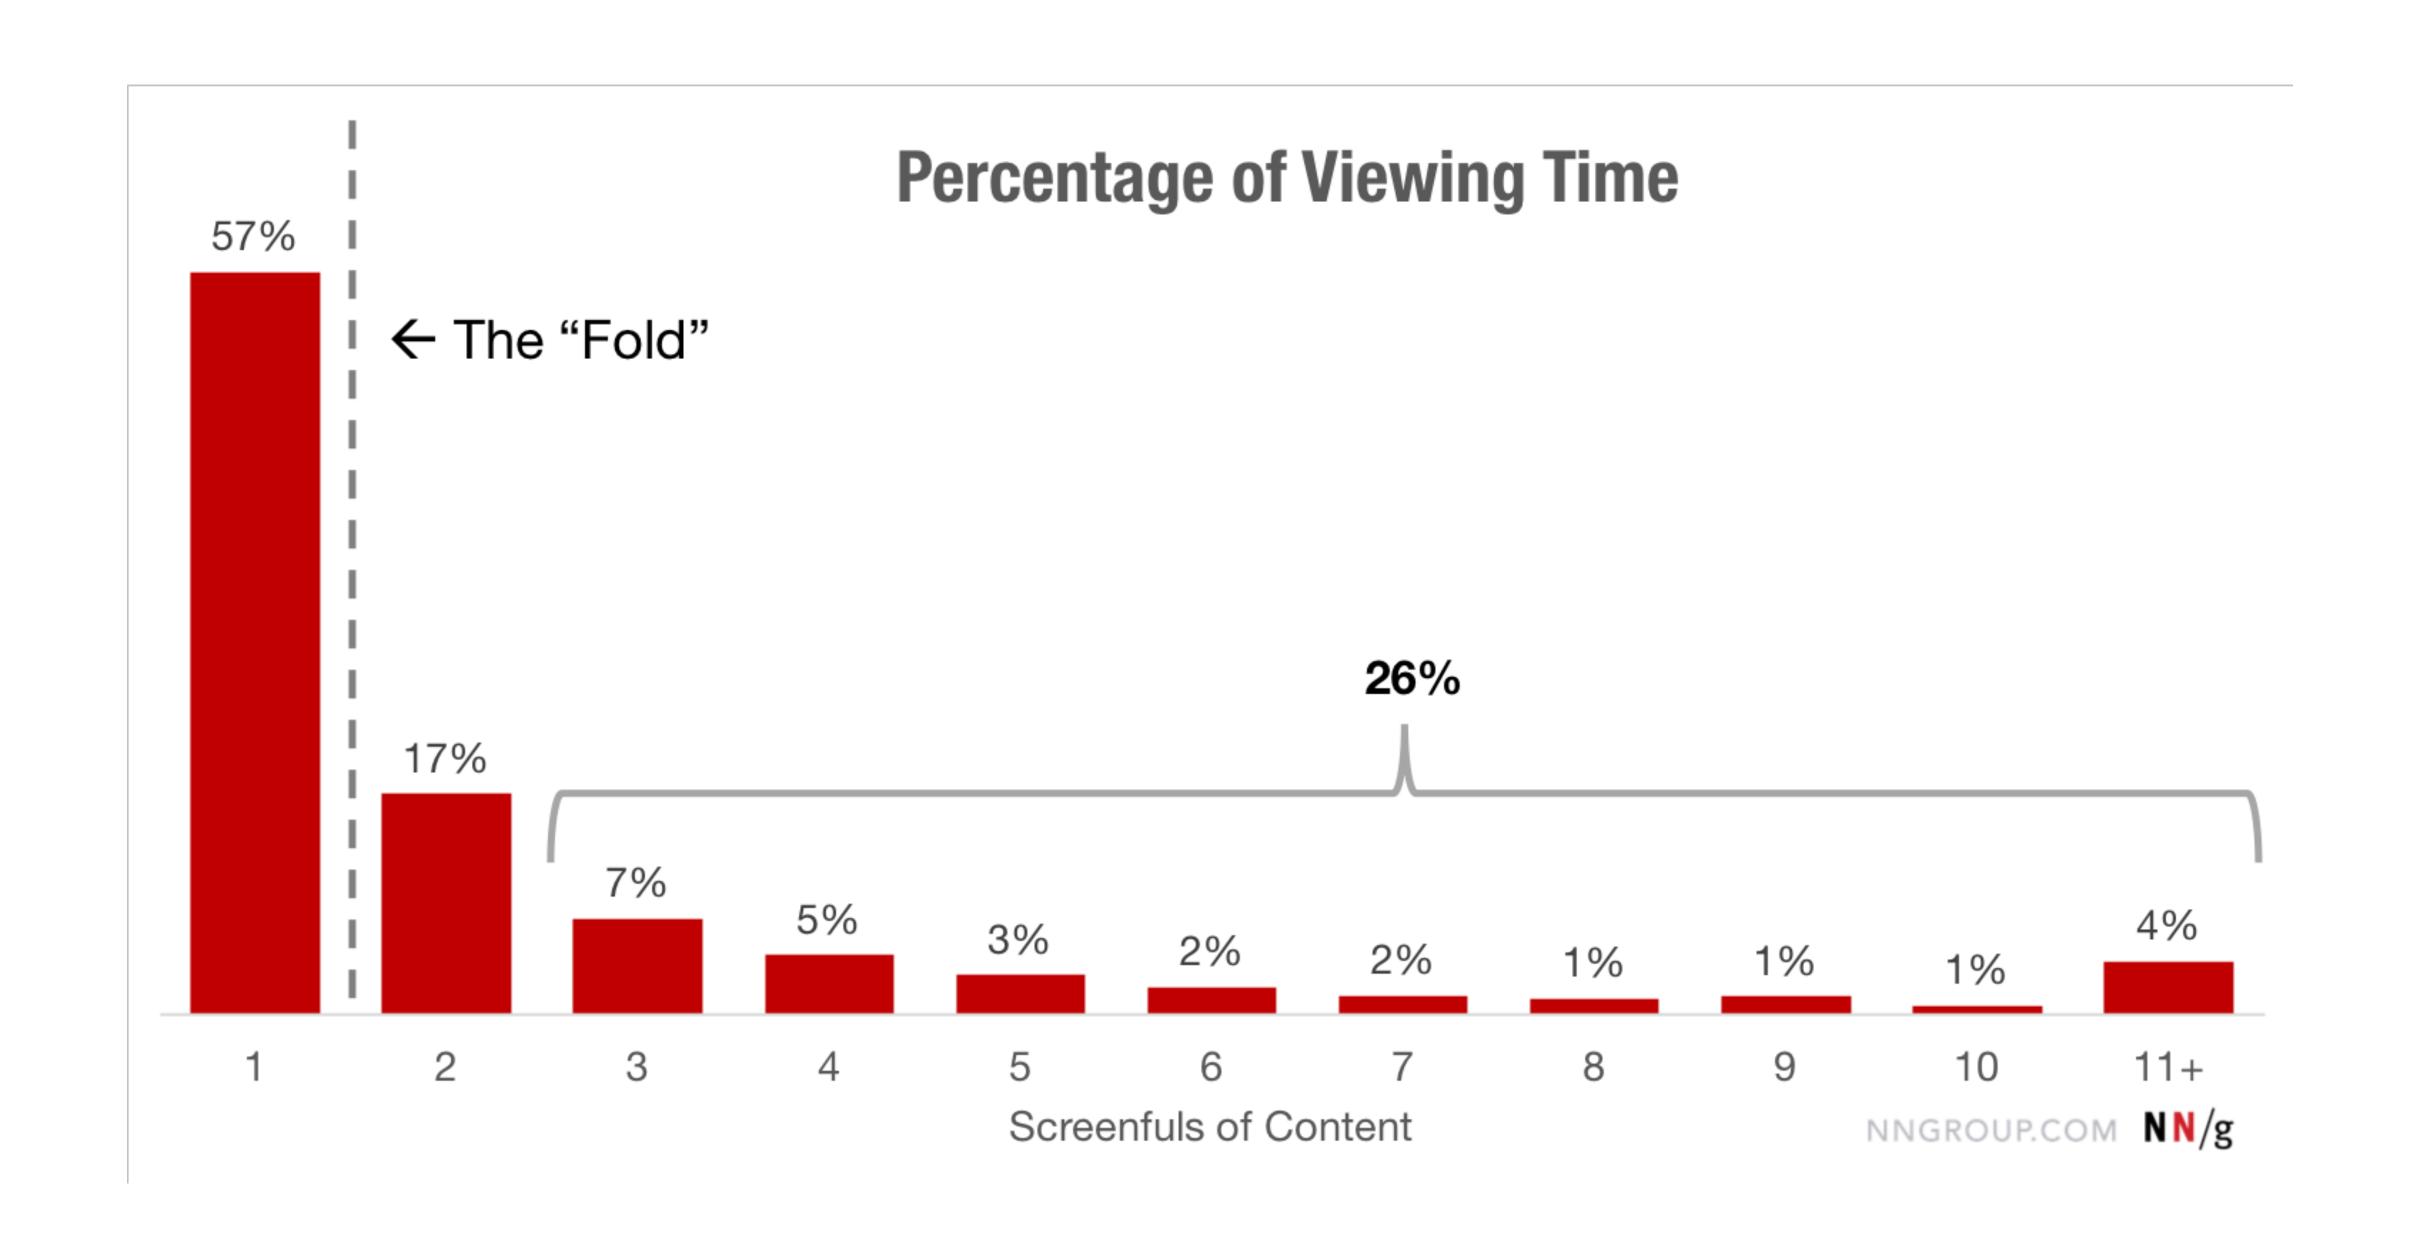

Summary

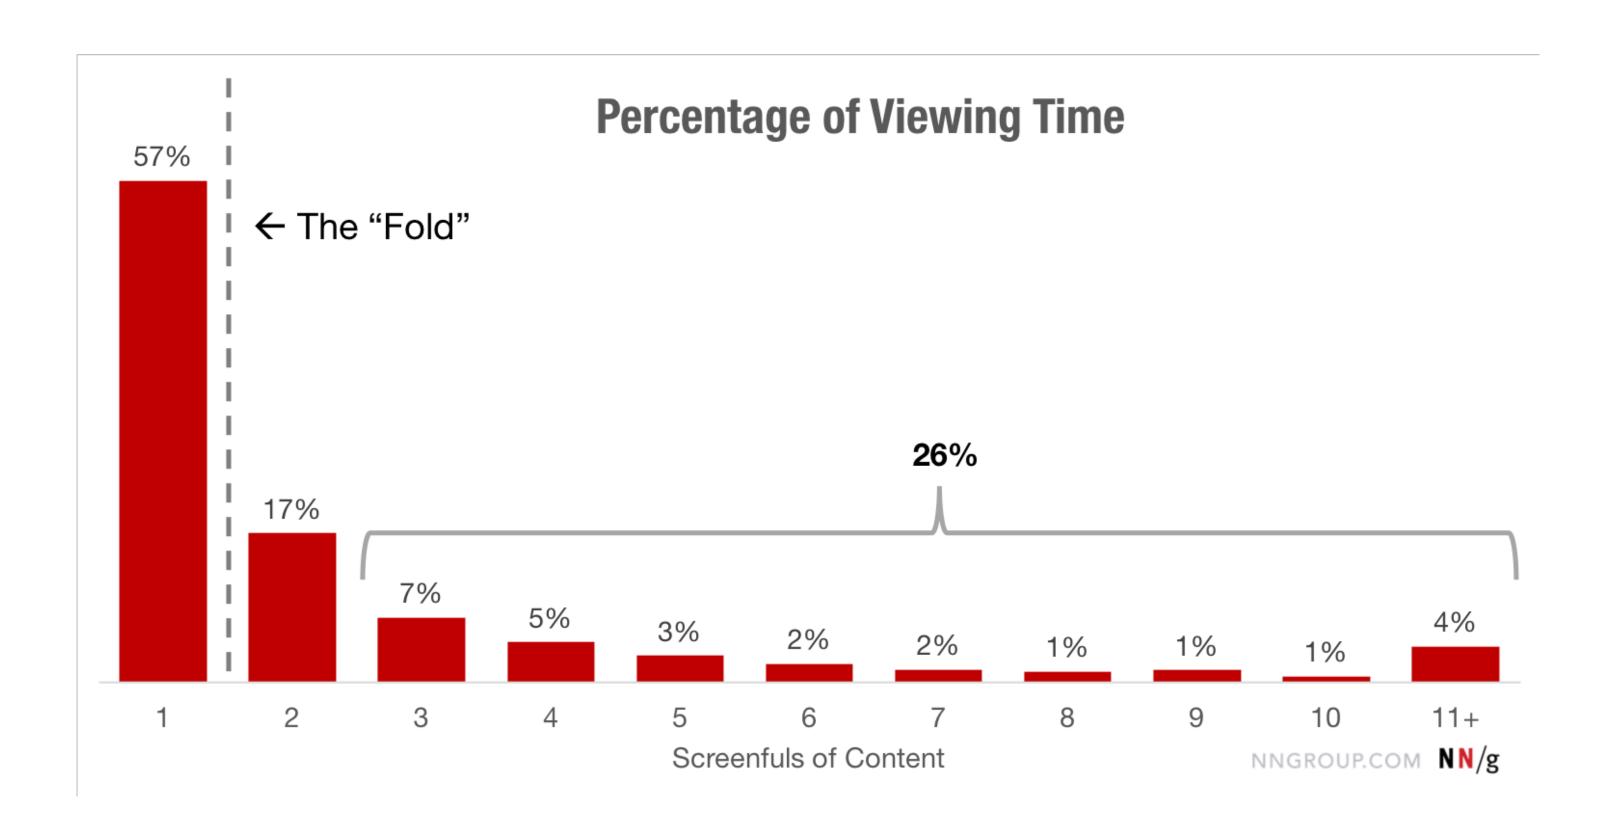

- choose the sequence of slides carefully,
- most important slides always come first,
- slides shouldn't rotate too quickly (5-7s),
- auto-rotation should pause on hover,
- auto-rotation should stop on user interaction,
- try to avoid auto-rotation on mobile,
- always support swipe gestures on mobile,
- always show a slice of the following slide,
- auto-detect contrast for arrows/thumbnails,
- provide information scent for available slides,
- works best as image gallery and on product pages.

