THE HUMANE LEAGUE ®

the synergy of collaboration: STRENGTH IN NUMBERS

A humming hive of bees, transmitting messages through sound and dance. A school of fish, darting and rippling together, appearing larger than they are to stay safe from predators. A line of marching ants, working in unison to dismantle larger prey and build their own stunning architecture. Over millions of years of evolution, some of the world's most successful animal species have unlocked a secret: synergy.

Synergy is more than working together. It means allowing something bigger to emerge—a system truly greater than the sum of its parts. At The Humane League, we believe synergy is how we dismantle factory farming.

Across the countries of the world, bold advocates are fighting for animals in creative, culturally nuanced ways. Through our work, we are empowering groups across the globe with resources, training, and research-backed interventions—helping them do what they do best. We're building global teams of brilliant minds in policy, animal welfare research, corporate negotiation, and beyond, enabling us to fight for animals on every front. Through our social platforms and media reach, we're spreading a clear message far and wide: animals deserve better.

In the pages that follow, you'll read inspiring stories of individuals fighting to end industrial animal agriculture in their own regions around the world. You'll learn about incredible victories and milestones—from an unprecedented number of hens now living outside cages, to trailblazing bans on octopus farming. And you'll see something emerging; a force greater than the sum of its parts. It's momentum. It's sea change. It's synergy.

And here you are, a vital player in this global network. Thank you for offering your unique perspective, contributions, and compassion to help create a kinder future for the animals who live with us on this planet.

Thank you for being part of the movement to end factory farming.

united for IMPACT

THL is committed to building a synergistic movement that grows stronger every year—a global force for animals with an outsized impact. That’s why we focus on sharing resources, training advocates, and incubating new animal protection groups in regions where our movement is still young. By building alliances and empowering activists, we create a unified, global effort to ensure there is no place where factory farms can profit from animal abuse.

The Open Wing Alliance (OWA) unites 90+ member organizations from around 70 countries with one common goal: ending the abuse of chickens worldwide. And in the US, the Animal Policy Alliance (APA) organizes, unites, and empowers 25+ local and state-level animal advocacy groups with legislative policy agendas that include animals raised for food. Through these networks, we exchange knowledge, amplify our collective voice, and stand together against the titans of industry. And together, we win.

investing in a SHARED MISSION

At THL, we aren't afraid of giants. Especially when we have dozens of organizations around the world by our side. For context, last year, Walmart spent $4.4B on advertising alone. Everything we achieve for the animals, we pull off with less than 1% of Walmart's ad spend. How? Synergy.

Like elephants who strengthen their herds by sharing decades of accumulated wisdom—ancient migration routes, how to care for newborn calves, where to find water during droughts—we know that lasting change comes from looking out for each other and lifting each other up. That's why, through the OWA and APA, we invest grant funding in new and emerging groups to advance our shared mission to protect animals. But that's not all—these alliances deliver capacity-building, strategic guidance, and access to global networks that enable grantees to thrive and achieve sustained, high-impact results.

By fostering collaboration and growth, these programs act as powerful multipliers, maximizing our collective impact for animals and giving us the power to take down an industry magnitudes larger. With strategic support and critical funding, OWA and APA member groups are not only driving immediate progress for animals but also building the capacity to tackle increasingly ambitious goals. Together, their campaigns are advancing corporate and policy reforms that will spare millions of animals from suffering and lay the groundwork for the end of factory farming. This ripple effect of lasting change is only possible because of your support.

BY INVESTING IN THIS SHARED MISSION,
we're creating a movement powered not by the vast resources of the food industry but by something far greater: synergy and relentless determination.

2024 GRANTS

38 OWA GROUPS

$100,000
awarded to 6 APA GROUPS

regional victories = GLOBAL POWER

A tiny weaver bird, adding another straw. A second bird, then a third, then a hundred more, each strengthening a massive nest that has sheltered generations. In the harsh Kalahari Desert, where temperatures swing from scorching days to freezing nights, these birds have unlocked the power of sheer persistence and shared purpose—building communal homes that can last a century.

Like these master builders, members of the OWA are weaving together something unprecedented: a global movement that is protecting millions of chickens from abuse. In 2024, the OWA demonstrated the unstoppable power of collective action, making game-changing progress for egg-laying hens and broiler chickens across Africa, Asia, and Europe—and setting up advocates for continued success in the years and decades to come. Through tireless negotiation and courageous campaigning, OWA members are driving transformative change everywhere animals need it most. Together, we're building a global movement that no border can contain.

