Hot Rodding the 292 Ford Engine

from Popular Hot Rodding, 196_

We started this series of articles on "shoestring" hop-up projects with the small Chevrolet V-8 engine because it is the most popular basic powerplant in the hot rod field -- for reasons of performance potential, low cost, light weight, etc. In picking a second basic engine for the budget-minded rodder we inevitably arrived at the Ford Y-block V-* of the 1954-'62 period, used mostly in 292-cubic-inch form.

Admittedly this engine lacks some of the virtues of the small Chevy. It's larger and heavier -- around 600 lbs. without flywheel and clutch -- and it doesn't have the breathing and high rev potential of the Chev. Also there is not quite such a wide variety of speed equipment available. But this engine had to be listed next in this series for one very good reason: You can probably do more hopping for less money with this engine than any other one. There are millions of these things in the junkyards at dirt cheap prices. Good ones are trading for well under $100. There's a big supply of spare parts in the junkyards, and part interchangeability between different year models is excellent. New factory parts over the counter are not rough. There's a lively market in used speed equipment. If you're hopping on a shoestring, this could be your engine.

This basic engine was introduced in 1954 at 239 cubic inches for Ford and 256 for Mercury. In 1955 the bore and stroke were increased to give displacements of 272 and 292 cubic inches for the various models. For '56 another bore and stroke increase gave 312 cubes. All three engine sizes -- 272, 292 and 312 -- were used in 1956 and '57. Then in 1958, after the AMA anti-racing resolution and condemnation of the horsepower race in Washington, Ford standardized on just the 292 block -- and carried it through 1962 (after which the new 260-289 engine took over as the standard V-8 option).

In other words there were millions more 292 engines built than any other kind. These are the ones that are by far the most plentiful in the junkyards. Of course the 312-cubic-inch blocks would be preferable; but you have to go back to '56 and '57 models to find them. Fortunately these years were right in the bloom of the horsepower race, and a lot of buyers were glad to pay the extra to get the big engine. Quite a few were produced in those years. So don't give up too easy. But also don't feel too badly if you have to settle for a 292 engine to keep within the budget. After all, the difference is only 20 cubes.

Unfortunately a 292 block cannot be readily expanded to 312 cubes using factory parts. The 312 crankshaft had 1/8-inch larger main bearings. These could be machined down; but it would be an expensive job. One good part about it, though: When Ford lengthened the stroke for the 312 engine they used shorter connecting rods, rather than compensating for the stroke increase by raising the block deck height or increasing the piston pin-to-crown height. This means that intake manifolds are interchangeable, and you can use 312 pistons in a 292 block by boring .050. (You would thus end up with 300 cubic inches). Incidentally, a 272 block can be raised to 292 by boring .125 and using 292 pistons. Also the cylinder walls are relatively thin on the 312 block, so maximum safe overbore (using specialty pistons) is about .060. The smaller blocks can be bored .125. The "crank train" parts on the Ford Y-block engine -- crankshaft, rods, pistons, bearings, etc. -- seem to be plenty beefy for moderate hopping. There are no glaring weak points. The oil pump relief valve spring can be shimmed a little to raise the oil pressure. Also it might be mentioned that Ford used copper-lead bearings on many of their engines, so it is important that you change the oil filter at regular intervals. (Copper-lead bearings are a little harder, and thus more critical on dirt in the oil).

Client concerns:

- ADJUST CLUTCH
- RADIO WON'T PLAY
- BOLT IN BAG LOOKS LIKE A OIL PAN BOLT - CHECK IT - IF NOT, RETURN BOLT

1 - ADJUST CLUTCH $67.50

Labor:	ADJUST CLUTCH

✓ Approved on 05/26/26 at 07:10 AM EDT $67.50

2 - CHECK RADIO NOT WORKING
Note: FOUND 2 BLOWN FUSES FOR RADIO. REPLACED FUSES AS NEEDED. FOUND BARE RADIO WIRE TOUCHING TEMP SENSOR AND SHORING OUT CAUSING FUSE TO BLOW. TAPED UP WIRE AS NEEDED AS IS NO LONGER SHORTING OUT.

WIRING HARNESS IS A MESS. VEHICLE REALLY COULD USE ENTIRE NEW WIRING HARNESS.

$186.00

Labor:	CHECK RADIO NOT WORKING	1	$9.99	$9.99
Part:	Multi-Purpose Fuse - SFE1ZP

✓ Approved on 05/26/26 at 07:10 AM EDT Subtotal $195.99 + est. Tax $0.80 $196.79

3 - NOTE
Note: ALL OIL PAN BOLTS ARE PRESENT AND ACCOUNTED FOR. BOLT IN DROP OFF ENVELOPE IS NOT FROM OIL PAN. DID NOT FIND AN OPEN SPOT THAT IT LOOKED LIKE IT BELONGED IN. LEFT BOLT IN ENVELOPE IN CAR.

AutoZone Limited Warranty

We will replace, or refund your money for, at our option, any part we sell that wears out or breaks under warranty. Your warranty starts on the day you buy the part and expires at the end of warranty period stated on this receipt or when you sell your vehicle-whichever comes first. To obtain a replacement part, visit any AutoZone store or call 1-800-288-6966 to arrange return shipping. Replacement parts are warranted for the remainder of the warranty period or 90 days, whichever is longer. The warranty does not cover defects due to improper installation, other defective parts, low fluid levels, abuse, or commercial, off-road or marine use.

This limited warranty represents the total liability of AutoZone, for any warranted part, and AutoZone, makes no other warranties, expressed or implied, including the implied warranties or merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. AutoZone shall not be liable for any indirect, special, incidental, or consequential damages.

Some states do not allow limitations on how long an implied warranty lasts, or exclusion or limitation on incidental or consequential damages, so the above limitations may not apply to you. This warranty gives you specific legal rights, and you may also have other rights, which vary from state to state.
