The Gary Sinise Foundation serves our nation by honoring our defenders, veterans, first responders, their families, and those in need.

We do this by creating and supporting unique programs designed to entertain, educate, inspire, strengthen, and build communities.
My Friends,

In 2010, I had a decision to make: I could either ramp up this mission of service to veterans, first responders and their families, or I would have to pull back. For years, I had been traveling the world and across our country raising funds and supporting many initiatives and nonprofits. I visited troops in war zones, on bases here in the U.S. and at our military hospitals. I attended funeral services for our fallen heroes and tried to comfort their grieving families. I knew the need was great. I thought about the sacrifices of so many who keep our country free and safe. I thought about our veterans struggling with post-traumatic stress, our most severely wounded service members who felt lost and incomplete, and those still serving who continued to face dangerous situations around the world. I thought about the children of our fallen, and all the moments they would feel the loss and heartbeat alone. I thought of the first responders who run towards danger for their fellow citizens, and the toll it takes on them and their loved ones.

It was the thought of these heroes and what they face every day that made my decision clear. That’s why I founded the Gary Sinise Foundation. Not all of us are called to serve and sacrifice in such selfless and extraordinary ways, but as Americans we can take up the charge to help those who do.

My book, Grateful American: A Journey from Self to Service, is a story of discovery, of a calling to a greater purpose, and of the extraordinary men and women I met along the way. There are so many friends just like you who are grateful for our freedom and security. You are such an important part of this mission, and I am blessed to have you with me on this journey.

Together, we are expressing our sincere gratitude to our defenders by addressing their critical challenges in meaningful ways: supporting veterans, wounded heroes, first responders, frontline emergency medical teams—brave men and women who put their lives on the line every single day to keep our country safe and our communities strong.

There are so many ways to give back to our heroes, to ensure they have the tools and resources to withstand their physical and invisible wounds. To give them comfort. To give them support. To give them hope. And that is why, at Gary Sinise Foundation, our mission is broad and ever evolving to serve our heroes’ changing needs.

I believe while we can never do enough for our nation’s defenders and the families who sacrifice alongside them, we can always do a little more.

Your Grateful American pal.
WHO WE SERVE

SEVERELY WOUNDED HEROES

Thousands have returned from their service with severe injuries. From amputations to paralysis, we’re working to ease their daily challenges and help restore their independence and support their empowerment.
MY FIRST VISIT TO A MILITARY HOSPITAL CHANGED ME

Germany 2003, Landstuhl Regional Medical Center. I was nervous to meet these wounded service members. How should I greet them? How should I interact? Entering the first large room, there were many with less serious wounds who would be patched up and sent back to the war. So many had that 1,000-yard stare. All were quiet, somber. But everything changed after a soldier looked up and shouted, “Lt. Dan!” Their eyes lit up and they started to gather around me. Smiles now, they wanted to talk about Forrest Gump. They identified with my character’s story in a profound way that I hadn’t expected. Then, I went upstairs to see the patients who were more seriously injured and would be sent home soon. Again, faces lit up. They were so happy that I just showed up to spend time with them, but I was the one who was most profoundly changed. It changed me forever. The Gary Sinise Foundation serves our severely wounded because every veteran who serves our country deserves our support and our gratitude.

He Was the Only One Who Survived

Returning from a mission in Zabul, Afghanistan, Army Sgt. Legrand Strickland witnessed an improvised explosive device (IED) strike his Commander’s vehicle. His Commander survived the blast and joined Legrand in his own vehicle.

Though Legrand survived, his Commander and the driver did not.

As they drove away, Legrand’s last memory is a second blast. His vehicle had been struck by another explosive. Though Legrand survived, his Commander and driver did not. He sustained many injuries, including bilateral above-knee amputations and traumatic brain injury, and underwent multiple surgeries including a cranioplasty.

The Gary Sinise Foundation was honored to support this hero and his family through our R.I.S.E. program.

FAMILIES OF FALLEN HEROES

When our nation’s heroes make the ultimate sacrifice, we never forget them and their families. We are here for the families of our fallen in their greatest time of need and beyond.
NOW THEY CALL ME “UNCLE GARY”

I was introduced to an organization called “Snowball Express” just after its inaugural event in 2006. All these military children who had lost a parent in Iraq and Afghanistan had gone to Disneyland for an all-expense paid trip held just prior to the year end holiday season. Seeing the video footage from that first event and the impact made on nearly 800 Gold Star children, I knew I had to help. From that point on, I made it a personal point to show up each year to support these families and that included returning with my Lt. Dan Band to play concerts for them. In 2018, the Gary Sinise Foundation brought the entire organization as an initiative under our Relief and Resiliency program. Every time the kids call me “Uncle Gary”, it warms my heart. There are so many children who have lost a mom or dad in military service to our country and I’m so honored to be considered family to these incredible heroes.

“I Have Five Children, How Can I Go On Alone?”