This year's regional progress showed what happens when advocates join forces to revolutionize the status quo for factory-farmed animals: systemic change.

IN 2024, THE OWA:

- Grew to 94 ORGANIZATIONS ACROSS 75 COUNTRIES
- Welcomed new members in countries like SOMALIA, AUSTRALIA, PORTUGAL, AND MEXICO
- Granted more than $2M TO 38 GROUPS
- Connected 26 MENTEES with skilled mentors around the world
- Held 3 SUMMITS that gave 40 OWA GROUPS a chance to share stories, coordinate strategies, and find synergies

In Africa, OWA member groups rose to the challenge of keeping the region cage-free. In Rwanda, a visionary group of advocates from Rwanda Animal Welfare Organization partnered with Abusol to ensure that a full 10% of Rwanda's chickens will never know the confines of a cage. Even more inspiring, this partnership sparked new interest in animal welfare, with Abusol now promoting cage-free farming across the country.

Further east, bold advocates ventured into uncharted regional territory, defying the odds to make cage-free farming a reality. In Asia, where over 60% of the world's egg-laying hens live in cruel cages, change can feel impossible. But the OWA was undaunted. Building off past victories against major Asian restaurant brands Toridoll and Jollibee, the OWA took on Kewpie—one of Asia's flagship brands and Japan's biggest mayonnaise company, annually buying 4 billion of the country's eggs. After years of behind-the-scenes negotiations, the OWA launched a relentless campaign against Kewpie—which finally released a cage-free commitment in Asia that stands to spare an estimated 700,000 hens from cages every single year. The company also committed to exploring cage-free production in the region through cage-free impact incentives—financial credits that empower egg producers in emerging markets to go cage-free, sparing countless hens from extreme cruelty.

KFC, COMPASS AGREE TO EUROPEAN CHICKEN COMMITMENT

Our 2024 European Chicken Commitment (ECC) progress report revealed a powerful transformation unfolding across the continent, with 380 companies promising to stand against the worst forms of suffering for chickens raised for meat. In Germany, OWA members Albert Schweitzer, Equalia, Open Cages, Essere Animali, and THL UK played a key role in this transformation. After a long-running battle with influential retailer Lidl Germany, they secured a broiler chicken welfare commitment that agrees to an industry labeling scheme very similar to the ECC.

Poultry welfare: Kraft Heinz and Nomad Foods to meet European Chicken Commitment

Fast-food giants make first steps toward chicken welfare in Romania and Poland

FROM RWANDA TO GERMANY, EVERY VICTORY BRINGS US CLOSER TO A WORLD WHERE NO ANIMAL SUFFERS IN FACTORY FARMS. Fueled by the momentum of 2024, the OWA will continue synergizing to make progress for animals in 2025 and beyond—reaffirming the staying power of the global animal protection movement, year after year.

coast to coast COLLABORATION

Every spring, a beautiful thing happens. Millions of monarch butterflies take wing. Like their ancestors before them, they embark on an epic migration across North America. No single butterfly will complete the journey from Mexico to Canada—instead, something greater emerges. Generation after generation moves northward in sequence, flying their own pieces of a path they've never seen before, creating a living wave that flows across the continent. It's synergy in motion: the whole becoming greater than the sum of its parts.

This same transformative power is at work in America's public policy landscape. From the shores of the Pacific to the heartland of Missouri, the APA is transforming individual efforts into unstoppable momentum. In 2024, the APA grew to 24 organizations across 16 states and Washington, DC. Fostering connection and collaboration, we unite and empower organizations committed to a future without systemic animal cruelty, while serving as a trusted resource, providing action-takers, strategies, and grants to organizations in the alliance. Each victory strengthens our collective impact, creating change far beyond what any single group could achieve alone.

IN 2024, THIS SYNERGY TOOK US FAR:

- In California, industrial agriculture was looking for ways to farm the Giant Pacific Octopus—one of the most intelligent species on the planet. The Animal Legal Defense Fund and Social Compassion in Legislation acted decisively, making California the second state to ban octopus farming. Now there's a growing movement to extend these protections across the nation.
- In Missouri, the Missouri Alliance for Animal Legislation fought back against powerful corporate interests. With support and grant funding from the APA, the group secured strict limits on slaughterhouse "sludge waste." Their victory proved so decisive that one of the state's largest slaughterhouses closed its doors. And when industry allies moved to weaken environmental protections, the group held steady, preserving the state's authority to regulate factory farms. Their successes resonate across America's heartland: the days of factory farming's unchecked power are coming to an end.
- At the federal level, New York-based Chilis on Wheels transformed school food policy thanks to APA support and funding. The USDA is now updating its nutritional guidelines for children—and coming out in support of plant-based meals and non-dairy milk in schools nationwide.