The Fold.

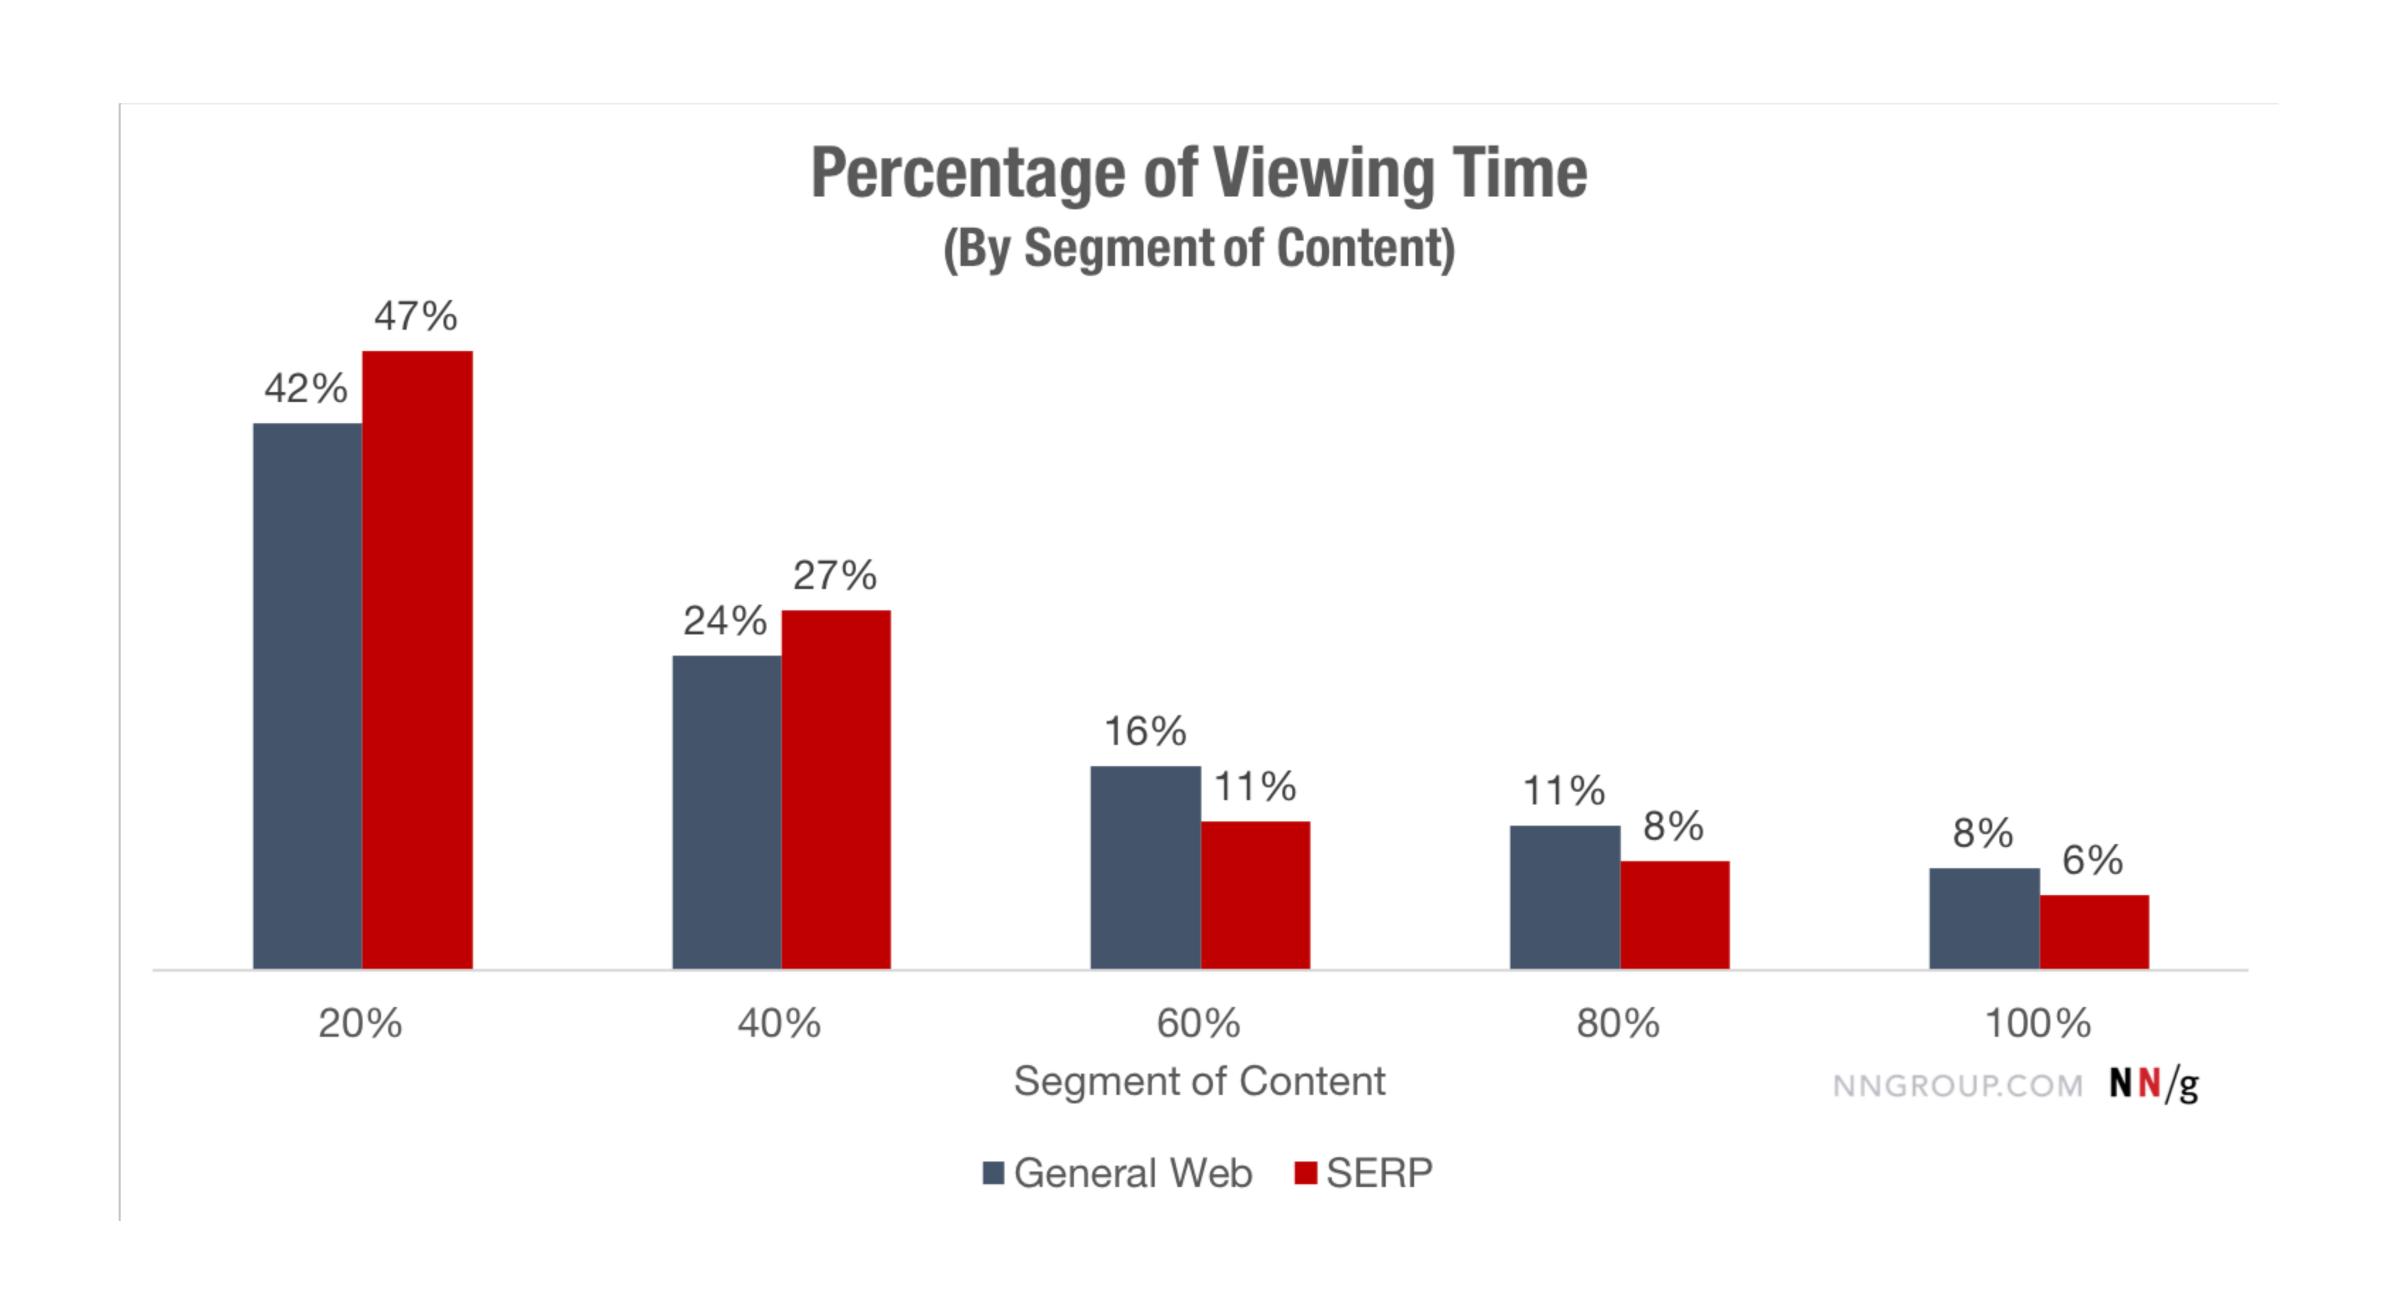

The Fold.