Ginger Gilbert Ravella faced the sudden tragic loss of her college-sweetheart husband Major Troy Gilbert, an Air Force F-16 pilot, who gave his life while saving over twenty Special Operation soldiers.

“I got a knock at the front door and I see these blue uniforms. I looked at their faces and I knew something horrible must have happened.”

“He was a hero every day, but that day he became an American hero,” Ginger said. She soon learned that Iraqi insurgents had taken her husband’s body. Her family’s private grief became public as news outlets repeatedly covered the military’s multiple attempts to recover his body.

Ginger wrestled with how to live without the provider of her family, the love of her life, and father to her five children all under the age of nine.

FIRST RESPONDERS

We’re providing support to America’s firefighters, police, and EMTs who run into danger and ensure the safety of our communities every day.
9/11 Was My Turning Point

The images from that terrible day will remain embedded in my mind forever. Watching the FDNY and NYPD rush towards the burning Twin Towers, all those brave heroes responding at the Pentagon, the passengers who fought back on United 93 over Shanksville PA., all of it left an indelible impression on me. In June of 2003, on my first handshake tour to Iraq with the USO, I met a retired FDNY firefighter named John Vigiano. John lost two sons on 9/11, one a firefighter and the other a police officer. Once back in the states, he invited me to tour his son’s firehouse and meet some of the guys. They had lost six of their brothers that day, including John’s son. This chance interaction left me with a whole new appreciation for our first responders. I want the Gary Sinise Foundation to remind our fellow Americans that real selfless heroes reside in their community, and that these men and women face danger every day to ensure their safety.

WHO WE SERVE

INVISIBLE WOUNDS OF WAR

Many of our nation’s heroes return from war with not only physical wounds, but invisible ones. We are here to uplift their spirits and support their strong mental health.
THE MENTAL HEALTH OF OUR HEROES IS CRITICAL

Uplifting the spirits of our heroes is at the very heartbeat of everything we do. Each of our Programs are designed to improve lives and raise spirits through our multiple initiatives: entertainment, home building, serving our heroes, wellness retreats and much more. The expansion of our focus on Mental Wellness healing began years ago when I met with Ken Falke, a 21-year combat Navy veteran who was building a retreat specifically for heroes suffering from post-traumatic stress. In this beautiful retreat setting, I felt we could team up to provide a great way for our newly wounded veterans to learn from older wounded veterans through my long relationship with the Disabled American Veterans. As our support of those struggling with the physical and invisible wounds of war continued to expand, so did our partnerships with a number of organizations who are truly making an impact.

WHO WE SERVE

VETERANS FROM EVERY CONFLICT

No matter how they served or where they deployed, we consider every veteran a hero of this nation.
THE VETERANS IN MY FAMILY ARE MY INSPIRATION

In the 1960s and early 1970s, as a young teenager, I watched as men and women, not much older than I, deployed to Vietnam. They answered their nation’s call to service by volunteering or through the draft, risking their lives each day in the jungles of Southeast Asia. My wife’s two brothers and a brother-in-law served in the U.S. Army. I was a little older by then, and received quite an education from them as to what it was like to serve there and to come home to a nation divided over the war. What stayed with me the most was how our Vietnam veterans were treated when they returned home. I have tried my best over the years to ensure we always support those who defend us. The veterans in my family have always been a source of inspiration, so to see America turn its back on its returning heroes was something I’ll never forget. The Gary Sinise Foundation is working to ensure this mistake is never repeated. We proudly celebrate every veteran from every conflict.

SOMETIMES A HANDSHAKE CHANGES EVERYTHING

In all my travels over the years supporting our nation’s defenders, I have seen firsthand the courage and bravery of those who selflessly serve for their fellow citizens. So many of our nation’s heroes silently struggle, not wanting to burden others with their challenges. But letting them know they’re not alone on their journey, reminding them there are many grateful Americans out there who love and appreciate them, this can make a positive difference in their lives.

As the divide between citizens and those who protect our nation grows, fewer Americans ever interact with their defenders. For all they’ve sacrificed, these heroes ask so little. Sometimes a handshake and a heartfelt ‘thank you’ can mean so much. It’s a simple reminder that a grateful nation stands behind them.

Florida is home to the third-largest veteran population in the country, with more than 1.5 million retired service members.

San Diego

San Diego is home to the nation’s largest concentration of military personnel, including one-sixth of U.S. Navy and over one-fourth of U.S. Marine Corps personnel. Approximately 16,000 service members separate from active-duty service in San Diego each year, with about 28% of them estimated to remain in the region after separation.
The Gary Sinise Foundation is supported by more than 100,000 donors across the nation who entrust us with their generosity in order to faithfully execute our mission year round.

For 2021, we are proud to report that 81% of every dollar contributed was applied directly to our outreach and our commitment to fiscal responsibility has been validated by every major nonprofit watchdog group and registry.