THE VICTORIES OF 2024 REVEAL SOMETHING POWERFUL EMERGING. Across the country, APA members are proving that local action leads to systemic change. This is how we transform our food system. This is how we end factory farming.

the road TO PROGRESS

In the world of animal agriculture, transparency isn't about disclosure for disclosure's sake—it's a crucial lever for system-wide change. Throughout 2024, THL and the OWA demonstrated how reports—followed up by relentless campaigns—create pressure for reform, turning industry commitments into measurable progress for animals. It's evidence plus action.

Like carpenter ants whose colonies deploy specialized teams—first scouts identifying targets, then cleaners preparing paths, and finally foragers mobilizing for action—we create change by applying pressure where it matters most. First, we publicize the progress food companies are—or aren't—making to spare animals from abuse. Then, we amplify those findings through pressure campaigns, rallying protestors and inspiring thousands to contact C-suite decision-makers.

HERE'S HOW WE DID IT IN 2024:

Our Fair and Fowl: Global Travel Edition report took on the travel and hospitality sector. And with 80% of global travelers prioritizing sustainable practices, our subsequent Heartless Hospitality campaign struck a nerve. Within a month, Hilton, Louvre Hotels, and Meliá Hotels—luxury resorts with locations from the southern coast of Spain to Park Avenue in New York City—publicly reported their progress eliminating cruel cages. The impact for animals is huge. Together, they rely on 861,000 hens laying 285 million eggs annually.

Our annual Eggsposé report targeted restaurants. Calling out big brands like Subway and Five Guys alongside smaller outfits like In-N-Out Burger and Pei Wei Asian Kitchen, the Eggsposé wasn't just a progress report. It was a call-to-action. That's because 2024 was, for almost every company in the food industry, their final year to transition away from cages ahead of their self-imposed—and fast-approaching—deadlines to eliminate cages by 2025 or 2026.

The egg industry itself admitted:

2024 IS THE EQUIVALENT OF 'THE WITCHING HOUR' FOR US EGG PRODUCERS IN THE INDUSTRY'S SHIFT TOWARD CAGE-FREE EGG PRODUCTION.

We followed up with campaigns against bakeries like Crumbl and fast-food chains like CKE, which owns Carl's Jr. and Hardee's. After months of pressure—including protests, petitions, and hometown media coverage—CKE finally demonstrated accountability. With over 3,800 locations using eggs from approximately 1.3 million hens annually, this victory marks significant progress for animals.

The momentum continued with our Fair and Fowl: Global Companies Edition report, which itself encouraged over 19 companies to take action, followed by our Foul Food campaign. Companies including Wagamama, Lai Sun Dining, and Colombina finally reported progress for animals. Combined, these three companies are responsible for nearly 95,000 hens laying 26.5 million eggs yearly. And industry trends underscore the momentum of the global cage-free movement. Our 2024 Cage-Free Fulfillment Report revealed that 89% of corporate commitments with 2023 or earlier deadlines have already been fulfilled—a powerful indicator as over 1,000 commitments come due in 2025.

Significantly, our European Chicken Commitment (ECC) Progress Report demonstrated unprecedented scale. With 378 companies signed on, the ECC is transforming industry standards for chickens raised for meat. Already, over 230 million birds are being spared from cruel practices, with commitments set to impact 1.1 billion chickens when fully implemented. Trailblazers like Norsk Kylling are proving the business case, reporting a 39% reduction in mortality rates for the 13 million chickens it raises annually.

REPORTS—FOLLOWED BY PUBLIC CAMPAIGNS—ARE ONE OF OUR BEST TOOLS FOR DRIVING CHANGE. In 2024 alone, this approach helped spare millions of animals from suffering, with millions more to follow as companies make good on their promises. We're strategically documenting the gaps between promises and practices in our food system—and exposing those corporations that need to do better. Because animals deserve better.

interview with Alex Suchy, VP OF GLOBAL PROGRAMS

What led you to become involved in the animal protection movement?