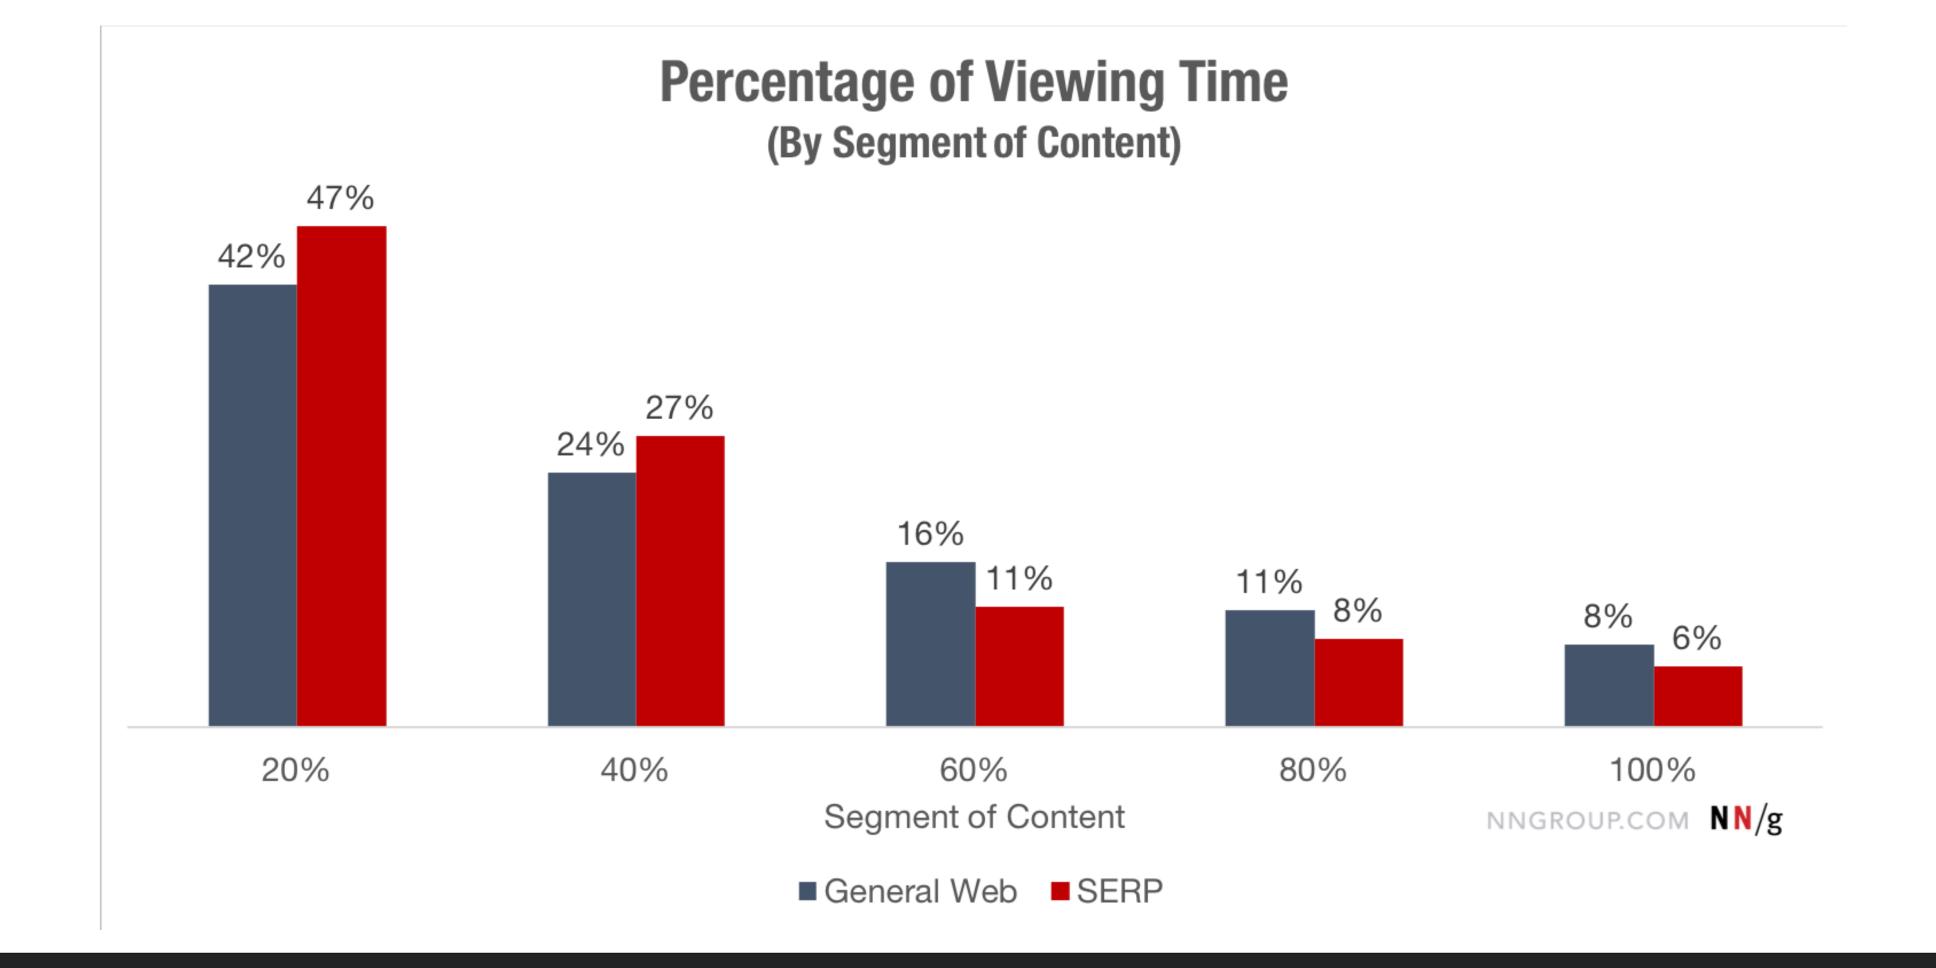

above the fold below the fold

- About 74% of the time is spent in top two "screenfuls" of the view,
- The longer the page, the faster users tend to scroll to hit the footer of the view.

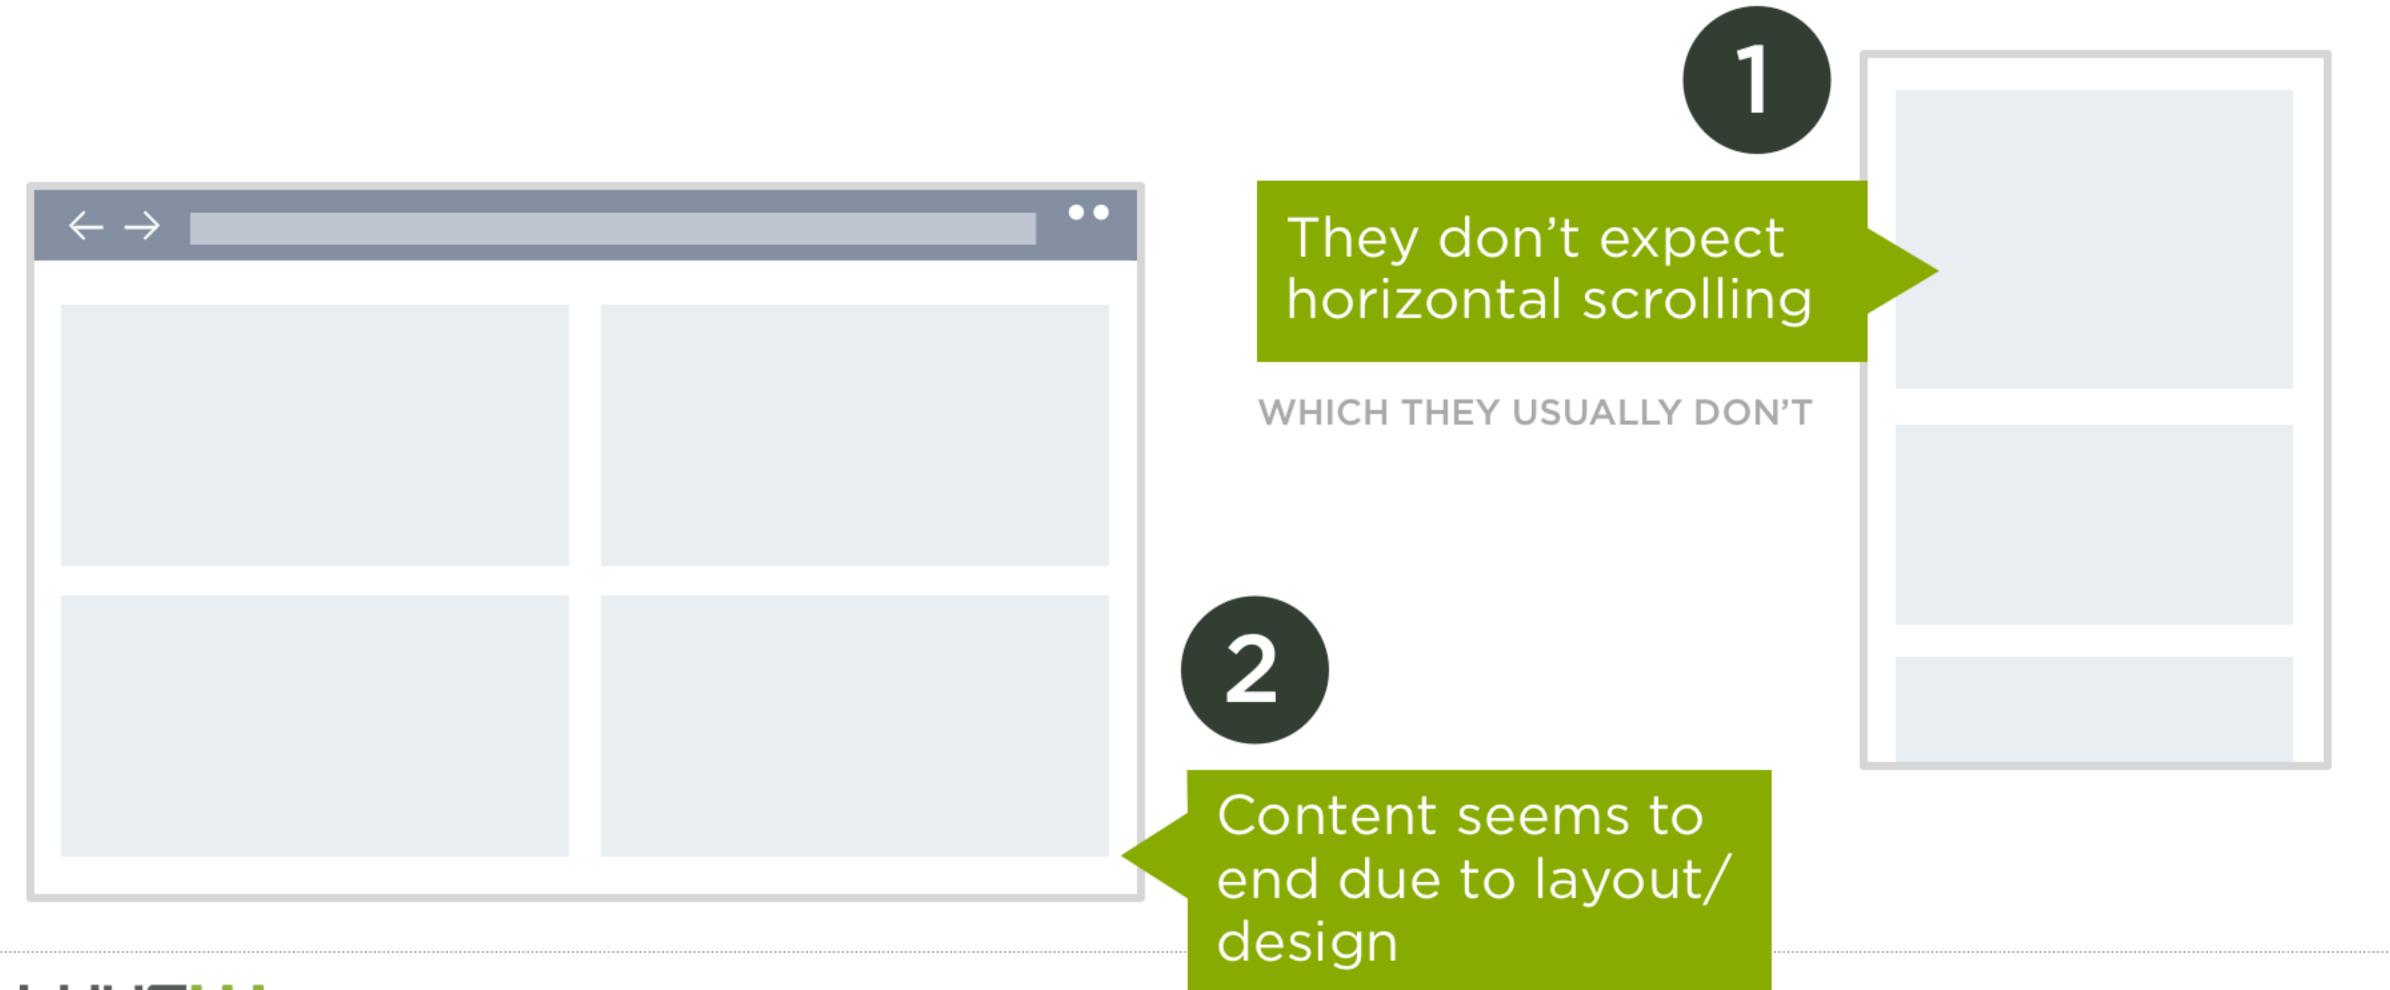

- People spent disproportionately more time viewing the top 20% of a page.
- On SERP, the first two screenfuls get 74% of the total viewing time.

- Even above the fold, attention was focused toward the top of the page esp. SERPs.
- People scroll more, but still not a lot they rarely go beyond the third screenful.

People don't scroll when...

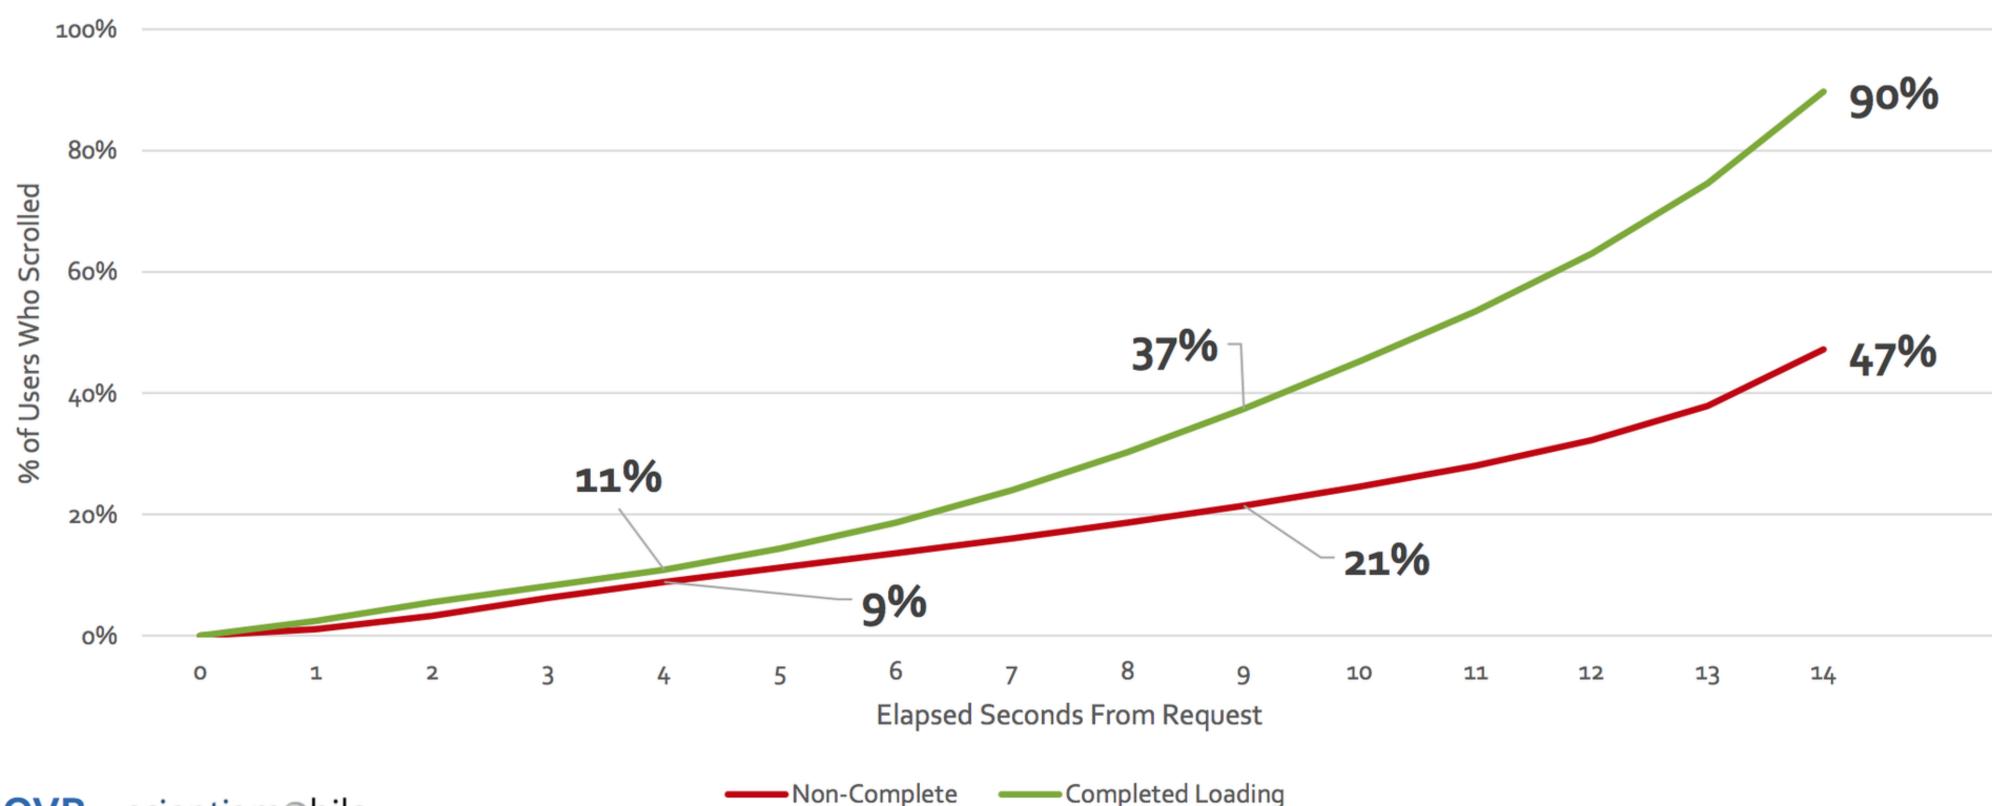

Do Mobile Users See Headlines and Top Banners Before Scrolling?

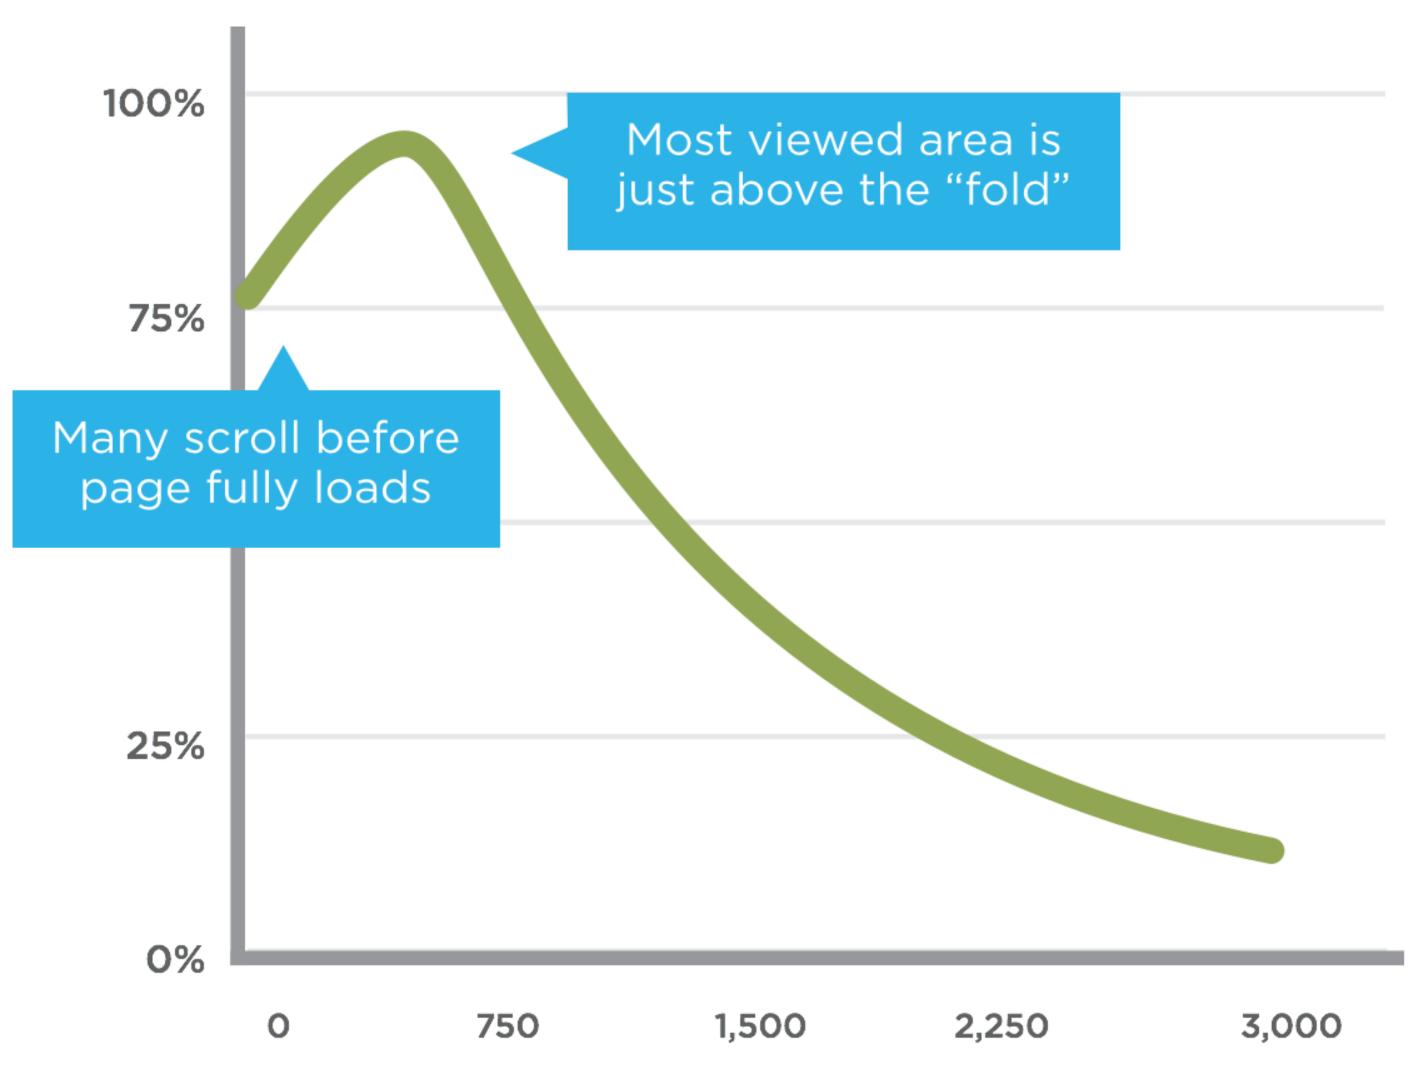

- 11% of users start scrolling start scrolling within 4 seconds of if the page has completed. If the page is not complete, then 9% have still scrolled.
- However, if the page loads slowly and takes 9 seconds and is still not complete, then 21% of people will have scrolled.
- Of the people who have scrolled at 9 seconds, over 50% of them have scrolled down over 250 pixels.
- For developers, this means that either you need to get the page to local quickly on mobile devices or the "above the fold" or "headline" area will be bypassed.
- For advertisers and developers, this justifies using techniques that overcomes scrolling behavior to deliver headline messages.

- never hide important actions
- define priorities for navigation items
- thumbs drive interactions
- people scroll as long as they need content
- premium area is between "scrollfuls"
- carousels can work, but beware remote slices
- simplify complex input with shapes
- accordions always work well

QBE Home Building Calculator

This calculator estimates the replacement cost of your home using information supplied by Cordell, Australia's leading provider of building cost information.

By providing general information about your home, the calculator will provide an estimated replacement cost, including an allowance for professional fees, demolition, removal of debris and GST.

Remember, when you correctly use the full Home Building Calculator and insure for the amount it suggests, your sum insured will be protected by the Building Sum Insured Safeguard benefit by up to an extra 30% payable in the event of total loss. You will need to provide a copy of the Building Replacement Estimate in the event of a claim so please download and save a copy of the full report and keep a printed copy in an off-site location. More information regarding this benefit can be found in the Product Disclosure Statement and Policy Wording.

RETHINK THANKSGIVING

For Milk Street's Thanksgiving, we took the down-home elements of a midcentury feast and gave them a bit of 21st-century sophistication.

Brown ale-basted turkey, sweet potato gratin with vanilla bean and bay leaves, easy-bake herbed stuffing, charred Brussels sprouts and an intensely flavorful pumpkin tart make for an elegant, low-stress Thanksgiving dinner.

Configurator Design Checklist

- 1. Are we designing for inspiration or customization, or both?
- 2. What's the entry point to the configurator?
- 3. How many pre-made presets, and how to define them?
- 4. Do we provide recommendations/labels with presets?
- 5. Do we ask for custom preferences/use filters to guide users?
- 6. Is the product always visible, on mobile/desktop?
- 7. Do we always display current price?
- 8. Do we use a 3D view, and is it accessible?
- 9. Are we using drag'n'drop functionality?
- 10. How do we design navigation, with pins or Prev/Next pattern?
- 11. Do we need to integrate search/filtering?

Configurator Design Checklist

- 12. Is it possible to jump from the current step to a previous one?
- 13. How do we highlight current step?
- 14. How do we highlight already finished steps?
- 15. Is it clear how to undo a change/feature?
- 16. How do we design adding/removing a choice (color, icon, overlay)?
- 17. Next step is never empty, and contains a smart default value?
- 18. Should the user automatically move to the next step when finished?
- 19. For every step, do we display impact of a selected feature on price?
- 20. For every step, do we explain and highlight dependencies?
- 21. For every step, is the summary of all changes always accessible?
- 22. For every step, do we need to group some options to limit scope?