My involvement in the non-profit space exposed me to Effective Altruism, a philosophy focused on using evidence and reason to do the most good in the world. With billions of animals suffering in factory farms each year, I knew this was a cause where I could make a significant impact.

Having worked as an engineer in coal mines and on ships in Australia where I grew up, as well as in gold mines in Papua New Guinea, I saw the imbalance in power between everyday people and the world's largest companies. Companies were accountable to no one. I felt driven to take these companies head-on, and the animal protection movement felt like the most impactful place I could make a difference.

What is it about THL's approach that inspires you?

At THL, we're pragmatic—we have tractable strategies that pave the way to success. We're making concrete changes now that will significantly improve millions of animals' lives. And our leadership has a low ego, putting the mission ahead of personal gain. We care about building the movement—that's why we built the Open Wing Alliance and the Animal Policy Alliance.

What role does collaboration play in THL's work?

Collaboration is key. It's how we align our strategies across regions to confront corporations that are abusing animals everywhere. OWA member groups may be small, with just three to ten staff members, but this gives them a lot of authority in their home countries. They're there on the ground, total experts in their regions. That expertise is something we deeply respect, which is why we always share credit and foster mutual recognition. After all, the chickens don't care who freed them.

Why is cage-free campaigning the primary focus at THL right now?

The issue of caged hens is highly communicable—and our campaigns are highly tractable. The imagery of birds crammed in cages doesn't need much explanation. And while there's a huge amount of suffering with battery cages, there is also a very clear solution, which is easy to see by following the number of cage-free commitments made by corporations. It all started with McDonald's USA making a commitment by 2025, unleashing the domino effect across other corporations. Currently, 1,000 commitments have been fulfilled, but another 1,000 commitments are due in 2025 alone.

We're making concrete changes, right now, for millions of animals' lives. Moving hens to cage-free leads to a 50-60% reduction in suffering—meaning we've reduced net suffering in the US by 30%. Sometimes charities get caught up in idealistic thinking, and as a result, no actual change occurs. But at THL, our actions and impact are extremely pragmatic. We get things done.

turning evidence INTO ACTION

In our mission to end the abuse of animals raised for food, rigorous research remains a cornerstone of The Humane League's effectiveness. This year, our research team delivered groundbreaking insights that have amplified our impact and transformed how companies approach animal welfare.

- Industry Analysis: From a comprehensive report analyzing the state of the transition to cage-free barns in the US, to monthly avian influenza impact assessments, to recommendations for retailers on consumer behavior, to detailed assessments of federal labeling regulations, our researchers generated invaluable insights that guided our organizational strategies.
- Resource Development: Our research teams strengthened our worldwide impact by producing educational resources that empower advocates across cultures and contexts on topics ranging from cage-free production systems to chick culling to broiler chicken lighting requirements to market-specific assessments on the global transition to cage-free systems.

In 2024, our research team tackled a comprehensive range of issues critical to advancing animal welfare, from detailed policy analyses to practical implementation guides. Across the 26 research projects we accomplished last year, our work spanned fundamental welfare standards, market analyses, regulatory frameworks, and technical guidance for industry transition to higher welfare systems—providing both big-picture insights and practical solutions for stakeholders at every level of the food system.

In the rapidly evolving landscape of animal welfare advocacy, staying at the cutting edge isn't just an advantage—it's a necessity. The Humane League's team of researchers and data scientists brings decades of combined expertise in animal behavior, welfare assessment, and impact evaluation.

Our in-house expertise allows us to respond swiftly to emerging challenges, adapt our strategies based on real-time data, and maintain our position as a trusted authority in conversations with industry leaders.

When companies, policymakers, and journalists need reliable information about animal welfare practices, they can turn to The Humane League, because our research meets the highest standards of scientific rigor. OUR RESEARCH DOESN'T JUST INFORM STRATEGY. IT DRIVES REAL-WORLD CHANGE.*

MEDIA THAT REACHED MILLIONS

THL and Common Enemy featured in

Forbes

*[The Humane League] has, among other things, helped advocate for a ban on some of the cruelest living conditions for pigs and chickens on California farms, AND LATER SUCCESSFULLY DEFENDED THE BAN IN FRONT OF THE U.S. SUPREME COURT.