Configurator Design Checklist

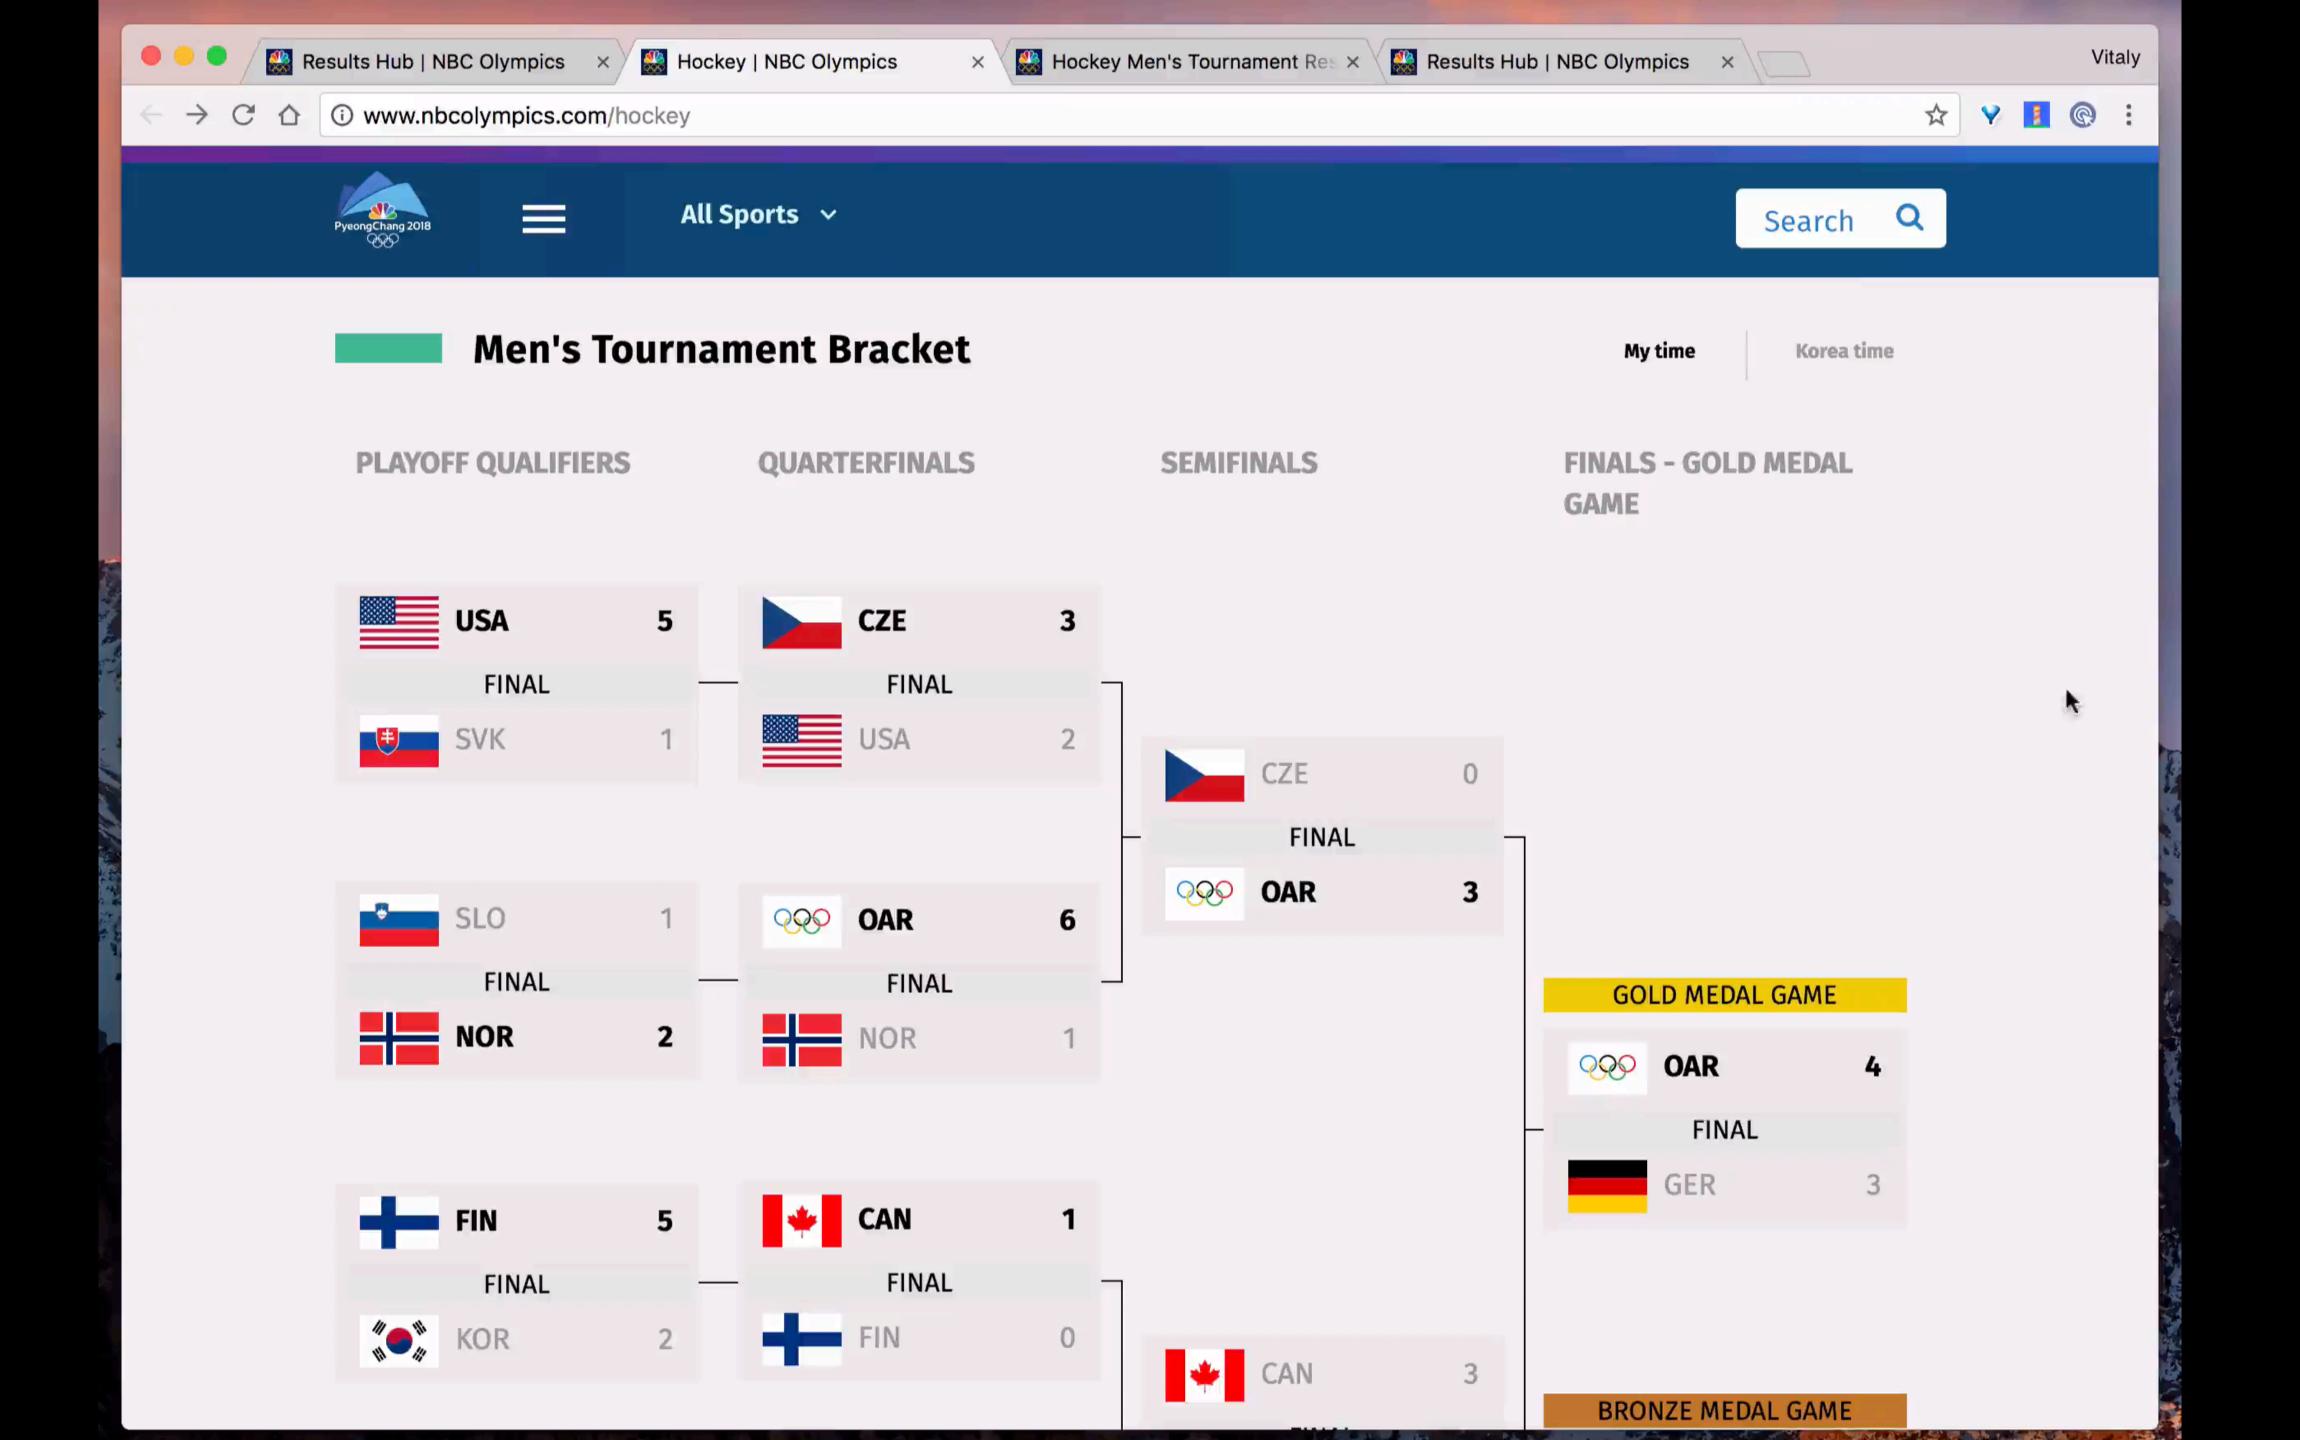

- 23. Do we provide context-sensitive inspiration to ease a choice?
- 24. Do we have recommendations to nudge a user towards a choice?
- 25. Do we integrate a feature comparison table at some steps?
- 26. Do we display dependencies, some options are mutually exclusive?
- 27. Is visual feedback for the product preview instant on 3G?
- 28. Do we have a "fullscreen view" for the product rendering?
- 29. Do we store choices automatically? What happens on page refresh?
- 30. Is it possible to save/label a current snapshot of the configuration?
- 31. For every step, do we explain and highlight dependencies?
- 32. Are we lazy-loading assets (and options!) for performance?
- 33. Do we provide extras, e.g. financing, lease, reservation, sharing?
- 34. Do we integrate a chat bot or conversational UI?

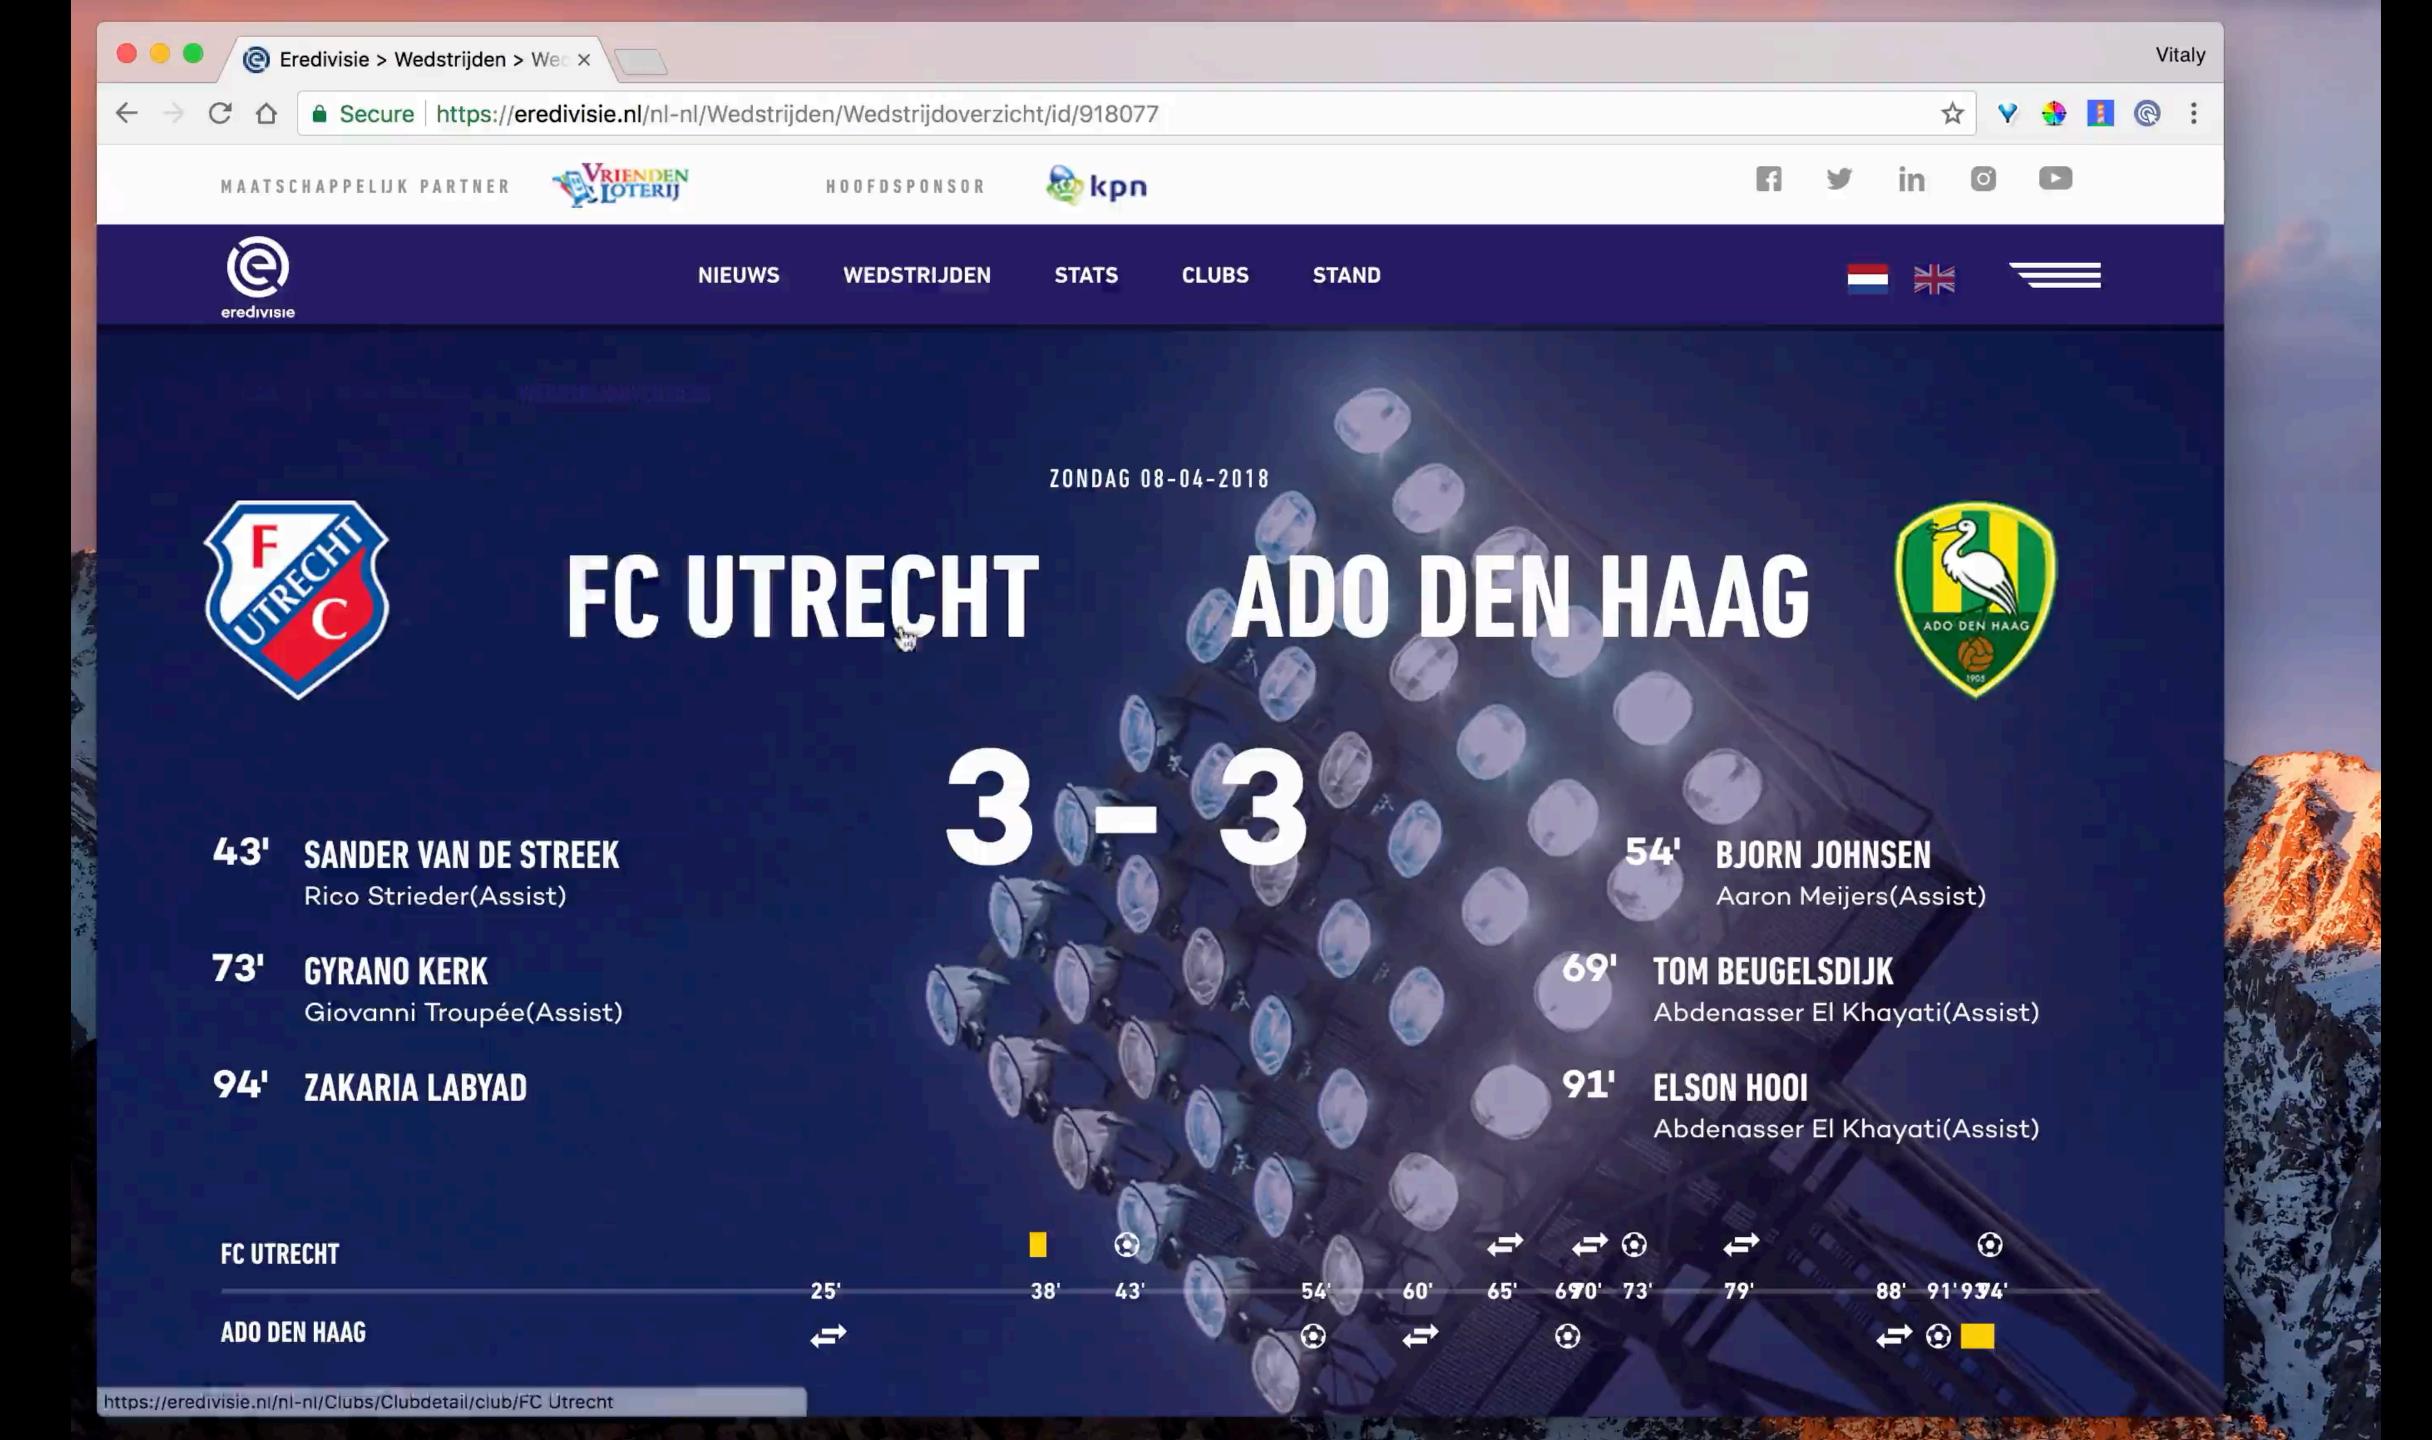

Summary

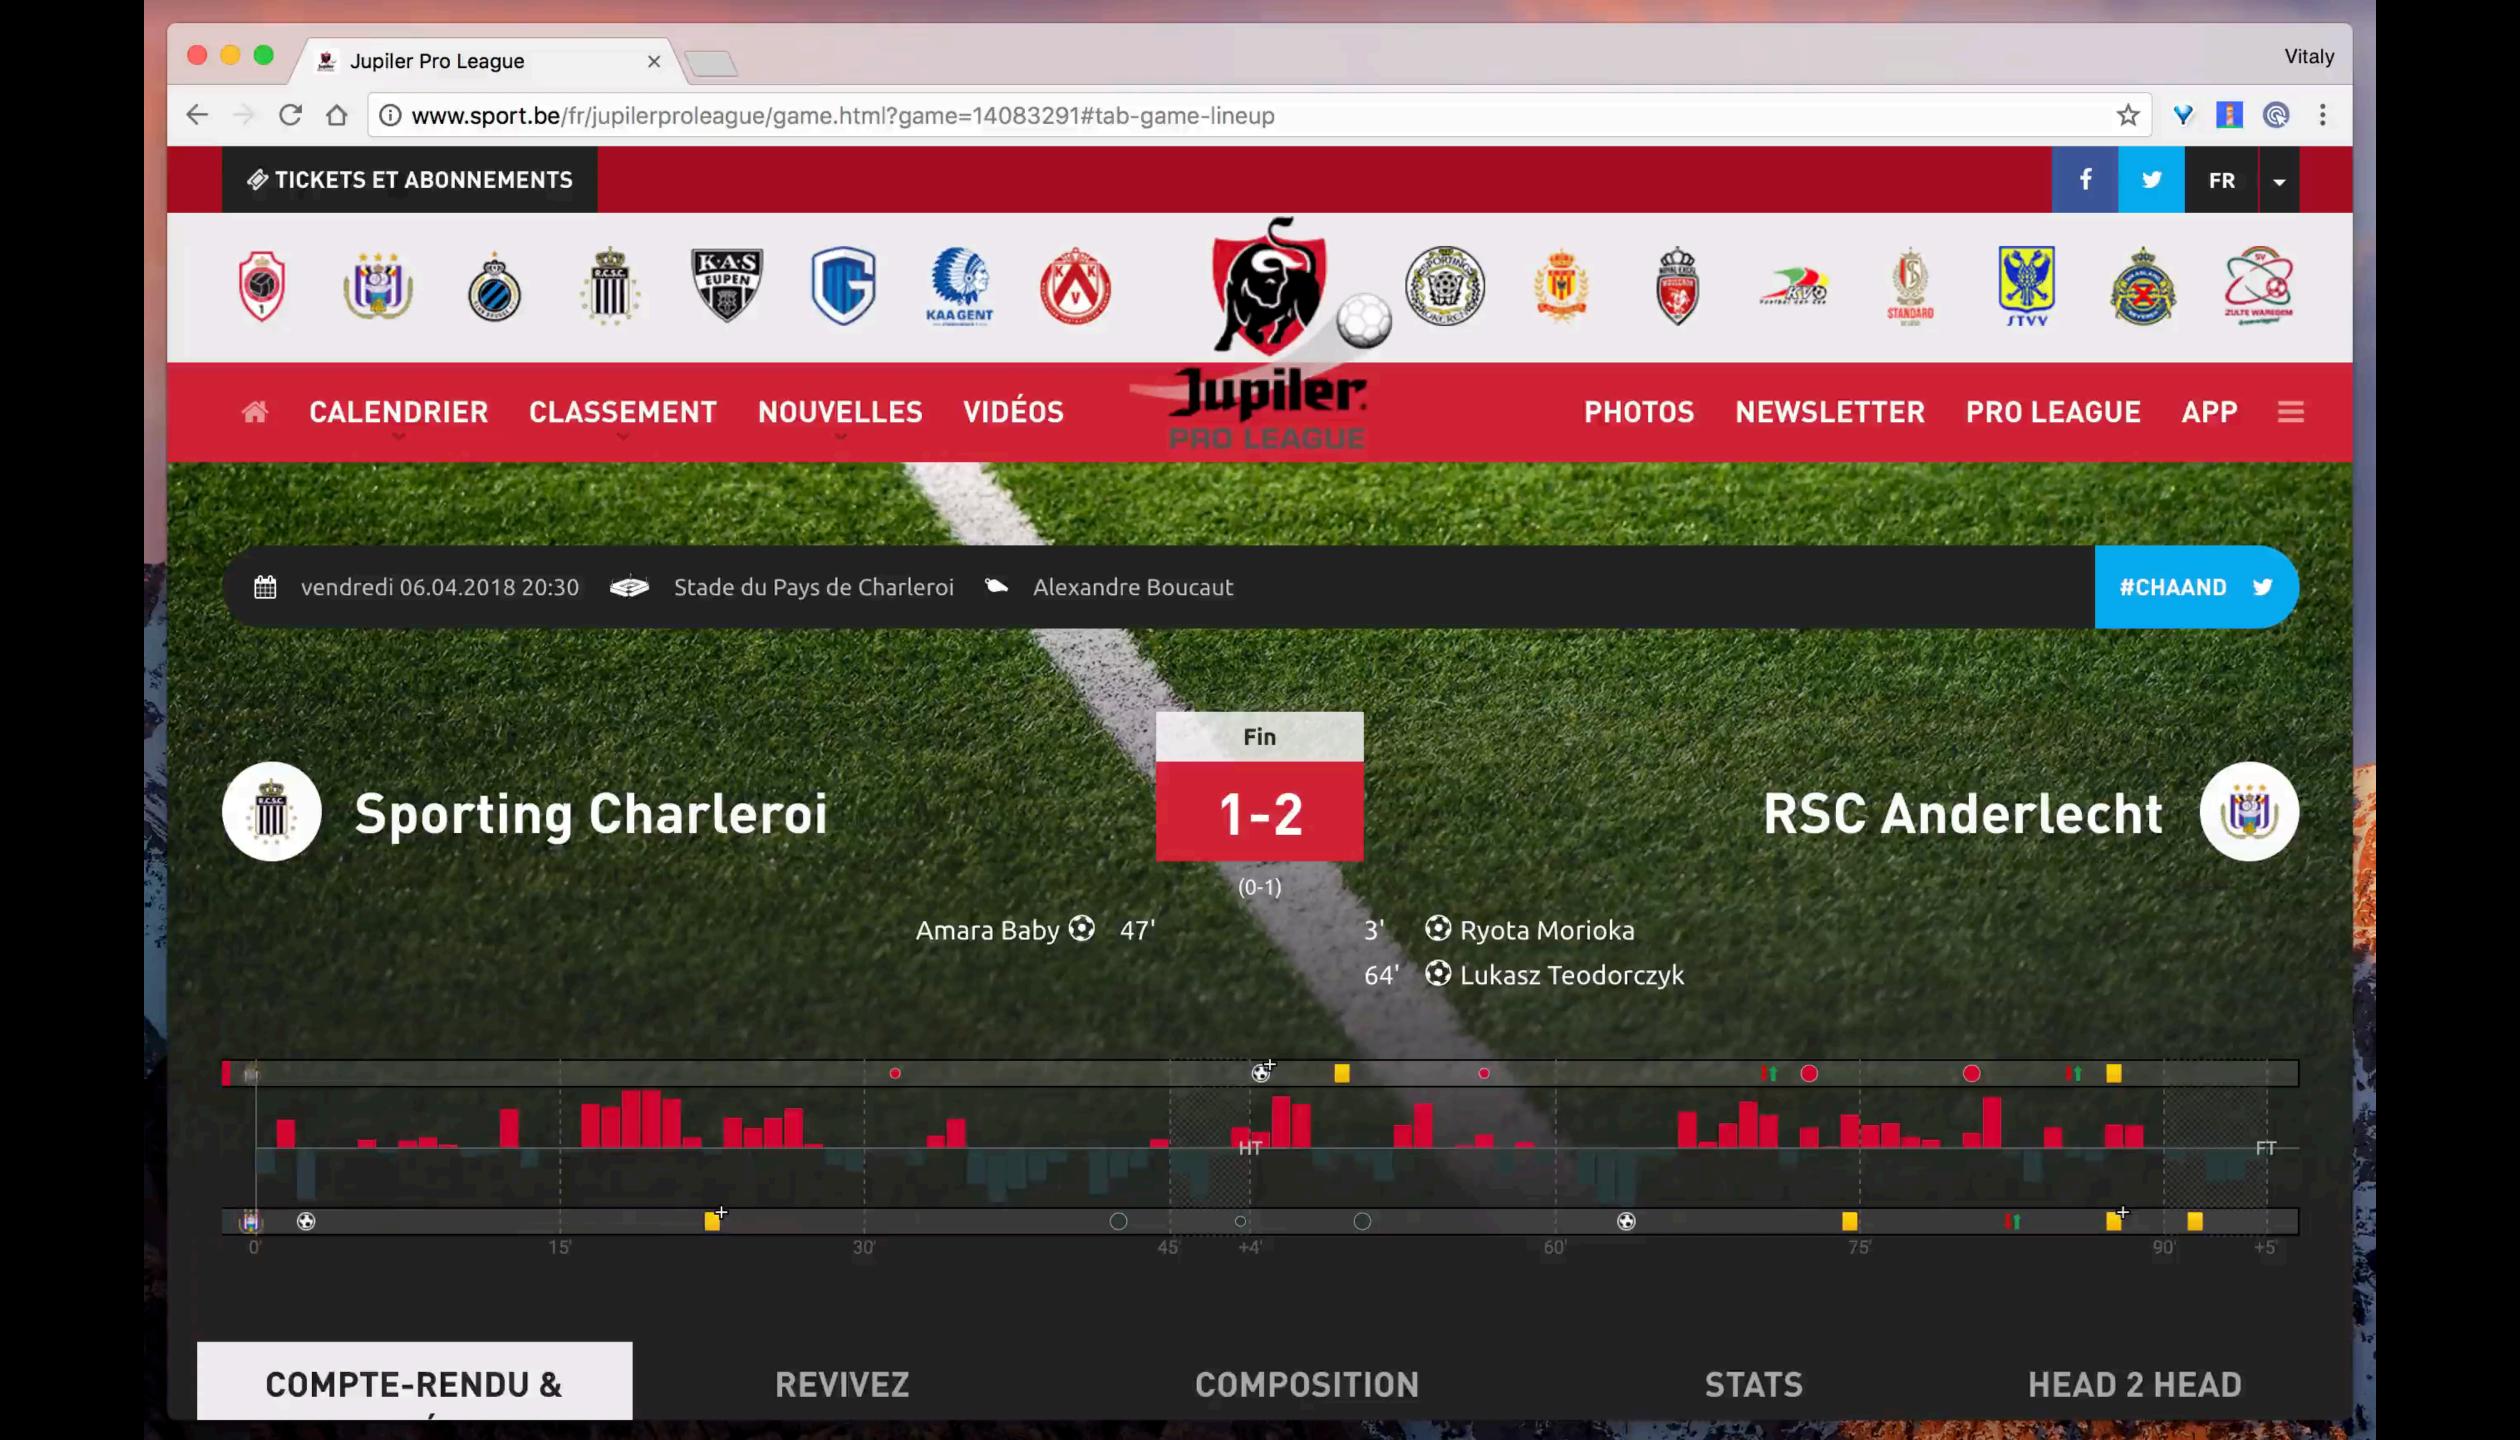

- carefully consider presets and baselines
- design for short interactions (30s or less)
- allow users to prev/next jump between steps
- provide large jumps in navigation
- preload assets to provide instant feedback
- floating pins often help increase engagement
- prioritize visual above everything else.

к русской версии ightarrowTass The Romanovs' Twilight In the early hours of July 17, 1918, Russia's last emperor Nicholas II and his family were gunned down in the Ipatiev House in Yekaterinburg. The Russian Imperial House was far larger than the family of the last Russian monarch. We remember all members of the Romanov family who witnessed the end of the dynasty's twilight in 1917 - the year that Russia was rocked by revolutions – both those who died a premature, violent death and those who were destined to survive the turmoil. Seventeen members of the imperial family lost their lives during the period of Red Terror, while 45 others found refuge abroad. During the trials and tribulations of their emigration, each of the Romanovs had to move from place to place very often before they found any peace. watch → Establishing secure.