The Washington Post

amplifying advocacy: FROM MEDIA TO IMPACT

The driving force behind our theory of institutional change? People power. To pressure corporate behemoths to end the worst forms of animal abuse, we need to reach hearts and minds all over the world. This year, with strategic celebrity and media partnerships—and two groundbreaking documentaries—we did exactly that.

CELEBRITY VOICES

Nikki Glaser

Comedian, Host of the 2025 Golden Globes

A dedicated advocate for farmed animals, Nikki Glaser partnered with The Humane League to amplify our mission on Giving Tuesday. Her fierce call for change inspired an outpouring of support.

Marcus Daniell

Olympic bronze medalist, founder of High Impact Athletes

High Impact Athletes is a nonprofit on a mission to connect the world's best athletes with the world's best charities. This year, Marcus Daniell and fellow tennis pros generously pledged a portion of their US Open winnings to The Humane League. Having grown up on a farm in New Zealand, Daniell describes himself as “passionately against the practice of factory farming.”

“For me, donating to The Humane League is a no-brainer.”

GRIPPING DOCUMENTARIES

From slaughterhouse workers to politicians, from veterinarians to members of the Cherokee Nation, Oklahoma residents are uniting against a common enemy: industrialized animal agriculture. In our first-of-its-kind documentary, Common Enemy, we set out to tell their story—covering a community's ongoing fight against the growing threat of factory farming across their state.

Our second documentary, Battleground, uncovered the environmental and economic destruction that confined animal feeding operations (CAFOs) are causing in Wisconsin. With resilience and tenacity, residents are fighting for clean water and healthy land—and for the billions of animals who suffer behind the walls of factory farms each year.

Factory farming is typically framed as an animal welfare problem, but it's also a human problem. THAT'S MADE CLEAR IN A NEW 30-MINUTE DOCUMENTARY FILM, COMMON ENEMY, BY THE HUMANE LEAGUE.

our collaboration WITH YOU

Volunteer changemakers and donors are the lifeblood of THL's mission, making our work for animals possible. With your involvement, we are an indomitable force. Your generosity, skills, and passion allow us to grow as a movement. Your voices amplify our impact. Your compassion creates a brighter future for animals. WE COULDN'T DO THIS WITHOUT YOU.

“THE HUMANE LEAGUE HAS GIVEN ME AN OPPORTUNITY TO SHARE MY STORY WITH OTHERS AND INSPIRE THEM to see that anyone is capable of living in more alignment with their values and pursuing change. I decided to ride my bike from New York City to Canada for The Humane League because I felt powerless and didn't know what else to do so I chose two things I was passionate about and smooshed them together. If you are here reading this now, then you are interested in making a change—and maybe you have already. I want to tell you that continuing your path will only make your life and the lives of so many others better.

Jadyn Ide-Pech, Volunteer Changemaker

“LEGACY GIVING IS A POWERFUL WAY TO ENSURE THAT THE CAUSES WE CARE ABOUT CONTINUE TO THRIVE AND CREATE LASTING CHANGE, even after we're gone. A friend told me about how easy it is to name THL as an account beneficiary. As a big believer in THL's work and as someone who has benefited from THL's work immensely, I thought this would be a good way to contribute, more long term.

Rebecca Rogers, Legacy Society Member

2024 FINANCIAL REPORT

The Humane League is a nonprofit, tax-exempt 501(c)(3) corporation that is 100% funded by donations from a few foundations and thousands of individuals. Your generous donations are dismantling factory farming around the world and giving millions of animals a better life. THANK YOU.

PROGRAM AREAS

THL uses an accrual accounting system, so revenue is recorded in the year that a grant is awarded, rather than when it is received. Therefore, some 2024 expenses were covered by grants recorded to prior years.

All numbers have been rounded to the nearest one thousand.

The numbers on this page are preliminary and are subject to change upon audit. The final audited numbers will be available later in 2025 at thehumaneleague.org/impact

the HEART BEAT

The Heart Beat is our community of dedicated donors who support THL's work with monthly gifts. The Heart Beat keeps the fight to end the abuse of farmed animals alive all year long.

mended heart SOCIETY

The Mended Heart Society includes supporters who provide extraordinary annual contributions totaling $500 or more. Mended Heart Society members are helping to end some of the worst and most widespread abuses of farm animals, and they help us expand our global reach every year.

LEGACY society

Members of our Legacy Society are lifelong partners in our mission to end the abuse of animals raised for food. By making a planned gift to THL, they leave an enduring legacy of compassion, and empower THL to keep fighting for as long as we are needed.