NYT estimate of the final vote

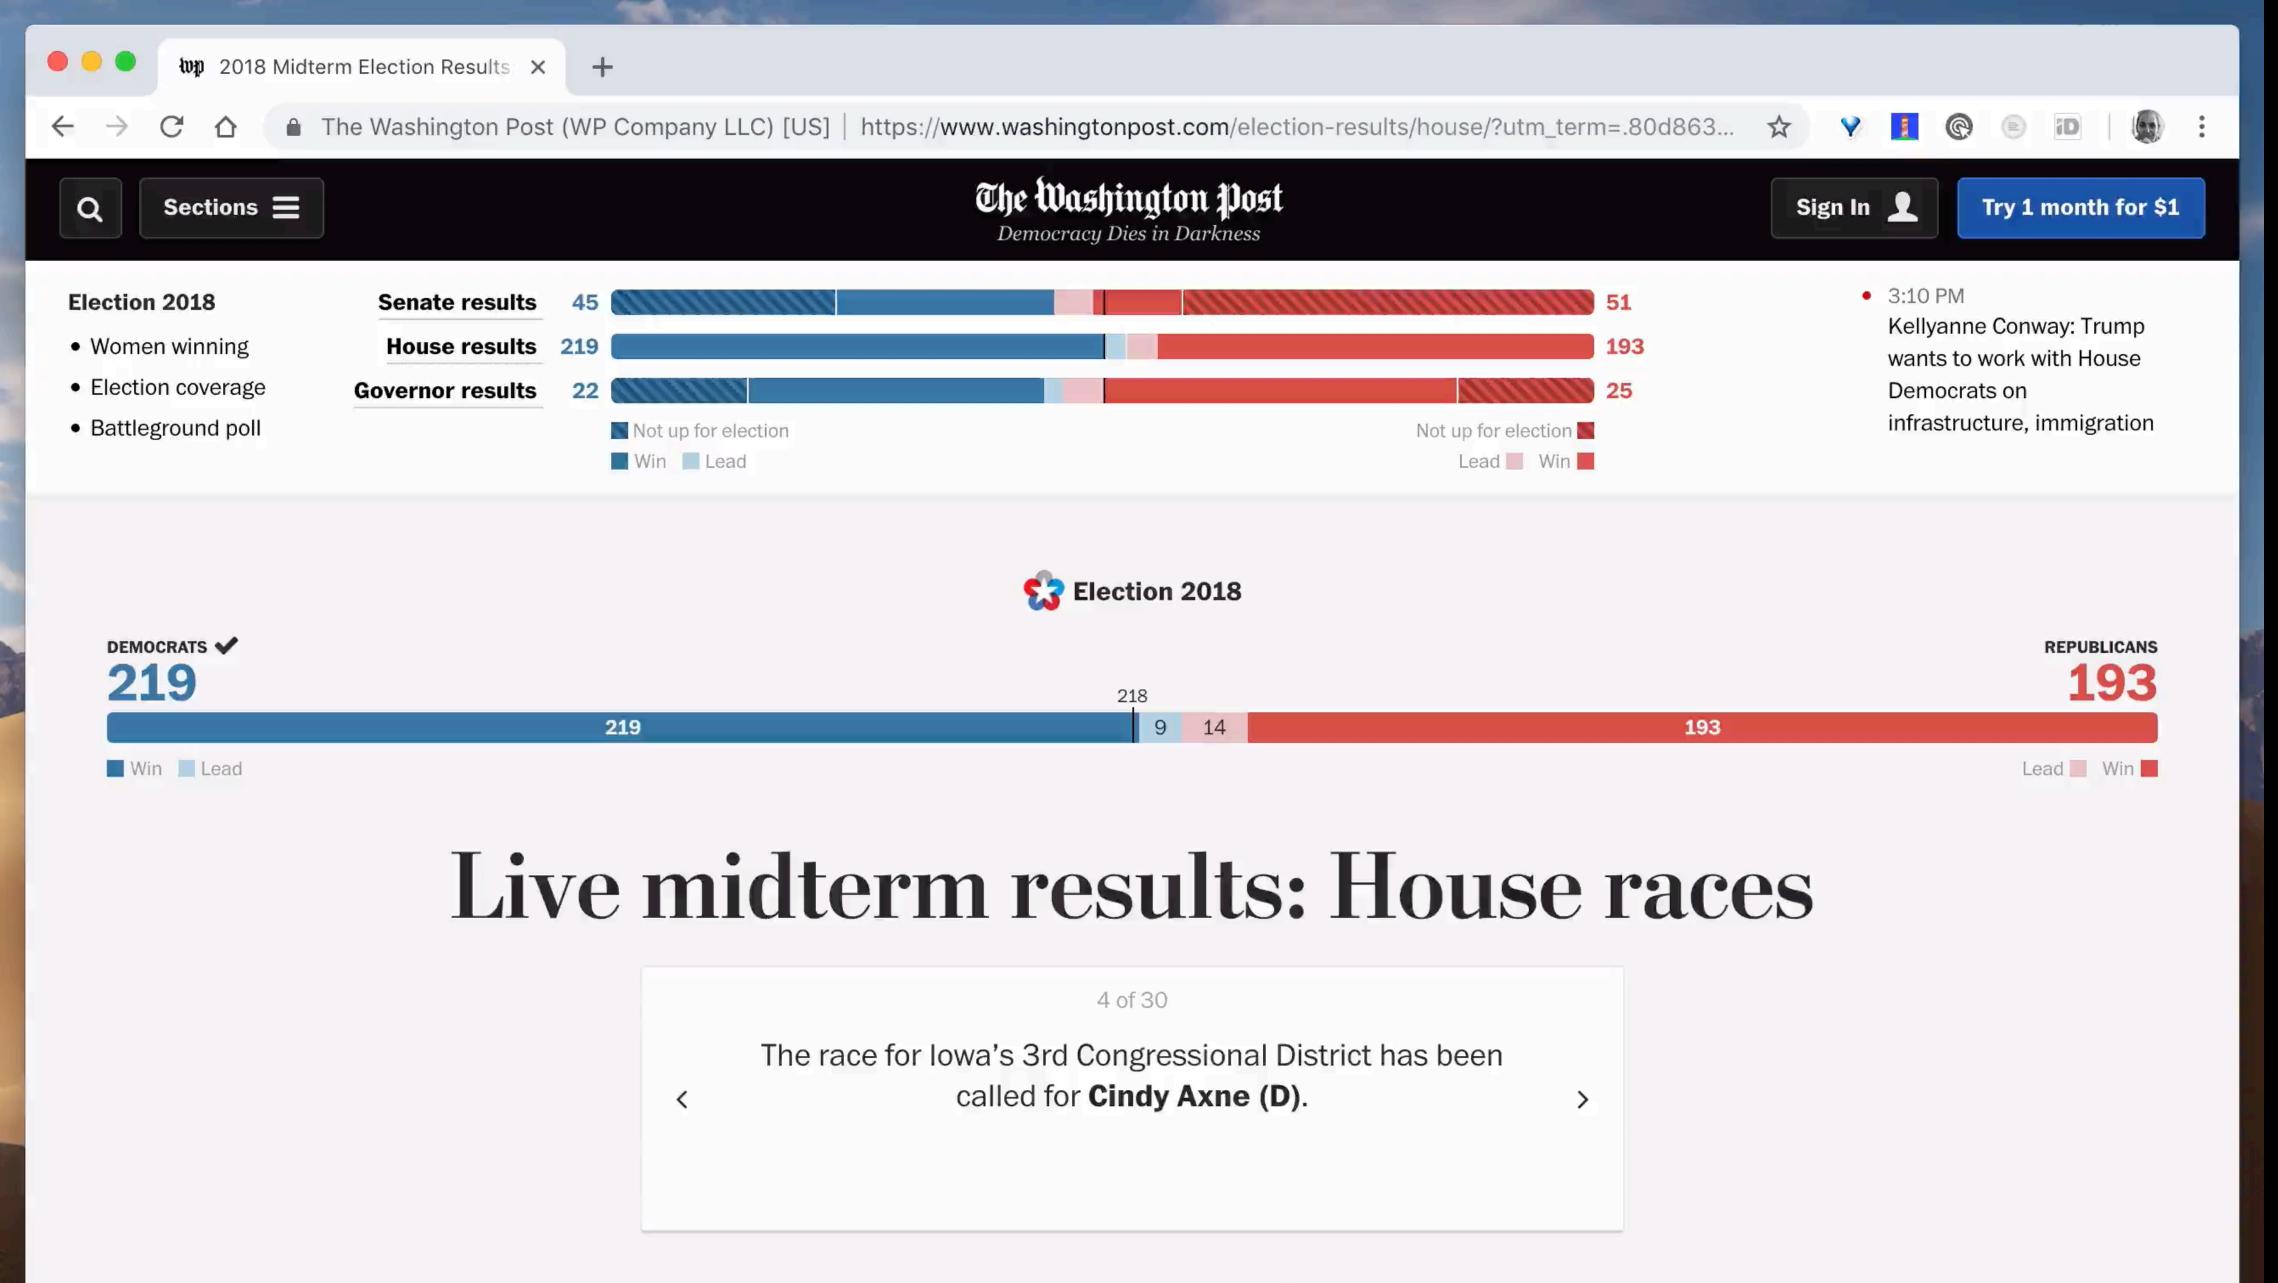

NYT win prob.

Democrats needed a net gain of 23 seats to win control of the House. Here's the result for each seat and how likely it was to flip, based on pre-race ratings from Cook Political Report. So far Democrats have gained no seats.

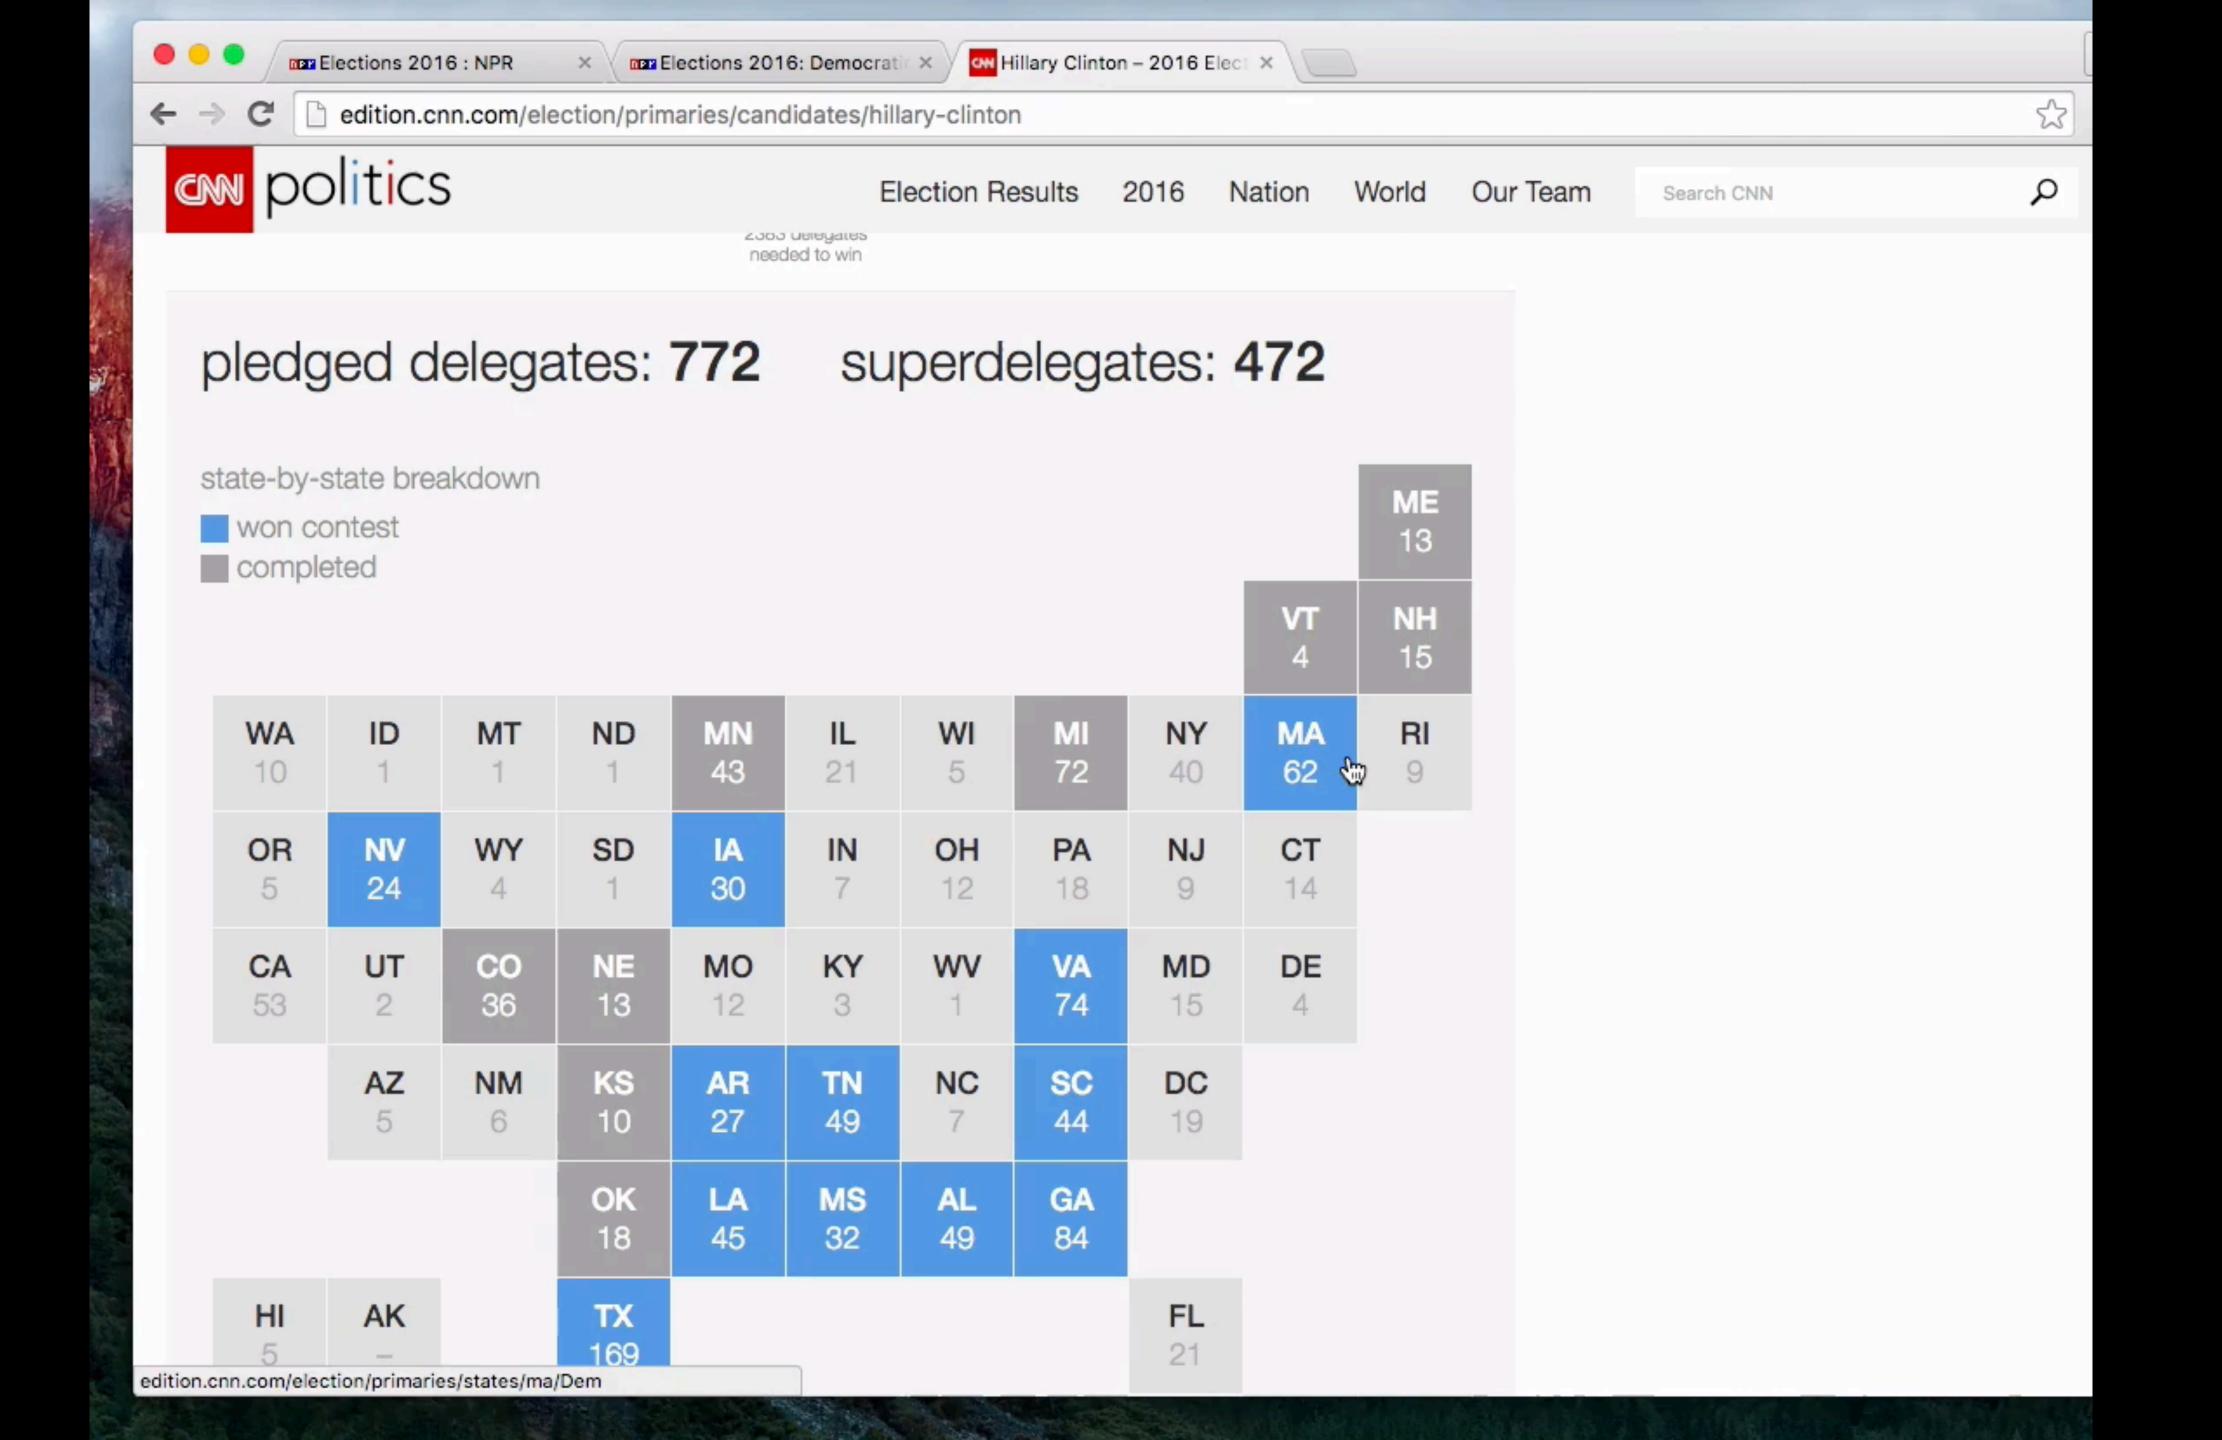

Results with fewer than 10 percent of precincts reporting are not shown.

Some factors were working in the Democrats' favor, namely President Trump's unpopularity and a favorable redrawing of Pennsylvania's congressional lines. Retirements also provided opportunities for party flips.
